SPINACH GROWERS AND CANNERS AIDED BY U.OF M.

State University Scientists Determine Best Variety

Largely because of tho interests of Maryland canners and demands of farmers, work has been carried on at the University of Maryland to find which of the many varieties of spinach are best suited for growing in Maryland soil. For a period of about three and a half years this work has been carried on, with the result that Virginia Savoy, a cross between tho Savoy, a market spinach commonly known, and the seed of a much hardier plant imported from Manchuria, has shown itself to be far superior to the other varieties.

The Manchurian spinach closely resembles dandylion greens in appearance. It is hardy but has a great deal of stem which makes it undesirable for marketing. Among its good points, however, are its high resistance to mosaic or "Spinach Yellows" the blight most prevalent in spinach growth, and its resistance to cold weather. It was by crossing this brand with the leafier Savoy that the new variety was obtained, with the rich leaves of the Savoy and the resistance of the Manchurian plant.

The new variety should be especially attractive to Maryland farmers because it is sown in the fall and is ready for the market in early March, fr four to six weeks earlier than the average crop. In this way the same land used for it is again in readiness to plant in tomatoes, beans, or any other crop desired. On the other hand it is not advisable to plant this brand of spinach in the spring, as it goes to seed too early to be profitable as a spring crop.

Among the many varieties experimented with were the Bloomsdale, a thick leafy plant which makes a good market appearance; the Thick-Leafed Henderson, Viroflay, Prickley Winter, Thick-Leafed Round, Princess Juliana, Triumph, King of Denmark, Long Season, Giant Eskimo, Victoria and Thick-Leafed Viroflay, all known to the Maryland farmer.

These were all found to be susceptible to the blight and large patches of plants had to be removed from the plot in order to save surrounding plants.

As spinach is one of Maryland's greatest crops it is important that its cultivation should be fostered. The soil conditions in many parts of the State are ideal for growing, and the nearby markets and canneries present a great demand for it.

Although canning spinach is a comparatively new interest to the State of Maryland over five hundred thousand dollars has been made through this medium in 1927 and the industry is rapidly growing. In an effort to find a spinach that would hold its shape and delicacy of flavor when canned it has been determined that the more hardy plants and the thick leafed plants are most satisfactory.

All experiments in canning were carried on in the small canning plant operated by the university for this particular purpose.

GORMAN

Mrs. S. M. Biggs.

Rebecca Ellen O'Haver, wife of S. M. Biggs, aged 63 years, 3 months and 8 days, died on March 14. She was united in marriage to Wm. Smith who departed this life about 16 years ago and three years later she was united in marriage with S. M. Biggs. Four children were born as the result of her former marriage. The eldest, a daughter, died in infancy. The surviving children are Ocie Smith of Shallmar, Md.; Mrs. Myrtle Harvey, of Vindex, Md., and Mrs. Ida Dawson, of Kempton, Md. Besides these she is also survived by her husbnnd, S. M. Biggs, two brothers and two sisters, Joseph O'Haver, of Oakland; Gaber, of Hambleton, W. Va.; Mrs. Ida King, of Gormania, W. Va.; and Mrs. Alice Shillingburg, Steyer; also by five grandchildren. Mrs. Biggs became a Christian sixteen years ago and retained her faith and trust until called in death. Funeral services were conducted Saturday morning by Rev. A. F. Weeks, pastor of the Gormania M. E. church, with interment in the Tannery cemetery at Gormania.

Social Events.

The T. B. G. Club met at the home of Miss Fronie Williams when a religious and literary program was carried out by the members, those participating being Miss Anna Dilgnrd, Woodie Hilleary, Evelyn Eger and others. Miss Gwendolyn Chisholm was ndmitted to membership nnd the visitors were Max Williams, Leon Chisholm, Leon Winters and Evelyn Williams. Games were a feature of the meeting, after which refreshments were served. The next meeting will he held nt the home of Miss Pauline Winters.

Literary Contest.

An event of more than ordinary interest to the community took place in the Methodist church at Bayard on Friday night when the literary society of the Romney high school contested with the literary society of the Bayard high school. The Romney contestants were: Orator, Miss Hilda Shear; reading, Miss Gladys Goldsborough; essayist, Clarence Worford; extemporaneous talk, Shaffer Stnul; debaters, Evan Pugh nnd Earl Woolford. The Bayard contestants were: Orator, Adonis Shumaker, of Wilson, W. Vn.; reading, Miss Woodie Hilleary, of Gorman; essayist, Miss Gwendolyn Chisholm, of Gorman; extemporaneous talk, Leon Winters, of Gormania; debaters, Robert Durst and Miss Anna Duling, of Gormania. The judges were Dean Albert, of D. and E. College, Elkins; Prof. J. H. Patterson, of Thomas high school, and Miss Wilhelmina Deissle, Potomac State College, Keyser.

The contest was very close on most of the topics, only a poins or two deciding the merits of the various contestants.

The judges decided as follows: Oration, Miss Hilda Shear; reading, Miss Woodie Hilleary; essay, Miss Chisholm; extemporaneous talk, Shaffer Staul. The debate was won by the affirmative speakers, Evan Pugh and Earl Warford, of Romney, the subject being, "Resolved, That capital punishment should be abolished in the State of West Virginia."

Principal Mahlon H. Burgess, of the Romney high school, presided. Final summing up by the judges gave Romney 70 points and Bayard 30 points.

A second contest was conducted nt Keyser between the Bayard and Keyser high schools. Those going from this section and taking part in the contest were: debaters, Ola Shaffer and Pauline Winters, of Gormania; essayist, Evelyn Williams, of Gorman; orator, Galen Duling, of Gormania; extemporaneous address, Leon Chisholm, of Gorman, and reader, Arveta Davis, of Bayard.

While losing at Bayard the above contestants from Bayard, Gormania and Gorman, won the debate, reading and tieing in the essay contest, losing only the oration and extemporaneous talk by very narrow margins, gaining 60 points out of 100.

People here and at Bayard are very much pleased with the showing made by representatives of the Bayard high school, as ten out of the twelve contestants were from this immediate section. One of the boys in the contest, Robert Durst, is aged only 12 years.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. A. H. Robinet and son Junior, of Cumberland, spent a few days here last week where they attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Rebecca Biggs.

Mr. Richard Eger, of Westernport, spent the week-end at his home in Gorman.

Mr. Harley Hawk and Sam Mason, of Detroit, Mich., returned to their homes after a few days' visit with friends in Gorman and Gormania.

Miss Edith Wainer, teacher in the Gorman school, spent the week-end at her home in Elkins, W. Va.

Mrs. John Parks, of Spencer, N. C., is visiting relatives here at the present time.

Miss Anna S. Dilgard returned to her home after a few weeks' visit in Uniontown where she was the guest of her mother and sister, Mrs. Godfrey Dilgard and Mrs. Wnyne Martin.

Quite a number of the people of this community attended the literary contest at Bayard between the school of that place and the Romney high school students.

Beau Brummel's Wife

Scouting around on Wednesday with Col. Bell, the following noble-looking lady was spied amidst the immense throng attending the community sale in Oakland. She was so outstanding that she eclipsed all others around her, hence nothing can be seen in the picture except the lady herself. According to Mr. Jim Bell, that was plenty.

* * *

WHO IS SHE?

The mystery woman would not divulge her name for public print but had the following to say to Scoop in a personal interview which closely touches every home in Garrett county. "I think that more merchants should participate in community sales days. There isn't any use of crawling into a hole and pulling it in after you. Yes I like Oakland, it is a good place in which to do your shopping. No, Cumberland is a good town to be from---the farther from the better. I am not in favor of companionate marriage, and I think that Al Smith would be defeated for president. Sales on all shaving creams are rare in Russia, but that doesn't affect barbers in Oakland."

Questioned further she added, "Yes, The Republican is by far the leading paper of Garrett county. Anybody who is not a subscriber should certainly send in his $1.50. I paid up my subscription and got a razor free of charge. Well, I must be going. I will have to buy a few bargains from The Republican's advertisers."

* * *

If any readers recognize the veiled personage, Scoop will appreciate an early reply. Rumor has it that she is from the Bear Hill section.

It's A Long Journey

Reeves Blandford--Why do you call me Pilgrim?

Withheld Permanently

Last week Scoop thought that he might publish the name of the owner of the "still" which was discovered by Col. Bell and himself, but made other arrangements on Friday when an unexpected caller was found parked on the typewriter in the private office.

After an argument lasting just exactly four minutes and thirty-five seconds with all the argument on the side of the party of the first part, Scoop decided then and there that one open razor, an axe and a boomerang were to be considered more seriously than his duty to the public in exposing the criminal. A little "hush" money fixed the deal for all time.

FORMER GARRETT COUNTY MAN KILLED IN AUTO UPSET

Blair I. Neville, One-time Garage Owner in Oakland, Dies as Result of Fracture of the Skull

Blair I. Neville, aged 25, of Bell Run, near Fairmont, W. Va., and formerly of near White Church, Garrett county, was killed shortly after 8:00 o'clock Saturday night near Cascade, on the Morgantown-Kingwood Highway as a result of an automobile accident. Sam Davis, of Dellslow, W. Va., was placed in jail at Morgantown on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Neville's skull was fractured when he was thrown from his car to the road and he died instantly.

The Davis car, State troopers allege, struck the Neville auto as it was rounding a sharp turn. The left front fender of the Davis car struck the left front wheel of the Studebaker car in which Neville and his brother Carl, who was but slightly injured, were riding, and then swerved and collided with the rear of the Studebaker. The occupants of the Davis car were not injured to any extent. It is said that Davis was driving his car on borrowed license plates.

The body of young Neville was taken to Morgantown, prepared for burial and later transported to Fairmont. Neville was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Neville, who moved to Morgantown about two years ago from their farm located near Gorman in Garrett county. He is survived by three brothers and two sisters. One brother, I. L. Neville, is cashier of the First National Bank at Bayard.

At the time of his death, Neville was chief electrician for the Continental Coal Company at its Diamond mine at Rivesville, W. Va . He left Oakland about eight years ago. Previous to this he was engaged in the garage business at the corner of Alder and Second streets where the E. S. Evans garage is now located.

Funeral service for the young man were held on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Dr. Herbert E. Ketchum, pastor of the First M. E. church, Fairmont, officiating. He was assisted by Dr. W. D. Reed, former district superintendent. Interment was made in Woodlawn cemetery. The deceased was a 32nd degree Mason and buriel services were conducted by the Masonic lodge of Fairmont. He was also a member of the Elks lodge and was well known in Fairmont and Morgantown, where he resided for several years.

PYTHIANS TO CONFER LAST RANK ON TWO CANDIDATES

Davis And Thomas Members To Be Guests of Locals

Conferring of the rank of Knight on two candidates, and the entertaining of members of the Knights of Pythias lodge from Thomas and Davis will occupy the local lodge at the weekly meeting tomorrow evening in Castle hall on Third street.

The rank of Esquire was conferred upon the candidates at the last meeting and tomorrow evening will mark them as full-fledged Knights, the 3rd class to be received into the lodge during the past three months.

Kenneth Stahl was awarded a Parker pen, donated by the Oakland Pharmacy, and Henry Lauer and M. E. Lee won the attendance awards.

Following the conferring of the degree, there will be a special program, according to the chairman of the committee. The Oakland String Band will furnish the music, and there will be plenty of good eats, he added.

The Pythian building, Baltimore, has been unanimously selected as the one erected in 1927 in the Charles St. district most deserving of a certificate of architectural merit, according to an article appearing in the Baltimore Sun. It was described as "monumental, in good taste, in good scale with the street and of such a character that it will never be made trivial by more ambitious neighbors."

To Hold Meeting

There will be a meeting of the dairy committee, members of the Commercial Club, dairymen and farmers at Sunnyside Grange Hall at eight p. m. on Monday evening, states J. L. McGlone, county agent. Mr. J. P. Dugan, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railway, who has been assisting in the dairy project, will be present at this meeting.

NEAT SUM IS REALIZED FROM BENEFIT PICTURE

More Than $100 Will Be Net Proceeds of Entertainment

More than $100 will be realized from the benefit picture given Tuesday night and again last night under the auspices of the Oakland Boys' Band, it was announced last night at the Maryland Theatre. This sum, along with several donations made, will total quite a tidy sum, Mr. Gilbert, the director, said.

The picture, "Shanghai Bound," was a thrilling drama of life on a China river front and starred Richard Dix. Between shows the Boys' Band gave a concert of several selected numbers, which was well received by the audiences. It was predicted by many of the audience that before long these boys will become quite proficient and will measure up very well with like organizations in any part of the country.

Tuesday evening following the concert, Rev. C. A. Shilke gave a short talk appealing for the support of the band and thanking Mr. Gilbert and his assistants for their efforts. Last evening Rev. Walter B. Brock spoke along the same lines.

Vountary donations received during the week, irrespective of Tuesday and Wednesday nights, consisted of a check from Mr. G. S. Hamill. Other donations were made at the theatre last night.

In proof of this statement, Reverend Brock pointed out the vast empires of the past, specifically Spain and Rome, and how corruption in government, desire for power, had caused the downfall.

He then compared these defunct nations with the United States, showing the danger in continning in her policy of corruption of officials, relations with Nicarauga, etc.

The Maryland Day program was sponsored by the local post, American Legion, and commemorated the landing of Lord Baltimore's colony at St. Mary's in 1634. Only about 75 were present to hear the following program which was very short and impressive:

FIRE DEPARTMENT HOLDS AN INTERESTING MEETING

Twenty-Six of The 29 Members Were In Attendance.

Twenty-six of the 29 members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department were present at the recent meeting held in the City building where they heard several good talks.

"This kind of cooperation is what makes each citizen of Oakland feel that his property and person is being watched over by the fire department," H. P. Stuck, secretary of the organization, said yesterday.

At the business session of the department additional equipment in the way of extra hose was ordered which adds to the capacity of the department when it is called upon for action.

Applications of six men for membership in the department will be received at the next regular meeting of the organization, which will be held on April 3rd, according to Secretary Stuck. He also said that the applicants should appear in person or make their applications to F. C. Peddicord, president, or George Kerins, chief of the department.

A vote of thanks was extended to the following named ladies for their efforts in making the last meeting a success: Mrs. W. W. Dawson, Miss Edith Bolden, Mrs. Emroy Bolden, Mrs. R. L. Mason, Mrs. L. M. Fraley, Mrs. F. C. Peddicord, Mrs. Grover C. Stemple and Mrs. Bernard Gonder.

It is now time for a spring clean-up, one of the officers said. The Civic Club has done good work in the past relative to cleaning up fire hazards, and the fire department wants to cooperate with this body in having a general clean-up, reducing fire hazards and adding a general good appearance to the town in all its parts.

Motorists should recognize and yield at all times the right of way to the department, when responding to calls in line of duty. The law requires that all vehicles come to a stop on the right side of the street under such circumstances.

The department requests that any citizen who has any suggestion to make concerning fire hazards do so to members of the department or lay the matter before the City Council.

Mr. Fred. A. Thayer, mortgagee, will sell at public auction on Thursday, April 19th, in front of the Court House in Oakland, the L. A. Waters property located at the corner of Oak and Third streets. The property is improved by a large frame building which has been utilized for a number of years as a boarding house or hotel.

SERVICES FOR SUICIDE HELD MONDAY AT WILSON

Administration of Poison To Herself is Fatal to Mrs. Mary True, Formerly of Altamont

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary True, daughter of Frank McRobie, of near Altamont, who died at Casualty Hospital, Washington, on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, thirty-two hours after she had been pronounced dead by a Washington physician, following an attempt to commit suicide, were held Monday afternoon from the home of her father.

The attempt at suicide was committed last Wednesday morning while a passenger on a railway train from New York to Washington. She is said to nave administered to herself some kind of poison, presumably chloroform. The woman was discovered, apparently lifeless, in a berth on the train which arrived in Washington early Wednesday morning. A physician was called and pronounced her dead. She was taken to the morgue and after she had been placed upon a table there, attendants noticed a twitching of a muscle in her face.

The rescue squad of the Fire department and physicians were summoned and they succeeded in starting respiration and an almost normal pulse beat. She was given a blood transfusion and taken to the hospital where the efforts to fan back the faint spark of life were continued, but to no avail.

The woman was identified as Mrs. True, a widow, by descriptions furnished by Dr. Edwin P. Kolb, superintendent of Suffolk Sanatorium, Long Island, where she had been employed as a nurse. Her husband was killed in a mine accident at Kempton in 1918. Prior to going to New York she taught school in this county. Her father, Frank McRobie, is a veteran of the Civil War and resides on his farm near Altamont.

DAIRY FEED SCHOOL IS CONSIDERED A SUCCESS

Five-Day Session at Accident High School Was Instructive

The dairy feed school, conducted by Dr. DeVoe Meade, of the University of Maryland, during the past week at Accident High School, was a complete success, stated Berkeley O. Bowman, principal of the school.

The school was held under the auspices of the department of agriculture of the school in cooperation with the county agent, Mr. J. L. McGlone, and the Extension Service of the University of Maryland. Meetings were conducted in the agriculture class room alternating afternoons and evenings, the remainder of the time being taken up at Grantsville where a similar school was held by Dr. Meade under the auspices of the agriculture department of the Grantsville High School.

Despite the stormy weather conditions and almost impassable roads, the meetings opened on Monday evening with an attendance of thirteen farmers and about half as many high school students, which grew consistently throughout the week with an average attendance of approximately twenty-four farmers.

Not only did the attendance increase but also the interest and active participation in the discussions of the problems raised, according to Prof. Bowman.

The final meeting was held Friday evening at which time Dr. Meade discussed commercial feeds. This was followed by a talk from County Agent McGlone. At the conclusion of the addresses refreshments were served by the agriculture instructor, W. E. Tarbell.

A unanimous vote of thanks in appreciation of the service rendered was given Dr. Meade and the desire expressed that he return next year and conduct a similar course in the community.

Car Consumed by Fire

The Chrysler car owned by Fred. Peddicord was badly damaged by fire at a point on the Gortner road about two and a-half miles south of Oakland on Tuesday afternoon. The body of the car ignited supposedly from the exhaust pipe.

The owner of the car sent in a telephone call for the fire department and Chief Kerins took a truck to the scene of the fire and extinguished the blaze. The upper portion of the car was consumed. Insurance to the amount of $800 was carried on the automobile by the Thayer agency.

Lesson for April 1

JESUS THE SUFFERING MESSIAH

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8:27-38.
GOLDEN TEXT—Whoever will come after Me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus the Great Hero.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Heroism of Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Cost of Being Loyal to Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Interprets His Messiahship.

I. Peter's Confession of Christ (vv. 27-30).

Two questions of Jesus provoked this confession. 1. "Who do men say that I am?" (vv. 27, 28). This question referred to the opinions of the people regarding Jesus. Some believed Him to be John, the Baptist, some Elijah, and some, one of the prophets. They all recognized Him to be a teacher or prophet with more than human authority and power. Jesus was not content with this acknowledgment. Had He been satisfied with this He would not have been molested in Jerusalem, for the Jews willingly acknowledged Him as much more than a human teacher. 2. "Who say ye that I am?" (vv. 29, 30). Jesus persistently claimed to be the God man, the very Son of God incarnate. He wanted the personal opinion of the disciples concerning Himself.

II. Jesus' Teaching Concerning the Cross (vv. 31-33).

He charged the disciples not to make public His Messiahship as that would precipitate the crisis. The disciples had much need of instruction yet, to prepare them for the crucial hour of the cross.

1. What He taught (v. 31).

(1) "The Son of Man must suffer many things." He suffered physical weariness and hunger, ridicule and contempt and even misunderstanding.

(2) "Be rejected of the elders, chief priests and scribes." These were the nation's official representatives, the very ones who should have known and received Christ and recommended His reception on the part of the nation. Truly He came to His own and His own received Him not (John 1:11).

(3) "Be killed." This announcement was startling to the disciples. They had not yet come to realize that redemption was to be accomplished through the passion and the cross.

(4) "Rise again." Though this was utterly incomprehensible to the disciples, He showed them that this would be the glorious issue of His death.

2. How the disciples received His teaching (v. 32).

So unwelcome was His teaching touching the cross that Peter, the spokesman of the disciples, rebuked Him. Peter later saw through this darkness the light of glory on the hilltops beyond (1 Pet. 1:3, 4).

3. Jesus rebukes Peter (v. 33). He told Peter plainly that his attitude was due to his being under the influence of the devil.

III. Jesus Going to Jerusalem to Die (Mark 10:32-34).

Jesus went to Jerusalem with the consciousness of the awful tragedy of the cross before Him; the treachery of Judas, the fiery persecutions of the priests, the unjust judgment, the delivery to Pontius Pilate, the mocking, the scourging, the crown of thorns, the cross between malefactors, the nails and the spear all were spread before Him. He moved on to His goal, not by external necessity but a fixed purpose. He had not only come "to minister but to give His life a ransom for many." The joyous outlook of the victory which was to be accomplished through the shedding of His blood led Him forward (Heb. 12:2).

IV. The Cost of Discipleship (Mark 8:34).

The law of the Christian life is suffering. To follow Christ means to turn one's back upon the world. To repudiate the world means to incur the hatred of the world; to be Christians means to share Christ's suffering.

1. There must be denial of self (v. 34). There is a wide difference between self-denial and denial of self. All people practice self-denial, but only Christians deny self.

2. The cross must be taken up (v. 34). This means the suffering and shame which lie in the pathway of loyalty to God. To live the godly life means suffering (II Tim. 3:12).

3. Christ must be followed (v. 34). This means to have the mind of Christ (Phil. 2:5) and to perform the service of Christ. The blessed issue of following Christ is a life of freedom here and now, and eternal life hereafter.

Must Cry Unto God

It is not enough for the soul to be in need; the soul must also cry unto God. Need alone is the begetter of despair, but need with crying is the birthplace of prayer. The very distresses the soul is in are the birthtroes of such prayer.—James H. McConkey.

Sin Is No More

Whenever a man gets to the blood of Jesus Christ he is done with the sin question.—B. B. King.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

Blow Some My Way.

A farmer at McHenry called a local physician over the telephone yesterday and said:

"Doctor, my horse has the heaves."

The doctor advised him to consult a veterinarian.

Farmer, "Let me finish. I did see a vet. and he told me to blow a certain powder up the horse's nose through a quill."

Doctor, "What has this to do with—"

Farmer, "I need treatment; the horse blew first."

Call For Your Prize.

Scoop was absolutely swamped with mail this week containing answers to his big prize contest. Lack of space here does not permit using all of the answers but some will be printed. If the winner will call at The Republican office he will receive a crocheted milk strainer and a week's subscription to Garrett county's best newspaper.

"Because you can believe everything they say."

"They are thinner than they used to be."

"They have forms."

"They are news carriers."

"The newspaper tells only half and a woman tells it all."

"Both have bold faced types."

"Some are well worth looking over."

"Back numbers are not much in demand."

"They are not afraid to speak their minds—they have great influence and if they know anything they usually tell it."

"Because it is so very popular."

"They are always found in public places."

"They always have the last word."

The winner may receive the reward by calling at The Republican office and asking for Scoop.

She's Coming Back.

The mystery woman of last week, by her special interview with Scoop, was brought to the attention of Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley and he extended her an official invitation to visit Oakland frequently and stay a reasonable length of time in order that those who did not get to town on the last community sales day might have an opportunity to pass their opinion on her peculiar style of beauty.

She maintained her mysterious air regarding her name and address, but she promised to come back. So keep a lookout for her. She can't be mistaken.

Fishing Season's Begun.

A trip to Col. Bell's office on Tuesday revealed the fact that he was so busy taking pictures for the High School annual, The Oak, that he would have no time to go on a scouting expedition with Scoop, so he merely opened a window of his studio and took a snap shot which caught Jim Painter fishing out in Liberty street in one of the many lakes and reservoirs abounding on that thoroughfare. A string of carp hanging by his side leads one to believe that he had been successful in his angling. But Jim is an old hand at the game and can get fish where all others fail. Next week he says he is going to try his luck on Second street if the condition of the weather is favorable and he is not otherwise engaged.

Send in Your Answers.

Since the last inquiry about women and newspapers was so successful, Scoop is going to give another prize for the correct answer to the following problem:

There were two holes in a tree. It required five minutes for a squirrel to make the first trip from one hole to another. The second trip the squirrel gained five seconds; the third trip he made a like gain in time and so on with each succeeding trip. Now how long did it take before he was able to look out of both holes at the same time?

If It's Not One Thing—

Since putting Jerry Stanton's name in The Republican last Thursday, Bill Shaffer, of Shaffer's Taxi, called on Scoop and said it was a distinct show of partiality to Stanton's Taxi Service. He said he knew of lots of people who never got their name in the paper and he was one of them. So to keep peace in the family—Mr. William Shaffer.

Sixteen marriage licenses were issued during the week ending Tuesday at noon at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, making a total for the present month 57, according to A. G. Four of the licenses issued during the week were marked "don't publish," while the application of one couple was refused on account of the youthfulness of one of the interested parties.

"BLUE RIBBON CHILDREN 100 PER CENT HEALTHY

Is the Aim of the State Department of Health.

With the idea of having the children who will enter school next fall "Blue Ribbon Children 100 per cent Healthy," or as near that as possible, arrangements are being made by the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, in cooperation with the Parent-Teacher Associations and the State Department of Education, for the early examination of children who will reach school age this year, so that conditions that need correction may be discovered and corrected before the children start in to school.

In addition to the health conference that is held each month in each county, under the auspices of the Bureau for babies and young children, there will be special conferences for the prospective first-graders. In the examinations of the older children, particular attention will be given to the weight, heart, lungs, vision, hearing, throat, nose and teeth, because of their important bearing upon the general health of the child and upon his freedom from, or susceptibility to, disease.

A recent report of the Bureau of Child Hygiene shows that 6,725 babies and young children were examined at the health conferences held thruout the counties in 1927, and that over half of that number—3,627—were between four and seven years old. There were 419 conferences in connection with which 267 places were visited.

Of the 6,725 children examined, more than one-fourth were in need of dental attention, 1,818 having decayed teeth. Unfavorable throat and nose conditions came next, 1,321 having enlarged tonsils and 332 infected tonsils. Adenoids were found to be present in one out of every ten—650—and 268 were mouth breathers. Nearly one-seventh—908—were underweight and 14 were overweight. Unfavorable heart conditions were found in 82 and lung conditions below par in 62. Bone changes due to rickets were observed in 471, and faulty posture in 116. Hearing was impaired in 39 and diseased conditions of the ears in 46. Vision was defective in 75. Mental retardation was observed in 32. Over two-thirds of the older children—2,049—had not been immunized against smallpox, and the parents were notified that in accordance with the Maryland law the children could not be admitted to school until they were vaccinated.

IS THE WORLD GETTING BETTER OR WORSE?

Some older friends of ours are sadly shaking their heads over the sins of this wicked and perverse generation in which we live. Alas, they say, nobody any longer has any respect for the law of the country or the law of God. The whole nation is plunging down grade on a wild joy ride that is certain to end in a grand smash-up.

Wistfully they look back to "the good old days" when folks had some decency, some sense, some idea of right and wrong.

Is it really true that the world is "going to the dogs?" Or are we mistaken in so believing?

Memory is a strange faculty. Most remarkable are the tricks which it plays. Listen to the old Civil War veteran tell his story. Notice how he prefers to dwell upon the bloodiest moment of Antietam; how his eyes gleam when he tells about "hell's trap" at Gettysburg; how he seems to gloat over the horrors of Libby's prison. The experiences which must have been most unpleasant at the time they happened seem to give him the most exquisite pleasure in retrospect.

Not one of us likes to go t othe hospital for an operation; but, oh dear, how we enjoy telling about it a year later.

This is the magic touch of memory that gilds the ugly facts of the past with a glamor of poetry and crowns the sorrows and sufferings of by-gone days with a halo whose existence we certainly never suspected at the time.

This is the alchemy of memory that transforms the tragedies of yesterday into the comedies of today. What a blessing it is. How wonderful is the ministry of memory to human happiness.

But, while we thank God for this ministry, at the same time we must not let ourselves be deceived into thinking that the past really was so much better and nobler than the present. This deception is responsible for the incorrigible opinion of so many people that the world is "going to the dogs," that there used to be a golden age long, long ago.

The careful study of history teaches us that the golden age was in many ways no better than the age in which we live, and in some ways may have been worse.

"God is not the God of the dead, but of the living." God rules the world, yesterday, today, yea, and forever. And Divine Providence is still guiding humanity upward toward the light, slowly and falteringly because of our willful blindness, but nevertheless irressistibly because the love of God is even more obstinate than human folly.

Which Will You Save?

YOU can save pennies or save chicks. Poultry yard facts show that ordinary untested rations and mixtures such as hard boiled eggs and oatmeal save pennies but not chicks. Usually 50% of them die. Poultrymen who are making money invest one penny more per chick and save 90 to 100% of their chicks. They feed Purina Chick Startena, the buttermilk starting ration containing Cod Liver Oil. We'll be glad to tell you of a feeding plan that's as simple as A B C. It saves chicks and brings them through to early maturity.

Important Announcement

to every owner of a Model T Ford

ON MAY 25, 1927, when Henry Ford first announced his plans for making a new car, he announced also that he would continue to make parts for the Model T Ford. He said:

"The Model T Ford car was a pioneer. It blazed the way for the motor industry and started the movement for good roads everywhere. It broke down the barriers of distance in rural sections, brought people in these sections closer together, and placed education within the reach of everyone. We are still proud of the Model T Ford. If we were not, we would not have continued to make it so long."

For twenty years, the Model T Ford led the automobile industry and it still serves more people than any other automobile. Over one-third of all the automobiles in use today are Model T Fords — an indication of the sturdy worth of the car and its value to people in all walks of life the world over.

The Ford Motor Company will continue to make replacement parts for these cars "until the last Model T is off the road." That is a part of Ford service. That is what Henry Ford meant when he said: "We believe that when a man buys one of our cars we should keep it running for him as long as we can and at the lowest up-keep cost."

Because of this policy a considerable part of the Ford manufacturing plants is given over to the making of parts for the Model T Ford. These replacement parts are made of the same material and in the same way as those from which your car was originally assembled.

Make it a point, therefore, to see the nearest Ford dealer and have him look over your Model T Ford. You may find that a very small expenditure will enable you to get thousands of miles of additional service, and at the same time protect the money you have invested in your car.

FOR BETTER CITIZENSHIP

There is no better place for a boy past the age of 17 years to spend one month of his summer vacation than at one of the training spots of the Citizens' Military Training camps, which will open this year on July 6.

Military is a harsh sounding word, and if one lets his imagination run rampant he thinks only of German militarism and everlasting hard work and never thinks of the other side of milltary training. But it is there and plays an important part in the work of the month in camp.

There will be taught in these camps elements of citizenship which will be new to the trainees, but which are necessary if the young soldiers-in-the-making are to take their proper place in the affairs of the nation.

There will be instruction in military tactics, because that is the basic reason for these camps, but along with the military part of camp life there will come association with the citizens from all parts of the country, wholesome recreations in the form of athletics, games, theatrical and moving picture entertainment, dances, facilities for swimming and other exercise, an opportunity to make week-end visits to places of interest which one will value for a lifetime. That is only a small part of the value of this month's stay in camp at the expense of Uncle Sam.

Physical and moral development that will fit one to become an influential leader in his community in times of peace and a leader of national defense in time of war and to inculcate a stronger patriotism and a wholesome respect for discipline and obedience to constituted authority is the ultimate aim of these training centers.

Anyone desiring to enter the camp should make arrangements now to attend this summer.

"AWAY ON BUSINESS"—

How often the editor of a paper is told of some local item of interest AFTER the paper has been printed, would be impossible to calculate, but ever so often someone comes up to him and says, "Didn't you know that I was away for a few days last week?" No, the editor did not know, and he is extremely sorry, but the least he can do, and he usually does it, is to remind the gentleman that a little note slipped beneath the door, a telephone call or a postcard mailed at the postoffice telling of his absence and when he would return, would be all that was necessary to keep anything like that from happening a second time.

Newspapers have their regular sources for news. Public officials, justices of the peace, court house attaches, and others who have business with the general public are interviewed quite regularly by the reporter who makes it a duty to see these persons at least once a week, but if he attempted to do that with each family in Oakland it would be found to be an impossibility.

The newspaper staff tries to know everybody's business as it affects the newspaper as a legitimate source of news, but its members are not perfect—they sometimes fail.

If those who are always lamenting the fact that their little visit away from home went by unnoticed would just drop The Republican a line, it would be gladly published. Parties and visitors to one's home are news items which are also gladly accepted. By helping in this way one can make The Republican an ideal county newspaper as it has endeavored to be ever since its establishment.

John Swauger Arrested on Bootleg Charges

John Swauger, of near Bittinger, was arrested on Monday by Federal Prohibition officers, charged with the manufacture and possession of liquor. He appeared before a justice in Oakland on Tuesday and gave bond for his appearance at court. Two gallons of moonshine liquor and three barrels of mash are said to have been found on his premises when the raid was made.

MARYLAND CMTC QUOTA THIS YEAR IS SET AT 680

Applications To Attend Military Training Camps May Be Obtained Upon Request.

Six hundred and eighty Marylanders are to receive training at the Citizen's Military Training camps in the Third Corps area this summer from July 6 to August 4 for the basic and infantry courses, cavalry, field artillery and coast artillery, and August 3 to September 1 for the signal corps, according to information received at The Republican office.

Basic and infantry courses will be given at Fort Eustis, Va.; field artillery courses, red, white and blue, will be given at Fort Hoyle, Md.; coast artillery, red, white and blue, at Fort Monroe, Va., and cavalry, red, white and blue, at Fort Meyer, Va. The signal corps will be trained at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Preparations are now going forward at the big military post on the James River (Fort Eustis) for the reception of the trainees, Col. Joseph P. Tracy, coast artillery corps, has been designated as commanding officer of the camp, and plans are under way for the comfort and welfare of the young men who are to spend their vacations at Uncle Sam's expense at the Peninsula post.

Brings Citizens Together.

The object of the trainlng camp is to bring together the best representative young American citizens to give them the basis of military instruction and that physical and moral development that will fit them to become influential leaders in their respective communities in times of peace and leaders of national defense in time of war and to inculcate a stronger patriotism and a wholesome respect for discipline and obedience to constituted authority.

Wholesome recreation has always occupied a prominent part in the object of these camps, including Fort Eustis, where the beginners will be taken. There are the best motion pictures, theatricals, dances supervised by hostesses, swimming facilities, an extensive library and opportunities for week-end excursions to a number of points of interest.

Application Blanks.

Young men between the ages of 17 and 24 are eligible for the basic course and application blanks to attend the Fort Eustis camp may be obtained by writing the recreation officer, Fort Eustis, Va. The Government pays all necessary expenses—transportation to and from camp, food, uniforms, medical attention and laundry.

There are no personal expenses at camp except purchases and expenditures one chooses to make from pocket money. After acceptance and orders are received, applicants pay own fare to camp and will be repaid after arrival at camp at the rate of five cents per mile or will be mailed a transportation request for a railroad ticket which will be accepted by the railroad.

Physical requirements are given in the CMTC application blank, which must be filled out. A physical examination is required for first year men, also smallpox vaccination and typhoid inoculation.

GORTNER.

The sympathy of the people far and wide was aroused by the news of the sudden death of Mrs. Walter Beckman. Many of the residents in this community learned to know and love her when she participated in the Lynn Dale services.

Mr. Walter Wiles is quite ill, his condition having been brought about by a leakage of the heart and Bright's disease.

Among the dinner guests at the home of S. J. Lichty on Sunday were Mrs. Leah Bachman, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pritts, of Berlin, Pa., and Messrs. Jacob and D. L. Swartzentruber and families of this community.

Miss Pearl Swires of Lynndale, and Mr. Walter Schlossnagle, of this place, were married at the Lutheran parsonage at Red House on Saturday evening.

Our school teacher, Miss Virginia Casteel, is ill at this time as are also a number of her pupils. Miss Elizabeth West is teaching in Miss Casteel's place while she is indisposed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeWitt returned to their home at Hoyes on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Swartzentruber, Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein, Misses Fannie Yoder and Mary Lichty spent Wednesday at the Children's Home near Grantsville where they assisted in diminishing the contents of the mending basket.

Mrs. Hattie Wamsley returned on Monday from Philippi, W. Va. where she had visited her sister, Mrs. Whitehair. Mrs. Wamsley is now staying with Mr. Walter Beckman and children at Lynn Dale.

OAKLAND A. A. ENJOYED GOOD BASKETBALL SEASON

Claims Tie With Cumberland Caseys for State Honors—Won 15 Games—22 Played

Oakland A. A. basketball team enjoyed a very successful season, winning 15 out of 22 games played, according to a compilation of figures made by the manager yesterday. Ten of the 22 games played were on foreign courts and out of this number five were put on the credit side of the ledger.

McComas Leads Scorers.

Henry McComas was the leading scorer for the season, with 114 field goals, 25 out of 59 fouls, for a total of 253 points. Killen was next with 102 field goals and 18 out of 53 fouls, for a total of 222 points.

Defeated Caseys.

The local team holds a victory ovet the Knights of Columbus team, Cumberland City champs, which has lately been erroneously claiming the championship of the State, and have won games from the following: Kingwood, Fairmont Y, Keyser Night Hawks, Davis Eagles, 2; Berlin, Meyersdale, 2; Tri-Towns Collegians, B. & O. Y of Cumberland, Masontown, 2; Cumberland Caseys, and Hazel-Atlas of Grafton, 2.

Potomac State College was the only team to defeat the locals twice, winning at Oakland 46-33 and at Keyser 46-34. Oakland also lost games to Wesleyan College Barnstormers, the Fairmont Y, Berlin, Kingwood and the Cumberland Caseys. Seven hundred sixty-three points were scored to 689 for their opponents.

Points Scored.

| | G | F.G | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| Killen | 102 | 18-53 | 22 |
| McComas | 114 | 25-59 | 253 |
| Wolf | 23 | 5 8 | 51 |
| Rice | 3 | 0-0 | 6 |
| Bolden | 23 | 7-18 | 53 |
| Hollen | 1 | 1-5 | 3 |
| Kahl | 2 | 0-0 | 4 |
| Nally | 26 | 2-10 | 51 |
| Hanst | 53 | 11-25 | 117 |

A communication from W. Arnold Gunther, manager of the Cumberland Caseys, states that he will not consider a third game with the Oakland team except with a side bet of $150. "The game will not be played under any terms but those of a sportsman," the Oakland manager stated. "The rubber of a series is never settled in that way, and if they do not choose to play the third game the Oakland Collegians have as much right to lay claim to the State championship as the Cumberland team."

POSTOFFICE WINS TITLE MATCH FROM METHODISTS

The five members of the Postoffice team, Peddicord, Mason, Eggers, Hoffman and Kercheval, rolled a total of 2894 pins for the five games, while the Methodists, composed of Sincell, Smith, Spiker, McIntire and Ashby, rolled a total of 2624 pins. Mason was high individual scorer.

Banquet Tonight.

Tonight at 6:30 o'clock at the Willian-James Hotel, the second of the bowling banquets for members and friends of the bowling league will be held. There will be a few short talks, Bill Gibson, manager, stated, and some special musical numbers. We are passing through another wintry season but are hoping that it will soon be over.

The old refreshment stand and book store are being torn down and will be rebuilt in the grove south of Thoburn Inn. Many children spent the day searching for coins which were supposed to have been dropped thru the porch floor at these buildings.

ZIHLMAN, MAYOR OF WASHINGTON, IS VERY POPULAR

The Chairman of the House District Committee frequently is called the "Mayor of Washington" and that's a title Representative Frederick Nicholas Zihlman ("Fred" to some and "Nick" to others), often hears applied to him. Born in Pennsylvania in 1879, he moved to Cumberland, Md., with his parents when he was three years old. At eleven he was working in a glass factory and he stuck to that work for many years, becoming prominent in trade union councils and serving one term as president of the Maryland State Federation of Labor. He quit the glass trade to enter real estate work in Cumberland in 1912. Previously he had been elected State Senator from Allegany county and first came to Congress in 1917. He was defeated for one term, but returned the next time and has been in the Lower House since. He has two hobbies—fishing and work. He says the main hobby now is District bills. He is a Methodist and married.

Because of the highly efficient work as Chairman of the District Committee—Mayor of Washington—Mr. Zihlman is practically as popular in the capital of the nation as he is in his own home district, which is saying a great deal. In fact, it is generally admitted throughout the Sixth District that Congressman Zihlman will have no opposition in the primary this year and will probably continue invulnerable for a long time to come.

Perhaps no Congressman from the Sixth District has ever enjoyed greater popularity with the people of his district than has Mr. Zihlman. To most of the voters he is known as "Fred" or "Nick."—Washington (D. C.) Times.

O. H. S. News Notes.

Start saving your pennies now! Big play coming! "Kicked Out of College" to be given by the Civics Club of the school on April 19 at the Maryland Theatre.

Mr. Delbert Davis, cashier of the First National Bank, visited the O. H. S. on Monday, March 26, and gave a very interesting talk on Maryland in celebration of Maryland Day.

The Modern European History class gave a demonstration lesson on a period of the French Revolution, Tuesday afternoon, the 27th, before the history teachers of the county. The pupils did excellent work and were highly complimented by Mr. W. K. Klingaman, visiting supervisor from Baltimore.

Mr. Jim Bell, photographer, is making group pictures for the forthcoming annual "The Oak." The book will be up to the standard of former years and will prove interesting to everybody.

On last Friday, March 23, the Problems of American Democracy class gave a play entitled, Parlor Matches, which was one of the most entertaining plays ever given by the students of the school. Leonard made an excellent butler and his sweetheart Mary Grace worked out her part with a naturalness and ease only surpassed by a professional. Ruth, as a worldly matron of today, is worthy of special mention. Irva and Evelyn were excellent, the former for the pep and vim she evidenced in her role, and the latter for her easy, care free, happy, joyous manner thruout the play. Both Bobs were fine. Bob Stemple provoked lots of laughter and Bob Stanton, with his leading lady, Beryldine, gave the audience plenty of opportunity for real enjoyment, and Jim, of course, was his usual, natural self on the stage and made love beautifully to Evelyn. But oh, what an end to the whole production did Leonard and Mary Grace give!

And last, but not least, is Martha Townshend and her theatrical troop who certainly sang their song, dedicated to Mr. Rathbun, in a most creditable way.

Many thanks are due to all those who helped make the play a success. The money earned will go toward purchasing the latest set of the Books of Knowledge for the school library.

Mr. E. W. Kelso, On a Trip Through The Southewest, Writes Further of His Observations—Yuma, Arizona, Said to be the Hottest Place in the United States, Is Now His Stopping Place.

To the Editor of The Republican.

I am now in Yuma, Arizona, the town that has the reputation of being the hottest place this side of hades. This may have been the expression of a humoristic newspaper writer, but they do tell me that it becomes very hot here sometimes. Nevertheless, this heat is an asset in many respects as it enables the horticulturalist to grow oranges and grapefruit and a large variety of early vegetables, and the climate lures many tourists from the north to escape the cold.

Yuma is quite different from what I had in mind from reading concerning it and the country hereabouts.

I took leave of Phoenix, March 21 and arrived in Yuma that same morning, a distance of 200 miles making only one stop enroute.

When the train arrived at Yuma I counted twenty Indian squaws sprawled flat on the depot platform exhibiting their different wares to prospective buyers. Practically all were elderly women and I noted they were very generous in the length of their skirts.

The Southern Pacific depot at Yuma is large and substantially built. The railway company in Yuma county is assessed for $8,000,000. The payroll of this company in Yuma nlone is $90,000 per month.

Yuma claims 8,000 population and is situated at an altitude of 137 feet. I note that all the vacant lots consist of sand dunes and requires much labor to level off.

It is very warm near the Colorado River and in the business section of the town, but several blocks south of Yuma is what the people call a hill nnd upon which the Carnegie library is located. It is about 25 feet higher than the town proper and here one may enjoy a cooling breeze. The town has many good streets and mercantile establishments of every kind, and there are several banks and newspapers. It is well supplied with hotels, restaurants, etc.

There are several churches and high and grammar school buildings of large size with all modern conveniences.

The city hall is a nice building and the old court house is now being torn down to give place to a new building.

For fourteen miles the main irrigation canal flows through the State of California, being conducted to the Arizona side through an immense inverted siphon fourteen feet in diameter. The siphon is beneath the Colorado River and carries sufficient water for all land on the Arizona side. I made a visit to this point and in my opinion the construction of the siphon is a great engineering feat.

Water is lifted ten feet, being pumped by electric power to the mesa land, thus enabling farmers to grow oranges and grapefruit and early vegetables. What is meant by mesa land in that portion of the country that is higher than the valley land. I am told that mesa land is free of frost for many weeks after the frost has struck in the valley.

I walked two miles to the orange and grapefruit groves, but the fruit had been picked early in February. I could not get definite information as to the number of acres in groves, but I could see that they covered a great area. The groves are cultivated by means of a harrow drawn by a small tractor.

A short distance over what they call a hill the land gradually becomes level and the streets of Yuma are lined on either side by tall eucalyptus trees, giving the town a cheerful appearance.

Prior to 1905, when the Government first begun the construction of the dam, Yuma was a mere whistling station, but it has all the modern improvements and conveniences of any town of its size at this time.

Just across the river is the State of California. I met an Indian bringing a load of newly cut alfalfa and I am told that on the Arizona side of the river seven cuttings each year are harvested.

Dates, figs and many varieties of fruit are grown in the valley. Cotton averages a bale or more to the acre. Dairy and poultry interests are very profitable in the valley also.

The travel eastward on the trains as well as by auto, indicates that the easterners are now returning to their homes.

It has occurred to me that other persons perhaps had the same in mind about Yuma that I had, gathered from outside information, and I write this short letter in justice to the citizens of Yuma and the many tourists sojourning here. E. W. KELSO.

Yuma, Ariz., March 24, 1928.

VACCINATION AGAINST TYPHOID FEVER ADVISED

State Board of Health Issues A Note of Warning.

With the beginning of spring and the thoughts it brings of the open road, a reminder comes from Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Board of Health that the typhoid season will soon be here and advising those who have not been vaccinated against the disease recently to be protected against it.

"Vaccination against typhoid should be renewed every two or three years," he said. "If you have not been vaccinated against the disease within that time, go to your doctor or to the nearest health officer and take the three treatments that are necessary to protect yourself. The State Department of Health can and does protect you by all the means within its power—particularly by treating each case that is reported as a possible source of danger to others; by the sanitary supervision of public water supplies and the sanitary supervision of foods, but there are limits beyond which it cannot go. In vaccination against typhoid each individual has a means of protecting himself. My advice is to use it. The State Department of Health furnishes the vaccine free of charge. Your doctor's fee is all that your own protection will cost you."

There were fewer deaths from typhoid in Maryland last year than in any year since the records of the disease have been kept. The death rate from typhoid—that is, the deaths in proportion to the population, was the lowest in the history of the State.

A report just issued by the State Department of Health of the sanitary engineering activities of the department last year, with special reference to the protection of public water supplies from contamination and to the extension of facilities for the disposal of sewage, shows that nearly half of the deaths from typhoid in the counties in 1927 occurred in communities of less than 1000 population, and mainly in sections not served by supervised water supplies or in isolated communities using private water supplies.

In 1922, when the population of the State was considerably smaller than it is now, there were 2,874 cases of typhoid, 1,791 in the counties and 1,083 in Baltimore City, with 463 deaths, 228 in the counties and 136 in Baltimore City. Last year there were 874 cases—725 in the counties and 149 in Baltimore City, with 91 deaths—74 in the counties and 17 in Baltimore City. If the typhoid rates were in force now that prevailed fifteen years ago, the deaths from typhoid in 1927 would have been more than 500 and more than 4,000 persons would have been ill with the disease.

"Fortunately for the people of Maryland, Dr. Fulton said, "typhoid is not the menace it was in 1912. But when you realize that neadly 900 people in the State had typhoid in 1917 you can see that we have a long way to go before the disease is completely controlled. My advice to those who have not been protected against it is be vaccinated against typhoid."

MORE BOYS IN THE FIRST SIX GRADES OF SCHOOLS

But Girls Predominate from Seventh Through the Secondary Classes. Superintendent Says

More boys than girls are in the first six grades of schools in Maryland, but from the seventh grade through the fourth year in high schools girls predominate in every class, Albert S. Cook, State Superintenrent, said recently. Boys, Mr. Cook explained, leave school in large numbers as they reach higher grades. Mr. Cook based his statement on a recent survey by the State Department of Education.

"In Maryland counties, as in the rest of the country, the first grade has a much larger enrollment than any other grade—18,070 boys and girls," Mr. Cook said. "Approximately 14,700 pupils are enrolled in the second grade, 14,300 in the third and 14,000 in the fourth. Thereafter there is a decrease in each succeeding grade. In the fourth year of high school a total of 3,067 students are enrolled.

Increases in Year Noted.

"There is an increase in enrollment, however, over that found in the preceding year in every grade, except in the third and fifth among boys, and in the third through the sixth among girls. The increases are due to the gain in school population and the greater holding power of the seventh and high school grades."

Mr. Cook said that there has been a steady increase in the number of white elementary school graduates since 1923.

In 1927 there were 4,290 boys and 5,059 girls who graduated from elementary schools. The total was 700 more than in 1926. The number of boy graduates increased by one-third from 1923 to 1927, while the girl graduates increased slightly more than one-fifth, Mr. Cook said.

Counties Leading in Graduates

The proportion of the white graduates in the total elementary school enrollment, exclusive of kindergartens, is the highest in Talbot, Garrett, Kent, Montgomery, Baltimore and Prince George's counties. The three counties at the bottom of the list—Allegany, Washington and Anne Arundel—rank in that order because they have eight grades in the elementary course, while the elementary schools in the other counties have only seven, Mr. Cook explained.

Mr. Cook added that the distribution of white elementary school graduates in the one-teacher, two-teacher and graded schools indicates a decrease from 1926 to 1927 in number and proportion of graduates from one-teacher schools. The distribution means an increase for two-teacher and graded schools, he explained.

Centennial of The American Peace Society Will Be Held in Cleveland, Ohio, in May, and Will Be Largely Attended By Foreign Leaders and American Notables.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Mayor Broening of Baltimore recently received an invitation to attend the centennial of the American Peace Society to be held in Cleveland about the middle of May.

The Mayor replied that he could not accept the invitation on account of official duties. Had he heen able to attend he would have had as fellow guests some of the most noted men of today.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Minister of foreign affairs, Hon. Aristide Briand, French Minister of foreign affairs, Dr. Gustav Stressemann, German Minister of foreign affairs, and President Calvin Coolidge are among those who will attend and also address the conference.

These and other men of outstanding international influence and responsibility will be among the speakers. "The church, including the Quakers, government officials, universities, peace organizations of every stripe, Daughters of the American Revolution, Kiwanis clubs, chambers of commerce are but a few of the groups kindly offering to help the Celebration.

The American Peace society is a corporation under the laws of Massachusetts and was organized in 1828 by William Ladd of Maine, aided by David Low Lodge of New York.

Its purpose is to prevent the injustices of war by extending the methods of law and order among the nations, and to educate the people everywhere in what an ancient lawgiver called "the constant and unchanging will to give to everyone his due." Among its presidents were, first, David Low Lodge, and from 1920 to 1924 Hon. Andrew Jackson Montague, former governor of Virginia.

The National Executive committee of the American Legion meeting at Indianapolis, January 14, 1928, resolved that

WHEREAS, The American Peace Society is to observe in May, 1928, the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of that Society by holding its convention in the city of Cleveland, Ohio, and by sponsoring in connection with that convention a gathering of distinguished representatives of the leading nations of the world at a so-called World Conference on International Justice.

RESOLVED (after many favoring clauses), That the National Executive Committee of the American Legion hereby expresses the belief that on this basis the forthcoming World Conference on International Justice sponsored by the American Peace Society, has great potential promise of substantial and well directed progress toward the promotion of peace and good will as sought in accordance with the principles of the American Leagion in a sane, conservative, constructive and loyal advance toward an honorable, self-respecting international peace; and be it further

RESOLVED, That National Headquarters of the American Legion announce an attitude of helpful encouragement.

"There is reason for believing that the coming Cleveland celebration will result in a co-ordination of many agencies concerned to place the peace movement once again upon its enduring principles," says an article in a recent magazine." "A co-ordination perhaps unprecedented in the history of America. Peace and patriotic organizations can and ought to be shoulder to shoulder in this peculiarly American enterprise of finding substitutes for war." F. J. C.

Baltimore, March 27, 1928.

Mr. Franklin Killen, of Terra Alta, West Va., is in Oakland today on business.

Messrs. "Boots" Englehart and John Varner, Kingwood, were here Tuesday evening.

DEER PARK MAN HANGS SELF IN BARN TUESDAY

Found Suspended from Beam by Son Whom He Had Sent to the House on Small Errand

Jesse Long, 53 years of age, a farmer of near Deer Park, ended his life early Tuesday morning by hanging himself in the barn on his farm. The man was despondent, it is believed, because of ill health, and had made an unsuccessful attempt to end his life by hanging five months ago.

Long went to the barn shortly befor 5 o'clock to perform his usual chores, and was accompanied by his son, John. He sent the boy back to the house to secure a milk pail and during his absence the man attached one end of the rope to a beam in the hay-mow, placed the noose about his neck, and then jumped through the opening in the floor. His feet dangled less than six inches from the barn floor when his ten-year-old son, returning from the house, discovered the suspended body.

The lad cut the rope and summoned his mother, who sent for Dr. Edward E. Sollars. Long was alive when his son discovered him but expired before the physician arrived.

Investigation was conducted by Sheriff W. D. Casteel, and Joy Grifiith, deputy, and they concluded that an inquest was unnecessary. Long and his family were preparing to move on that day, it was stated. Five months previous, when he attempted to take his life the first time, he was also preparing to move.

Long was employed on the farm known as the Grimes property, formerly the summer home of John W. Williams.

He is survived by his widow and five children. Funeral services were held today.

FEW MARYLANDERS FILING FOR C. M. T. C. PRIVILEGE

Pennsylvania Has Produced Largest Number of Applicants

Marlyanders are on the point of being crowded out of Citizens' Military training Camps by Pennsylvanians, it was learned yesterday from the headquarters of the Third Corps Area. Unless a large number of applications are received from Maryland soon, practically all vacancies will have been filled by young men from Pennsylvania, it was said. None have been reported from Garrett county.

County's Total in Ten.

Garrett county will be entitled to send 10 young men, according to Mr. E. E. English, Friendsville, who has charge of this work Applications will be given preference in the order they are received, he said, and those wishing to attend should act quickly.

The total number of "trainees" in the Third Corps Area, which embraces Maryland, Virginia, the District of Columbia and Pennsylvania, authorized hy Congress, is 4,300. Of this total, 3,654 had been enrolled March 30 and only 111 were registered from the entire state of Maryland, with fifty-one of the 111 from Baltimore City.

Maryland Has Fewest

While Virginia and the District of Columbia have supplied a larger proportion of the quota than Maryland, it is Pennsylvania that so far has practically filled the camps. The greater proportion of the Pennsylvanians are registered from the western part of the State.

Training camp officers are gratified by the many requests for training that have been received this year in advance of any effort to enlist them. The number is far in excess of any previous year. They are at a loss to explain the apparent lack of interest in the camps manifested in Baltimore and in Maryland generally.

Trainees' Expenses Paid

In pointing out the advantages of attendance at these summer camps, officers at Third Corps Area headquarters said that all necessary expenses will be paid for those accepted, from the time they leave home until they return.

Mockers at religion are not wanted at the camps, it is specifically announced in the publicity issued by the Third Corps Area C. M. T. C. officer, who states that "a religious atmosphere prevades these camps." Selected chaplains of representative denominations are charged with looking after the religious and moral welfare of their respective communicants.

An Easter service will be held in the Episcopal church at Swanton on Sunday evening, April 8 at 7:45. Rev. Linaweaver will conduct the services. Everybody invited to attend.

THE SUNDAY "BLUE LAWS" IN GARRETT EXPLAINED (?)

Law Prohibiting Sunday Fishing Will Be Enforced, Says State's Attorney J. C. Renninger.

The following communication to Fred. C. Dreyer, of Cumberland, relative to the Sunday "Blue Laws" in Garrett county, are self explanatory, says the Cumberland News of yesterday, in which paper appeared the correspondence between the Cumberland man and the State Game Warden, as well as the opinion of the Attorney-General of Maryland, reading as follows:

Mr. Fred C. Dreyer,
Cumberland, Md.

Dear Friend Fred:—I have your letter of the 28th inst., stating you were enclosing a copy of letter you wrote to Mr. Renninger, State's Attorney of Garrett County. However, you did not enclose same but enclosed a copy of the letter which you wrote to me.

Relative to the Sunday "Blue Law" of Garrett County, which prohibits fishing on the Sabbath day, I am enclosing to you an opinion rendered by the Attorney-General of this State to this department under date of April 30th, 1925, and you will note the last paragraph states that he does not think the game warden or deputies are bound to enforce this law, but should be enforced by the sheriff or other county officials, due to the fact that it comes under the head of what is usually referred to as "blue laws."

In 1927 we instructed our Deputy Wardens in Garrett County not to enforce this act. * *

Yours very truly,
E. LEE LECOMPTE.
State Game Warden.

Mr. Renninger's Letter to District Deputy Game Warden.

Mr. H. R. Kenney,
District Deputy Game Warden,
Cumberland, Maryland.

Dear Mr. Kenney:—I have your letter of the 13th inquiring if it is against the law to fish on Sunday in Garrett county and if there be such a law whether it will be enforced.

I desire to say that by the Acts of 1896, Chapter 55, gunning and fishing on Sunday in Garrett county is prohibited by law punishable by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $50 and for the second offense not less than $20 or more than $100, and this law will be enforced in Garrett county.

Yours very truly,
J. C. RENNINGER,
State's Attorney.

Attorney-General's Opinion.

E. Lee LeCompte, Esq.,
State Game Warden,
Munsey Building,
Baltimore, Maryland.

Dear Mr. LeCompte:—Your letter of the 27th inst., in reference to fishing on Sunday in Garrett county, is received.

Chapter 55 of the Acts of 1896 makes it a misdemeanor to fish, gun or hunt on Sunday in Garrett county, and provides a penalty therefor by way of fines, one-half of which shall go to the informer and one-half to the School Commissioners of Garrett county.

Chapter 340 of the Acts of 1924 is an act defining and classifying and providing open and closed seasons for the taking of fish in the waters of the State above tide water. Section 2 of this Act provides that all General Local Laws inconsistent with it are hereby repealed to the extent of their inconsistency.

My construction of this section is that it only applies to such Acts as directly affect the subject-matter of the bill in question. In other words, if there was a Local Act which gave a different definition as to the classification of fish or which provided a different season during which the same might be caught, or a different manner for catching the same, such Act would be repealed.

Chapter 55 of the Acts of 1896, however, is not a law for the protection of fish or game, but one to compel the proper observance of the Sabbath, and comes under the head of what we usually refer to as the "Blue Laws."

Therefore, while I am of the opinion that Chapter 340 does not repeal the last mentioned Act I do not think that it is the duty of yourself or your Game Warden to enforce it, but that it should be enforced by the Sheriff or other county officers or in the manner provided in Section 2 of said Act.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) THOMAS H. ROBINSON,
Attorney-General.

It is said that the mileage advertised for will carry the road, when completed, to the foot of the mountain and will leave an uncompleted stretch of several miles between the end of the completed project and Gormania at which latter point connection is made with the West Virginia portion of the highway.

IMPRESSIVE RITES MARK BURIAL OF SENATOR WILLIS

Flag-Draped Casket Escorted By Battalion of Ohio National Guardsmen.

At Delaware, Ohio, on Tuesday of this week, occurred the funeral of Ohio's Senior Senator, Frank B. Willis, until the hour of his sudden death Friday evening a candidate for the Republican nomination for President. His body was interred in Oak Grove Cemetery with the honors of a nrst citizen, while those of opposing political faiths mingled at his graveside with his family and friends.

Down the same throng-lined street through which he rode in triumph a short while before he died Friday night, Senator Willis rode in solemn triumph again Tuesday, his flag-draped casket escorted by a battalion of the Ohio National Guard.

The street that was gay with flags and bunting when the Senator came home to speak in behalf of his presidential candidacy, Tuesday was sombre with purple, black and white crepe that adorned the buildings.

Fess Delivers Eulogy

The junior Senator from Ohio, Simeon D. Fess, prophesied that "his career will be a ladder of fame upon which young men and women of spirit will aspire to climb. Senator Fess, who was one of Senator Willis' teachers at Ohio Northern University, traced the life of his colleague from a Delaware county farmer boy to his high position as a statesman.

Tribute of a Friend.

From the Senator's private secretary, Charles A. Jones, who is a native of Deer Park and a brother of E. R. Jones, attorney of Oakland, came a tribute of an intimate friend and coworker.

"I believe the highest tribute I can pay him today is this," said Mr. Jones: 'In all the years of my association with him I never knew him to do a thing that from the standpoint of broad manhood, from the viewpoint of truthful and courageous relations with his fellowmen, could be called a 'little' thing."

From a pocket testament which Senator Willis carried, Dr. Otto Scott Steele, pastor of Asbury Methodist Episcopal church, the home church of the statesman, read passages which Senator Willis had marked.

"What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works?" (Taken from the book of James), was one of these. "Ye see then how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only," from the same book and chapter, was another.

Dr. Albert Edwin Smith, president of Ohio Northern University, which Senator Willis attended as a youth, and where he later was a professor, preached the funeral sermon.

Where They Found The Pint.

While engaged in raiding the premises of John Swauger, near Jennings, Garrett county, one day last week, Revenue officers discovered a box in the Swauger barn. The box did not look at all suspicious and was labeled "Stock Tonic." Perhaps the officers had kept hosses, too, at one time. At any rate they were interested enough to investigate, and upon opening the box found in it a pint bottle of moonshine.

Arriving at a very natural conclusion, the officers continued their search and soon discovered three barrels of mash and a five gallon keg containing two gallons of liquor in the Swauger home.

The mash was destroyed by the officers and the liquor confiscated as evidence. Swauger was cited to appear and give bond for his appearance at court on the charge of manufacturing illicit liquor and also for having it in his possession for the purpose of sale.

This is the fourth time Swauger has been arrested for violation of the prohibition laws and the public will watch with interest the outcome of the matter as the impression prevails in the minds of a number that there is no real danger awaiting the man who violates the law repeatedly and with impunity.

BAND DONATIONS REACH $40-81 FOR ONE WEEK

Amount is Exclusive of Sale of Tickets For Benefit.

Voluntary donations for the Oakland Boys' Band since the benefit picture at the Maryland Theatre on last Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, total $24.06, and adding to that amount the sum realized from the sale of flowers and candy at the theatre's entrance the entire sum amounts to $40.81, according to R. R. Gilbert, director. This does not include receipts from the sale of tickets for the picture show.

"At this rate it will be but a short time until it is possible to purchase the necessary instruments for the organization," Mr. Gilbert said. "I believe that the people will have more faith in the band now that they have heard the members give such a creditable concert."

The donations this week came from the following: Faculty and students of the high school, $5.00; C. N. McIntire, $10; L. Hershman, $1; donations at door of theatre, $8.06; sale of flowers and candy, $16.75.

"I am sure there is more to come," Mr. Gilbert concluded.

COMMITTEE MUST RAISE $2000 TO ACQUIRE GROUND

Personal Solicitation of Funds to be Conducted for Purchase of Site for Milk Station.

Following a meeting on Monday night of the Garrett County Dairy Committee and the farmers and dairymen of the Sunnyside section of the county, at which time the remaining quantity of milk needed was contracted for to start operations for a new milk shipping station in Oakland, a citizen's meeting was held last night at the City Hall for the purpose of raising $2,000 for the purchase of the site for the new plant.

A committee was named to make a personal solicitation of funds and pledges to be used for the purchase of a site across the railroad tracks, near the Manhattan hotel, which was selected by Henry P. Brawner, president of the Chestnut Farms Dairy, of Washington, D. C., for the location of the local plant. Those named on the committee were Raymond Houck, Lawrence Fraley, H. C. Sincell and Dr. H. W. McComas.

By an agreement between the Dairy committee and Mr. Brawner, 500 gallons of milk will be the total amount required for the beginning of business on May 1, at which time, providing the site has been purchased and the deed transferred to the Chestnut Farms Dairy, a refrigerator car will be placed on the site to take care of the milk received. The Dairy company agrees to build its plant as soon as the quantity received daily reaches 1,000 gallons.

Mr. J. P. Dugan, of the Baltimore and Ohio, was present at the meeting on Monday night when the contracts for a certain amount of milk to be delivered on May 1 were signed by the farmers.

MARYLAND AND TOLERATION

Some Additional Data Highly In Praise of Cecil Calvert

By MATTHEW PAGE ANDREWS
In the Baltimore Sunday Sun.

Each of the early Anglo-American Colonies lays claims to certain distinctions peculiar to itself. This is particularly true of Virginia, Massachusetts and Maryland.

Virginia claims the first successful settlement following the arrival in 1607 of the good ships the Sarah Constant, the Goodspeed and the Discovery. By virtue of holding a Legislative Assembly at Jamestown in 1619 Virginia has also preempted the honor of being the first Colony to practice the distinctively American principle of local self-government.

For them it is claimed that they began their political existence under the first social compact drawn up by the settlers themselves. It is also asserted that they were the first settlers impelled by the urge to establish a colony in America where they could worship God "in accordance with the dictates of their conscience."

Because, however, of the purely material interest so often attributed to the founders of Virginia and Maryland, it should be noted that the Plymouth group had other motives in coming to America. In addition to the desire to get away from the alien land of Holland, where they faced the possibility of the outbreak of war with Spain, these motives were no different from those of other emigrants. In short, by the Pilgrim leaders' statement, they wished "to better" their condition.

Both Jamestown and Plymouth have a distinction peculiar to them, of which, however, neither one has ever boasted: both began on a communistic basis.

In the case of the Pilgrims this feature has rarely seen the light of the printed page, though the original manuscript of William Bradford, their first historian and able Governor, recounted at some length how the plan had almost caused the ruin of the Colony. On the other hand, every schoolboy learns in his textbooks of the communism attempted at Jamestown.

The introduction of these various claims for priority serves as a necessary basis for a review of the points in Maryland history which are peculiar to the province founded by the Calverts.

By way of contrast, Maryland was the first Colony to begin its career with a clean statement of principle providing for the holding of private property.

Again, Maryland was the first Colony to be placed under the control of a single proprietary. As such, Lord Baltimore was given viceregal powers by virtue of palatinate prerogatives and privileges.

It is especially important to bear this in mind when we consider the claim to world distinction that has been set up for Maryland. This claim will be examined now and here in the light of the known records, with a view to ending an age-old discussion, as the Old Line State rapidly approaches the three-hundredth anniversary of its founding.

Briefly, the question to be answered is this: Is Maryland entitled to preeminence or priority in establishing freedom of conscience in matters of religious belief, coupled with the separation of the functions of church and state?

In regard to this claim there has been much confusion. The confusion is worse confounded when we find that Maryland annalists have acclaimed the so-called "Toleration act" as their chart or charter of religious liberty. Immediately innumerable writers, including a number of distinguished historians, point to the act itself as the very negation of this distinction!

This legislative enactment is on record in the proceedings of the General Assembly as "An Act Concerning Religion." In consequence, however, of its imputed title, it has been assumed that the act furnishes the sole, or at least the principle, basis for the claims made on behalf of Maryland.

Recently Woodrow Wilson's "History of the American People" (numerous other United States histories would have served as well by way either of negation or neglect,) has been quoted as conclusively refuting the claim of Maryland, not only to priority on this point, but as to the fact itself. We find therein this candid denial, supported by the document in question:

The Calverts did not establish religious freedom in this country. The first paragraph of the Maryland Toleration Act, or more properly speaking, "A Law of Maryland Concerning Religion," reads as follows: ...."Be it therefore ordained and enacted.... that whatsoever person or persons within this Province, and the islands thereunto belonging, shall from henceforth blaspheme God; that is, curse Him; or shall deny our Saviour, Jesus Christ, to be the Son of God; or shall deny the Holy Trinity, the Father, Son and Holy Ghost; or the Godhead of any of the said three persons of the Trinity; or the Unity of the Godhead, or shall use or utter and reproachful speeches, words or language, concerning the Holy Trinity, or any of the said three persons thereof, shall be punished with death, and confiscation, or forfeiture of all his or her lands and goods to the Lord Proprietary and his heirs."

That this toleration claim is being repeadly made in Maryland on the basis of the Act Concerning Religion was aptly illustrated in 1926 by a plank in the platform of a political party, which solemnly pledged the party "to uphold the principles of the Toleration act of 1649." Thereupon a ribald inquirer wanted to know, should the party leaders win the election and elect to live up to their platform, if they would proceed to recommend "death and confiscation" for Unitarians, Jews and all who did not believe in the Trinity, etc.

While it may be said that this measure records and advance over the procedure of most of the governments of the Old World, which at that time sought to proscribe all forms of faith save the one duly established by the state, it is not a declaration calling for the extravagant eulogies so often heard on its account. It is clear, therefor, that if Maryland is to claim preeminence in the establishment of freedom of conscience, it must look to some other basis.

Turning for light to the Maryland charter, we find in that document only this: That, under its provisions, Lord Baltimore, a Roman Catholic subject, is granted by Charles I, an Anglican monarch, absolute vice-regal jurisdiction over all matters pertaining to religion, including the right to erect churches and chapels and appoint priests or mmisters.

In the formal words of the instrument there is no reference to freedom of conscience or to the separation of church and state. In fact, the words of the charter appear to point to the creation of an established church in accordance with the "ecclesiastical laws of our Kingdom of England." The only evidence of toleration here is outside of the instrument itself: viz, the absolute confidence of Charles I, the Protestant or Anglican King, in the good intentions of his Roman Catholic subject, whom he proceeded to endow with greater privileges than had been accorded any English subject since the days of the border palatinates.

Any detailed attempt to construe the ecclesiastical phrases of the charter is unprofitable; in fact, most of the polemic or pedantic discussion of its terminology, to the equivalent of a hundred tomes, is scarcely worth the paper upon which it is written, if we admit a few common-sense deductions based upon what actually happened, rather than what was set forth in formal documents where legalistic language is so often the vehicle for concealing rather than revealing thought.

First of all, there is not a scrap of evidence in the records relating to the Province, in the Calvert papers or in the archives of Maryland, as far as known, to show that a single person was punished or persecuted for exercising any form of faith, or the lack of it, until the passage of the "Act Concerning Religion," at which time an alien element got control. It was after this element began to enter the Province that the "Act Concerning Religion" was passed, and this was the first special legislative regulation upon the subject.

During the following decade of Puritan control religious proscriptions were the rule. This group overthrew the Protestant Governor, William Stone, who had earnestly sought to pursue the Calvert policies. When, however, Lord Baltimore and his associates reassumed authority under Charles II, a second Anglican monarch, there followed another period of religious freedom. Persecutions or prosecutions were again abolished. Then James II, a Roman Catholic, began the proceedings, completed by the Protestants William and Mary, by virtue of which the third Lord Baltimore was dispossed of his proprietorship. Subsequently the official union of church and state was accomplished under the Anglican formula.

So far we have been dealing with the outstanding fact that there is no evidence to show any persecution or prosecution in Maryland during the control of Lord Baltimore through his appointed governors, who, while differing as to their respective forms of faith, were one as to the principle of freedom of conscience.

It may be averred that this evidence —that there was no persecution or prosecution in matters of religious observance—is negative, but if it be negative it may be said that no other Colony or country of the Christian era can, up to the founding of Maryland, point to a similar record. Their calendars are crowded with examples of intolerance. Thomas Dudley, Governor of Massachusetts, expressed the sentiment of more than one form of faith when he aimed the following verses at Roger Williams:

Let men of God in courts and churches watch,
O'er such as do a toleration hatch,
Lest that ill egg bring forth a cockatrice,
To poison all with heresy and vice.

Again, excellent circumstantial evidence is to be found in the character and conduct of George and Cecil Calvert, respectively the projector and the founder of Maryland.

In the case of the former the evidence points to an attitude of tolerance and charity throughout his career. We find this in his record as an original adherent of the Church of England and finally of the Church of Rome. As a member of the court faction in the Virginia (colonization) Company, his political standpoint may rightly be regarded as "reactionary," but we are now concerned with his attitude toward religious observances, in which he was a liberal.

The same liberal attitude with regard to the religious viewpoint is to be found in all the related acts and expressions of Cecil Calvert, who, except for a period of approximately ten years, had control of the policies and proceedings of the Province from 1632, the date of the issuing of the charter, to 1675, the date of his death.

The "instructions" which Cecil Calvert gave to the settlers point in every instance to the encouragement of charity, tolerance and neighborly good-will. In this respect he did all that anyone could in that age. Since his published expressions of intention could be used to his hurt, he let his actions exceed his promises. At the beginning he gave out a long list of religious groups and urged that, in the very mention of these names, when one group referred to another that they should never use any one of the terms by way of reproach.

Incidentally it would appear that the Protestants were always greatly in the majority, which statement is supported by a cloud of witnesses, from Father White to Charles Calvert. Happily, it is to the lasting credit of the greatest part of this majority that they supported the Lord Proprietor. By formal "declarations," duly signed, these Protestants sought to uphold the Calvert regime against the state control, threatened first by the Puritan element and later by the Anglicans. Without this support from the liberal element of various religious groups against the bigoted or fanatical in each Lord Baltimore must have failed.

It has been said often that Lord Baltimore was under imperative constraint to act tolerantly, and the corresponding inference is made that, had he dared, he would have developed in Maryland the religious despotism so long exercised by his own church elsewhere.

Probably we all agree that there is no way of presenting absolute proof of a man's motives. We have to judge him by his acts and in less degree, by his expressions.

Cecil Calvert's policy may have been of the earth, earthy. It may, indeed, have also been "good business," just as one may insist upon honesty as the best policy.

It has been said that Lord Baltimore was in need of settlers who would, by their rents, contribute to his revenues. This also is an inference that may properly be drawn; for, no doubt, practical ideas were associated with his spiritual principles. The record of his father points to the same idea when, as Secretary of State, he was interested in securing colonists from Europe for the expansion of the British empire in America.

Then again it may be said that the Massachusetts Puritans were under similar constraint but they set up a theocracy and demanded conformity to their form of faith in defiance of the state-established church of the mother country.

Perhaps the strongest evidence of Cecil Calvert's sincerity in establishing religious liberty lies in the fact that one of his severest struggles—a bitter contention to the claims of a powerful order of his own faith.

Established in Maryland, the priests of this order promptly claimed for themselves age-old eeelesiastical immunities from civil control and civie ohligations. When Governor Leonard Calvert temporarily yielded to their importunities and granted them the special privileges they sought, this neglect of Lord Baltimore's instructions elicted from the founder of Maryland one of the strongest statements ever made by anyone on hehalf of the seperation of the functions of church and state.

This simple hut nonetheless noteworthy declaration deserves especial recognition in American history, or, for that matter, in world history. In writing to his brother, Cecil Calvert insisted upon Leonard's obedience or his removal, adding by way of explanation:

"If all things that Clergymen should do upon these pretenses should be accounted just and to proceed from God, laymen were the basest slaves and the most wretched creatures upon the earth. And if the greatest saint upon earth should intrude himself into my house against my will, and in despite of me, with the intention to save the souls of all my family, but withal give me just cause to suspect that he likewise designs my temporal destruction, or that being already in my home doth actually practice it, thought withal he do perhaps many spiritual goods—yet certainly I may and ought to preserve myself by the expulsion of such an enemy, and by providing others to perform the spiritual goods he did, who shall not have any intention of mischief toward me. For the law of nature teacheth this, that it is lawful for every man in his own just defense, vim vi repellere —those that will be impudent, must be as impudently dealt withal."

From start to finish, the founder of Maryland and his supporters, both Catholics and Protestants, fought credal dogmatists of every faith. The disappointed zealots of his own communion, openly and insidiously attacking him, well nigh brought Lord Baltimore to the brink of ruin.

Instead of finding in the records of Maryland, as are found in those of other colonies and countries, a long list of religious persecutions, we find, in the early history of the province a single limitation inserted in the body of a lengthy legislative enactment.

This evidently was not proposed by authority from above but from below, being a clause against "idolatry" and "blasphemy," appearing in a list of felonies. As far as known, no governmental action was ever taken against anyone even on these two points. In fact, the only proceedings recorded in the provincial courts against anyone at all in matters involving religious matters represented efforts to preserve freedom of conscience and not to restrict it.

In two notable instances there were brought before the tribunals of the province persons who had attempted to interfere with the exercise of the faith of fellowmen. In both cases, the result of the trial was the vindication of the principles and practice of religious liberty; punishment was meted out, not to offenders against conformity but to those who had sought to restrict or interfere with freedom of worship or the free expression of religious convictions.

Documents have been adduced to show that a member of a well-known Jewish family joined the Ark and the Dove emigrants in the West Indies. If this claim be substantiated as to the race of the immigrant, the Archives of Maryland show that neither his race nor his faith prevented his rise from a condition of indenture to the conduct of a successful trade.

During the Commonwealth era, the life of a Jewish doctor, Jacob Lumbrozo, was, upon the accusation of a Quaker, threatened, in that it was alleged he had denied the divinity of Christ. He might have been hanged under the terms of the so-called "Toleration Act;" but, shortly thereafter, the Calvert rule was reestablished, and we find Lumbrozo sitting as a member of a jury impaneled to try a case involving one of the most prominent supporters of Lord Baltimore. This was in 1664, when Rhode Island was denying the privileges of citizenship to Jews and "Papists."

Should inquiry he made as to what became of the so-called "Tolerance Act" and its provisions under the first preamble, it may be said that it was, during the Puritan regime, superseded by greater restrictions. If it had been an act suggested or approved hy Lord Baltimore, instead of a compromise measure evidently forced upon the Proprietary and the Province in contradiction to the Calvert instructions, it would have been renewed by Lord Baltimore after the restoration. It was not so renewed, the restrictive legislation of the Puritan regime was formally repealed and the original policy toward religious matters again prevailed.

Furthermore, it cannot well be overemphasized that this policy represented, in modern terms, a fixed purpose on the part of the Proprietary and his advisers, regardless of their respective forms of faith, to keep the church out of politics and politics out of the church. After the Stuart-Proprietary restoration, a House of Delegates, the majority of whom were Protestants, reproved and fined a Presbyterian preacher for introducing into his sermon matters regarded by the Delegates as being political rather than religious. Previously, in similar fashion, a Roman Catholic Council had voted unanimously to fine a Roman Catholic planter for interfering with the worship of his Protestant employes. From the start, also, the clergy were more or less automatically excluded from political office, whereas In New England the Puritan clergy dominated policies, as in mediaeval Europe the Roman Church dictated the policies of kings and emperors.

The evidence of the practice of freedom of conscience in Maryland may be so extended by illustration after illustration that it is difficult to see how anyone, after consulting the original records, could come to any other conclusion than that Lord Baltimore had this plan in view. There is absolute proof by way of direct evidence of his purpose to separate church and state, while the other phase of the claim is established by the events themselves.

All this may, indeed, have been a practical idea for business purposes; it may, on the other hand, have been a spiritual idea; but, most likely, it was a union of both.

Perhaps, if some of the controversialists should realize that these historical conclusions are not reached in terms of any church, but of individuals who created precedents which all churches once officially decried, but which all churches now publicly approve, the millennium of accord will be hastened.

Throughout and discussion of this still vexed subject, it is well to bear in mind that in the matter of reaching out for the ideal of freedom of conscience there is, first of all, the figure of Sir Edwin Sandys, the American Treasurer (president) of the Virginia company who invited the "Pilgrim Fathers" to Virginia; then there is John Robinson, leader of the Separatist exiles, increasingly liberal in liberal Holland as the years rolled by, George Calvert, liberal in his intentions, and , as principal Secretary of State in 1619-20, the man who may have made the Mayflower passage possible; Cecil Calvert, assuredly liberal by reason of his acts; Roger Williams, William Penn and James Oglethorp.

These seven are notable figures in the field of this consideration, and, if we accept the evidence above adduced, the greatest of them is Cecil Calvert, in that he was the founder of the first commonwealth based upon the positive practice of religious freedom and the absolute separation of the functions of church and state.

Some time after the restoration of the Calvert regime in 1659, George Alsop, poet and narrator, set down his observations of "Mary-Land" as the "Emblem of Tranquility." Here, he quaintly declared, "All inquisitions, martyrdom and banishment are not so much as named * * * The several Opinions and Seets that lodge within this Government meet not together in mutinous contempts."

However, In its utter lack of conscious purpose, the most appealing testimony as to this happy state of affairs is contributed by Friend Wenlock Christison, who, after restlessly passing from place to place in the Old World and the New, had attempted to establish himself in Massachussetts. Here he Hwas cruelly whipped and suffered confinement, from which he emerged with his historic warning to the Puritan magistrates, "That ye shed no more innocent blood." This saying even school books have reported, but nowhere is it recorded, in any general narrative, regardless of bulk, that following a brief sojourn in Rhode Island, this persecuted Quaker finally turned to Maryland. Here he purchased a plot of land and built himself a home, naming it, in complete contentment, The End of Controversies.

Which Will You Save?

YOU can save pennies or save chicks. Poultry yard facts show that ordinary untested rations and mixtures such as hard boiled eggs and oatmeal save pennies but not chicks. Usually 50% of them die. Poultrymen who are making money invest one penny more per chick and save 90 to 100% of their chicks. They feed Purina Chick Startena, the buttermilk starting ration containing Cod Liver Oil. We'll be glad to tell you of a feeding plan that's as simple as A B C. It saves chicks and brings them through to early maturity.

KEEP THE BALL ROLLING—

On February 5, when the Boys' Band of Oakland was struggling along with a small amount of funds facing the need of a bass horn and several other instruments and with little hope of acquiring these requisites, an Oakland woman, now wintering in Washington, D. C., sent the director of the band a check for $5.00. The letter accompanying the check was printed in The Republican and since that time there has been but one week go by without a donation received from someone interested in the boys, the donors being either residents, former residents or summer visitors.

One check came from as far away as Missouri and some who did not send money promised to send instruments. Only last week a sum totaling more than $40 was given to the band in voluntary contributions, and this sum, added to what had already been donated and what had been earned by food sales, a benefit picture, etc., brings the band to a point where it can now feel reasonably assured of ultimate success.

The summit has not as yet been reached, but the foothills have been successfully passed. Miss Fundenberg, who made the original donation of $5 can be credited with starting the movement and deserves a full share of praise for doing it. Those who followed in her footsteps also come in for a share of praise, for they deserve it.

A worthy cause is usually successful, and that means that they still need money if they are to achieve their goal. It can be made successful by sending donations to R. R. Gilbert, director of the band, or to The Republican.

Those who heard the concert last Tuesday and Wednesday will testify that the money is being donated for an excellent cause.

SPRINGTIME—

With the disappearance of the snow, it is hoped until next January, there are now signs of spring which officially was due on the twenty-first of last month.

Spring is the season of reincarnation, rejuvenation and radiant life. January 1 represents the birth of a new year to man alone, and the calendar year is an artificial structure. To the plant life and that of the lower animal the coming of spring is at once the birth of a new year and new life.

Humanity recognizes and speaks of a new year as from January 1, but observes it from the first breath of spring. After the departure of the drear and stifling winter and with the coming of refreshing and magnetic spring there is new life and new hope created in the breasts of men and women. Spring brings great plans and high resolves which only winter can demolish or deter.

It is not sufficient to say that the homing instinct is convenient in the spring. It is nature and not to be gainsaid by man or beast. Spring urges the bird to build its nest, the animal to burrow into its mother earth and man to plan his home, but neither bird, beast nor man knows nor asks why. Spring is the one and only irresistible force. It isn't happening in Garrett county alone, but in all countries of the North and South Temperate zones of the eastern and western hemisphere. Everybody feels it.

SENTIMENT FOR GOLDSBOROUGH STRONG THROUGHOUT THE STATE

Editor Wilmer Cronin of the Harford Democrat, member of the Legislature, this week in his usual frank way of stating facts, publishes the following editorial, captioned "Two republican candidates for the Senate:"

With the announcement this week by Phillips Lee Goldsborough, former Governor of Maryland and recognized as the leading republican of the State, democrats are confronted with a serious condition in the United States Senate. So far the only democratic candidate who has announced himself is the present incumbent, Senator William Cabell Bruce. Senator Bruce during his political life in Maryland, following an early life spent in Virginia, has been as inconsistent a democrat as any officeholder in any State. Obtaining the presidency of the State Senate by his threat to vote with the republican Senators to elect a republican president; an ardent dry on occasion, now a "babbling" wet; a Senator who votes as often for republican policies as for the policies of his own party; a man with an egotism which prompted him to remark "that the people of Maryland should consider themselves fortunate to have me as their representative in Congress."

If democratic State leaders have decided to content themselves with the candidacy of Senator Bruce in the coming campaign, when the Presidential election always affects Maryland politics, then they have either lost their reason and grasp of the political situation, or else they are prepared to concede the election of Mr. Goldsborough.

The Laurel Leader speaking of the republican Senatorial candidate says:

The announcement by former Governor Phillips Lee Goldsborough of his candidacy for the United States Senate is very gratifying to the republicans of the State, as well as to the Maryland democrats.

There is no man in the State who is more highly regarded than Governor Goldsborough and his candidacy has a wide spread approval.

Mr. Goldsborough is apparently supported by all the prominent leaders of his party in the State, and is expected to receive the nomination without a contest.

Under such circumstances it behooves the democratic party to nominate a good, popular man to oppose him. Much weaker men on the republican ticket have been elected to the Senate because the democrats were divided and failed to give the party's candidate loyal support.

The Belair Times adds:

The announcement of ex-Governor Phillips Lee Goldsborough that he would be a candidate for the United States Senatorship against the present incumbent, William Cabell Bruce, has met with genuine and hearty approval on the part of both republicans and democrats throughout the county. Without any doubt he will receive a tremendous vote in this section.

Oakland High School Notes of General Interest

At a meeting of the Senior Class it was decided that graduation expenses should be cut to the minimum. Boys are not to buy new dark blue suits unless it is really necessary. Girls are not to allow their class night dresses to exceed $5.00 in cost.

The contract for the printing and binding of "The Oak," the school's annual publication, has been awarded to The Republican, and work upon its composition will begin in a very short time.

Twenty volumes of the latest edition of the "Book of Knowledge" have been presented to the Oakland High School library by the Class in Problems of American Democracy and Miss Dorothy Stevenson, winner of the girls' declamation contest.

The third quarter of the year will end on April 15th. Watch the report cards of the students. Remember that if a pupil's conduct is unsatisfactory in school his work is liable to be unsatisfactory also.

Graydon Lewis, a former student of O. H. S., who is now attending the University of Denver, Denver, Colorado, visited the school here on Wednesday morning, April 4.

The students are all looking forward to the Easter vacation which is to begin tomorrow and end Tuesday morning, April 10. We hope they will resume their work in a better spirit for the remainder of the year, having had a four-day rest from hard work.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. L. M'GLONE,
Resident County Agent,
Office, Court House.

Home Gardeas Reduce Family Expenditures.

Maryland holds high rank as a vegetable producing State and grows, according to the census figures of 1920 something more than $25,000,000 worth of vegetable and truck crops annually, say vegetable specialists at the University of Maryland. To this figure the home gardens of the farms of the State contribute nearly $4,000,000 worth of vegetable products.

When well planned and efficiently managed, the home garden offers one of the more important means for effective savings in the family budget, it is pointed out. It is one of the very phases of agriculture that still can be carried on as successfully in the city backyard as in the country.

The farm garden, of course, has for years been an important asset to the farm family. That importance has been emphasized in recent years. The depressed condition of agriculture has made it advisable for the farm family to be as nearly self-sustaining as possible. Nothing else contributes so largely to this end as a productive farm garden.

The money value of the home garden, however, is but one of its important features. The preservation of health of the family is, perhaps, the greatest of all the farm garden assets. The public has gained in recent years a new understanding and appreciation of the value of vegetables in the diet and when they can be had fresh from the home garden, their superior quality is likley to make them more frequent and welcome additions to the family meal.

Care Will Iacrease Iacome Froai Wool.

While wool is not the chief source of income from Maryland sheep, its value to the producer is more than sufficient to justify careful production, shearing and handling, says B. E. Carmichael, professor of livestock husbandry at the University of Maryland.

First of all, it is important to use breeding stock that is likely to produce uniform white wool of good quality, it is pointed out. Wool in which black fibers are present must be sold as gray or black wool at a substantial reduction in price. Coarse, hairy fibers also lower the value of wool.

The flock should be so managed that there will be no considerable amount of foreign matter in the fleece at shearing time. Attention to pastures, keeping the sheep out of fields in which burdocks and cockleburs are found, and proper construction of the feeding racks will do much to prevent damage due to the presence of burs or chaff.

Unless good shelter is available, shearing should seldom be undertaken before settled warm weather arrives. Even when very early shearing is not practiced the shorn flock should be housed if cold, rainy weather is encountered. If shorn during hot weather, shade should be provided so as to prevent sunburn, which occasionally results.

Shearing should be done when the wool is dry and a clean floor should be provided. Special attention should be given to the position in which the shears or clippers are held so that the wool will be clipped close to the skin with no necessity of going over the surface a second time. Care should be exercised to avoid tearing the fleece while the sheep is being shorn.

The fleece from each sheep should be rolled compactly, with the sheared side out, and securely tied with a string once around the fleece each way. Paper string is best for this purpose and binder twine should never be used. Dirty locks or tags of wool should be put in a bag separate from the good wool. If there are any gray or black fleeces they should be kept separate from the white fleeces. If they are piled together there is danger that some of the black fibers becoming mixed with the white wool, thus lowering its value.

The annual levy meeting of the Board of County Commissioners will be held on April 16. It was erroneously reported that Samuel Lewis had been confined in the County jail following his arrest on a charge of non-support recently. The arrest was made, but a letter from Mr. Lewis states that he is 47 years old and has never been in jail as a prisoner. Deputy Joy Griffith confirmed the statement thta the man had not been confined.

By notice appearing in The Republican today it will be seen that in all communities of the county in which one- and two-teacher schools are located, the patrons of those schools are requested to assemble on Thursday, April 19, at four o'clock at the respective school buildings for the purpose of selecting one, two or three residents of the school community to be recommended to the Board of Education before May 5 for appointment as trustee or trustees, as the vacancies may demand in each particular school.

Maple sugar producers are preparing to close their sugar and syrup making camps in all parts of the county at the end of the present week, at which time it is expected the sugar making season will end. While the time for making the forest sweets has been much shorter this year than usual the business has been profitable, according to a number of the owners who have been interviewed. Much of the syrup has been purchased by Vermont buyers who ship it to that section, work it over and after labeling it "Vermont Maple Syrup," place it upon the market at a fancy price.

"1901 TO 1928—TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS OF FAITHFUL AND CONSCIENTIOUS SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY"

(An Editorial)

"From 1901 to 1928—twenty-seven years of faithful and conscientious service to the community."

That is the modest statement of the Oakland Model Bakery carried in today's issue of The Republican as an advertisement of Oakland's first industry, and it immediately serves to bring to the attention of the public the value of having home industries that survive through the ages. That fact may have been laying dormant in peoples' minds, but it has been there and no one will deny it.

Just twenty-seven years ago today the Oakland Model Bakery, under the management of Henry Lauer, who came here from Washington, D. C., began operations, stamping it as the first industry of the community and for the community.

The plant was much smaller than it is now, but when the bakery industry progressed in other cities, it progressed to the same degree in Oakland until today Oakland has a bakery up-to-date, modernized and in every sense of the word a "model" bakery as the name indicates.

One need only to look at other towns to see how they value their industries and the acquisition of new ones. Cumberland is endeavoring to bring new industries to its community and the people of that town are loyal in supporting the ones they already have. Citizens of Terra Alta, a neighboring town, have an industry of a similar nature and they patronize it exclusively. The same can be said of Kingwood, another neighbor.

An industry within the community is valuable beyond price, and it should be, and Oakland has one of these industries—the oldest in this whole section of the country.

The Oakland Model Bakery is celebrating its 27th anniversary, because it has been maintained on a high plane by none other than its proprietor, Henry Lauer.

Coming here twenty-seven years ago, he brought with him something for the community; he has been giving to the community ever since, and if The Republican is not mistaken, still wants to continue to do the same.

The Republican does not believe in casting flowers where they are not worthy to be cast, but the facts of the last 27 years are too well filled with community enterprises in which Henry Lauer had a prominent part to think for a moment that they are being thrown at random. They are not.

Here are a few specific examples: He served eight years as town councilman; was president of the Chamber of Commerce; is a member of the Rotary Club, a community and fellowship organization; has served two fraternal organizations in Oakland in so many enterprises that they can hardly be numbered, and none can testify to that better than the members themselves; has been active in attempting to establish other industries in Oakland, for example the cigar factory; has always aided Oakland's bands to the limit; has figuratively had a "finger in the pie" in everything which has been done in the last 27 years towards benefiting Oakland; has always been a whole-hearted citizen, always looking to the welfare of the town in which he has lived.

When Mr. Lauer reads this, (if he does) he will wonder probably at the unconventionality of such a process. One doesn't usually read about his own accomplishments. They are always saved until after death and used as a eulogy. But why save all of these until after he would be unable to enjoy them?

Henry Lauer established an industry here for Oakland twenty-seven years ago. He is still here after this number of years of "faithful and conscientious service" as he states in his advertisement, and is going to be here for years to come, it is hoped, with the same spirit. Who is there in Oakland that can equal his community spirit?

Card of Thanks.

I desire in this manner to extend my thanks to the neighbors and friends who so kindly lent their assistance during the illness and after the death of my wife; also to those who sent flowers and for the use of cars at the funeral.

WALTER N. BECKMAN.

ASSAILANT OF MRS. DAISY WELLING TO DIE APRIL 17

Washington Court of Appeals Upholds Death Sentence

The Court of Appeals of Washington, D. C., handed down a decision on Monday upholding the death sentence in the case of Philip Jackson, colored, sentenced to die in the electric chair April 17 for attacking Mrs. Daisy Welling, divorced wife of J. C. Welling of Keyser, W. Va., formerly of Oakland. The assault upon Mrs. Welling occurred on the Capitol grounds February 18, 1927. Jackson will be the first to die in the new electric chair of the District of Columbia.

Mrs. Welling was employed as a telephone operator at the Driscoll Hotel and was walking through the Capitol grounds toward her home from work late at night when she was clubbed into insensibility by a negro who then assaulted her and stole the contents of her pockethook.

The young woman sustained a compound fracture of the skull when she was beaten over the head with a brick. A passerby found her unconscious lying behind a bush a short time later and she was taken to a hospital where she was in a critical condition for several weeks.

Police arrested several suspects and Mrs. Welling, from her hospital bed, identified Jackson as her assailant.

Mrs. Welling has resided in Washington since 1918 and was divorced from her husband in 1920, being given the custody of her nine-year-old son. She resides in Washington with her mother, Mrs. Sarah Lamb.

Mr. H. V. Leighton and family, of Loch Lynn, motored to Cumberland on Friday and returned the same day, being accompanied by H. C. Leighton, who had undergone an operation for the removal of his tonsils a few days before.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Falkenstein, who spent the past three months in Florida, arrived in Oakland Saturday evening where they remained with Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Falkenstein until Monday, when they went on to their home in Terra Alta.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of St. Mark's Lutheran church held its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Shilke. A goodly number was present to enjoy the study of the lesson on missions.

Dr. and Mrs. M. C. Hinebaugh left Oakland Tuesday evening for Philadelphia, where they will visit their son Carlton. Dr. Hinebaugh will return to Oakland Saturday. Mrs. Hinebaugh will visit relatives in Baltimore before returning home.

Mr. Edward A. Shaffer returned to Oakland on Saturday from St. Louis, Mo., where he had been for several weeks in conference with railway and telegraphic authorities. He left Oakland again on Monday for Baltimore for a similar conference.

The Easter meeting of St. Mark's Lutheran Brotherhood will be held on Monday, April 9, at 7:30 o'clock in the Sunday school room. A special program has been prepared and it is the desire of the officers that a goodly number of members be present.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry W. McComas, who spent several weeks in Phoenix, Arizona, where they visited their son Harry, arrived home last Friday evening. While they are much pleased with the west and the climatic conditions they have expressed their preference for Oakland and Garrett county. While in the west Dr. McComas also visited Pacific Coast cities. At Phoenix he passed the medical board examination of the Arizona examiners and was admitted to practice medicine in that State.

Lesson for April 8

THE RESURRECTION OF JESUS CHRIST (EASTER LESSON)

LESSON TEXT—Mark 16:1-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Because I live ye shall live also.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Comes to Life Again.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Christ Rises from the Grave.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus, Our Living Leader.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Power of the Resurrection.

I. The Ministry of Love (vv. 1-4).

1. By whom (v. 1). Mary Magdalene, the mother of James and Salome. They brought sweet spices with which to anoint Him.

2. When? (v. 2). Early in the morning of the first day of the week.

3. Their perplexity (vv. 3, 4). They questioned as to who should roll away the large stone from the mouth of the tomb. To their surprise they found the stone removed.

II. The Angel in the Tomb (vv. 5-8).

Jesus knew that these women would come to the sepulcher with perplexed and unbelieving hearts so He had an angel waiting there to announce to them the fact of His resurrection. Note the angel's message:

1. "Be not afraid" (v. 6).

2. "Ye seek Jesus of Naznreth who was crucified" (v. 6). This threefold designation with marvelous clearness shows (1) His humanity—Jesus. (2) Lowly residence—Nazareth. (3) Ignominious death—crucified.

3. "He is risen; He is not here. Behold the place where they laid Him" (v. 6). These words throw light upon His birth, humility and shameful death. He who was born in lowly circumstances and suffered the shameful death on the cross, is now the conqueror of death. His resurrection gives meaning to His death. "If Christ he not risen your faith is vain, ye are yet in your sins" (I Cor. 15:17).

4. "Go your way, tell His disciples and Peter" (v. 7). As soon as it was known that Christ was risen from the dead they were to tell it to the disciples. The disciples all needed this blessed news, but Peter especially, since He had utterly denied Him.

5. "He goeth before you into Galilee, there shall ye see Him" (v. 7). Christ had told the disciples that He would rise from the dead and meet them in Galilee, but their unbelief kept them from this blessed truth.

III. The Appearances of the Risen Christ (vv. 9-14).

These appearances had as their object the restoration of the disciples from their awful failure and discouragement and convincing them without a peradventure of a doubt of Christ's resurrection. Since His resurrection was to be the central theme of apostolic preaching, it was necessary that they have a certainty of knowledge as to this matter (Acts 1:3). Without the resurrection of Christ His death would be meaningless. Out of the ten or more appearances, Mark selects three.

1. To Mary Magdalene (vv. 9-11). Mary's heart responded to the Savior who had graciously delivered her from demons. Her sufferings were no doubt terrible. She was first at the tomb; her devotion was amply rewarded by being first to meet the risen Lord. Though her faith was weak she went at once and told the story to the disciples.

2. To two disciples on the way to Emmaus (vv. 12, 13). Luke gives full particulars concerning this appearance (Luke 24:13-25). Jesus had walked, talked and eaten with them.

3. The eleven disciples (v. 14). Christ appeared to them while sitting at meat and reproved them for their unbelief. The fact that they steadfastly resisted the testimony that Christ had risen, and yet afterward were willing to risk their lives in the proclamation of this truth proves the genuineness of their faith.

IV. The Commission of the Risen Lord (vv. 15-18).

After the disciples were convinced of the truth of His resurrection, Christ sent them forth to "preach the gospel to every creature." What a glorious and supreme task is this. What a blessed issue to those who believe and how awful to them that believe not. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned" (v. 16).

V. The Activity of the Enthroned Christ (vv. 19, 20).

After giving the disciples their commission He ascended on high and from the unseen sphere directed their activities. Wherever they went He confirmed their word. He does the same for His disciples today.

Our Thoughts

We should manage our thoughts as shepherds do their flowers in making a garland; first, select the choicest, and then dispose them in the most proper places, that every one may reflect a part of its color and brightness on the next.—Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

The Presence of God

Man is more blessed or less blessed in the same measure as he is aware of the presence of God.—John Tauler.

Answer is Postponed

The answer to the puzzle of last week which asked how long it took the squirrel before he could look out of two holes of a tree at the same time if it took five minutes to make the first trip, five seconds less for the second, five seconds less for the third, etc., has been indefinitely postponed, and possibly will never be printed.

Before the squirrel finished his task, the originator of the puzzle plugged up one of the holes, and the truth will never be known. Science is still baffled over the question.

Jim Painter Missing; Last Seen On Monday

Word has been received by Scoop that Jim Painter has been missing since Monday and was last seen on Liberty street with hook and line. Diligent search has been going on by members of the Voluntary Save Us Squad, and in a feverish heat they have been boating up and down the street in an effort to locate the hole which they believe he is in.

Col. Bell has been on the scene for a full 48 hours with a blow torch and camera so that he might have the first snap of the man they bring up to the surface. He has had no need of food and drink because of the string of "catch", found in front of Loraditch's garage, supposedly belonging to the missing fisherman. If the water recedes today, it is hoped that success will be theirs for the asking.

Mystery Woman Again

The mystery woman, acting on the invitation of Mayor Fraley last week, was seen in town again on Tuesday. She remained long enough to purchase her Easter bonnet, and it was with great difficulty that Col. Bell persuaded the lady to sit for a "sitting."

The Latest In Hats

When questioned as to where she had purchased the ultra-modern headgear, she replied, "I bought this bargain either at Smith's Millinery, or at M. Harvey's Millinery. If you want to know anything further, ask the lady who owns one." She still failed to divulge her name, but stated, however, that she was still single and not any older than she looked.

An Acheless Age

A British scientist predicts that, in time to come, men will be born toothless. Scoop was of the opinion, in ignorance, that they usually were born that way.

* * *

The Weekly Portrait

Col. Jim Bell and Scoop slipped into one of Oakland's residences on Tuesday at noon, for the weekly character study, and unaware of their presence, Mr. William J. Butt was caught in an intimate glimpse as he began to carve the weekly buzzard of the barnyard. The expression on his face tells plainer than words how well the fowl is cooked.

As A Family Man

After the snap had been taken and everything exposed, including the plot for obtaining the picture, Mr. Butt whispered confidentially to Scoop that they were not accustomed to have fowl on week-days, but that this had been presented to him by game warden Richard Browning.

April Fool

Probably most of the people who read The Republican last week discovered what they thought to be a terrible mistake. A headline read that the Fishing Season would begin on February Second. But this was just one of the newspapers little jokes that happen in the best of families. Last week's paper was the nearest to the date of April Fool's day and we couldn't let it go by unnoticed. So this was everybody's April fool—to think that one could have been fishing two months ago. A bigger April fool would have been to have told that two months ago and had the county jail overcrowded. But Scoop was too tender hearted for that. If you believe this, then you are April Fooled.

Scoop Has A Caller

Whether from curiosity or just a desire to get his name in this column, is not known, but a gentleman from Sang Run called on Scoop Tuesday. From indications, however, Scoop figured that it was more from love of publicity. He doesn't run a taxi service like Jerry Stanton or Bill Shaffer and isn't a bit like his name would sound, but he sure knows his Indians. So here is another one—S. G. Savage.

Day after day it becomes more apparent that the unrivaled popularity of the Bigger and Better Chevrolet is due to its basic elements of superiority.

And the greatest factor of all is the effortless driving it provides. It steers with the weight of the hand—for the worm and gear steering mechanism is fitted with ball bearings throughout . . . even at the front axle knuckles. The clutch is velvety smooth in action and the gear-shift lever responds to the lightest touch. Acceleration is swift and certain, while big non-locking four-wheel brakes assure perfect control under every condition of highway and traffic.

Arthur Brisbane says the next war will be fought in the air. From the noise we heard over the radio the other evening we thought it had started.

Bill Glotfelty has been catching quite a few trout since the season came in, though we are unable to find out just where his fishing grounds are.

* * *

Again J. M. Stanton's name goes in the public print. He took advantage of our special low prices on tires and has bought a set for one of his taxis.

* * *

Ed: "What started the riot last night?"
Al: "A misprint."
Ed: "How's that?"
Al: "The local theatre advertised a show with three hundred people and one hundred costumes."

* * *

We have quite a few used cars that have been reconditioned that can be bought on the installment plan at a low monthly rate.

24-hour wrecking and towing service. Give us a ring at any time, day or night.

We have turned our show room into a dairy supply display room and have on exhibition a complete line of this equipment. On your next visit to Oakland you are invited to come in and look over these excellent supplies.

KNOCKOUTS FROM THE BOWLING ALLEY

By BILL GIBSON

Well! The bowling league came to a close after a most successful season and on the play-off for the championship of the league the Postoffice won out over the Methodist team and took up its march homeward with the bacon. But that didn't keep the players and their friends from enjoying the annual banquet which was very well attended and at which a great amount of enthusiasm was displayed over the success attending the past season.

* * *

And the time of the year is approaching when the woodpeckers will want to play home sweet home tunes on daddy's wooden leg.

* * *

So Reeves Blandford will open with his spring song entitled "No matter how tough the steak may be, you can stick your fork in the gravy."

* * *

* * *

Jim Kerins gave me to understand that he was very calm and quiet as a boy and that he honestly believes that he could have sowed all his wild oats with a needle.

But I'll bet the needle would have broken before he had the chance to use it.

* * *

I've been wondering what was the matter with the Oakland boys while performing against Rev. Funk's team from Morgantown. They had so many bad breaks and so many easy misses.

I guess it was just a case of hot feet and chills.

* * *

So here's how until the egg plants hatch spring chickens.

George O. Garlitz Killed in Mine

George O. Garlitz, of near Grantsville, was almost instantly killed at Garrett, Pa., on Tuesday when he was caught beneath a fall of rock from the roof of the Garrett Slope mine, in which he was employed. He had completed his work for the day and was in the act of leaving the mine when the rock fell striking him on the head and breaking his neck. He was aged 27 years and is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Garlitz, two brothers, James S. and Richard C., and by two sisters, Margaret and Carrie. The funeral was conducted at Mt. Zion M. E. church on Friday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. J. E. Johnson officiating. Interment was made in the Blocher cemetery.

Zeller Elected Mayor.

In the town election, which was held on Monday of this week, C. S. Zeller was elected mayor, John Zehner and John W. Folk, councilmen. The election was hotly contested, many more ballots having been cast than in a number of years at a municipal election. The outgoing mayor is A. C. Stanton, who served the people of the community faithfully for four years and through his efforts a number of improvements were planned and carried through to success. The outgoing councilmen are Wm. J. Wright and John W. Baker. Mr. Zeller's opponent for the office of mayor was Harry Edwards.

A Double Wedding.

Roy O. Baker, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Baker, of Grantsville, and Mrs. Pearl Smith, of Masontwon, Pa., and John Fratz and Miss Ruth McElfresh, friends of the first mentioned couple, were principals in a double wedding which occurred at Cumberland on last Saturday evening, the Rev. J. T. Strassberger officiating. Following the wedding the young people were tendered a sumptuous dinner by Mr. Baker's mother. Both couples will reside at Masontown, where the grooms are employed.

Lenten Pageant.

The third annual Lenten pageant or mortality play, "Pilgrims of the Night," was given last Friday evening at the Holmes and Wallace studios to a packed house. The play was written by Miss Holmes and depicts the trials and temptations besetting the path of a Christian, also the reward to the faithful at the end of life's journey. The story was read by Miss Holmes and was interspersed with hymns by members of the cast.

Dr. Keller Is Convalescing.

Dr. B. T. Keller is convalescing in the Allegany Hospital, Cumberland, in which institution he underwent an operation for hernia one day last week. Following the operation it was feared that he was contracting pneumonia, but that probability has disappeared.

Ideal Sugar Weather.

The regular changes from sunshine to cold and snow flurries during the past two weeks has been ideal for the making of maple sugar. The trees gave a generous amount of sap, despite the lateness of the season.

Missionary Society Meeting.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Lutheran church met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Wm. P. Baker. There was a large attendance. Miss Kate Bannatyne gave a most enlightening talk on the lesson, which was followed by refreshments and a social period.

ONLY ONE IN 220 FOUND DEFECTIVE IN T. B. TEST

Thirty-Five Herds of Cattle Undergo Examination in County —Additional Tests Later.

Indications that Garrett county has the best record of tested cattle in the State of Maryland was made known this morning when it was found that of 220 cows on which the tuberculin test was used, only one was found to be diseased, or less than one-half of one per cent.

"As far as it goes, there is no doubt but that it is a State record," J. L. McGlone, County Agent, stated. "We shall have to wait until all the cattle in the county are tested to ascertain the exact percentage of diseased animals."

Dr. D. E. Poe and Dr. M. H. Trout, United States Livestock division of the United States Department of Agriculture, who arrived in Oakland one day last week, have been making the tests in company with Mr. McGlone, and have visted and tested the herds of thirty-five farmers.

More and more herds will be inspected, Mr. McGlone stated, and it is requested by him that all farmers who desire to have their animals tested send their names to the county agent at once.

In explanation of what an accredited herd is, Mr. McGlone stated, there must be two clean tests on cattle before they can be accredited. After these two tests, one each year, the herd is accredited for all time, provided the animals are tested each year for tuberculosis. The first two tests are made free of charge through the Department of Agriculture, but the succeeding tests must be made at the expense of the individual owner or owners.

At this time, according to statistics in Mr. McGlone's possession, there are 133 accredited herds in Garrett county. There are 27 herds which require but one more test to give them the same rating.

Only a comparatively few farmers visited by the officials refused to have the tests made. "This record is considered exceptionally fine," Mr. McGlone is quoted as saying.

Red House Church Redecorated.

The redecoration of St. John's Lutheran church at Red House has just been completed by the DuBrau Art Company, Cumberland, at a cost of approximately $800. The redecoration was undertaken several weeks ago and was completed early this week. Rev. W. E. Waybright, who is pastor, is highly pleased with the improvement as are also the members of the congregation, all feeling that the money was well spent.

The walls of both the auditorium and of the Sunday school room are very much improved and the recess in the rear of the pulpit now contains an oil painting of the Good Shepherd, done by Miss DuBrau. The seating has been revarnished and the wainscoting and floors varnished and waxed. "The work is truly first class in every respect" is the universal verdict of the members of the church.

A formal rededication of the church will occur in May, it is stated. Dr. C. F. Sanders, of Gettysburg Seminary, will probably be the speaker upon the occasion.

To Show Methods of Windbreaks

Carl Pfeiffer, assistant State Forester, in co-operation with J. L. McGlone, County Agent, will demonstrate the proper method of planting windbreaks at the home of Henry Yoder, Gortner, on Wednesday, April 18, at 2:30 o'clock. All those interested are requested to be present at this demonstration.

Street Curbs Being Repaired

The curbs along Alder and Second streets in the business section of the city, are being straightened and reset by Michael Maroney, street commissioner, and his helpers. Some of the stones have been in a bad condition for several years.

JOHN T. CONNEWAY.

John T. Cnnewny died April 10 at his home near Red House from the effects of a third stroke of appoplexy. He was aged 67 years and 9 months. Funeral services will be held in St. John's Lutheran church, Red House, this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock with interment in the churchyard. Rev. W. E. Waybright, pastor, will officiate. The deceased is survived by his widow and four sons: Elmer, Akron, O.; Harry, Canton, O., and Clarence and Raymond, at home.

OWNER OF ROCK LODGE TO PLANT 30,000 PINE TREES

Work Will Be In Charge of Assistant State Forester Pfeiffer

Thirty thousand red pine trees have been purchased by F. F. Nicola, owner of Rock Lodge, near Bittinger, and will be set out on his property immediately, according to information received at The Republican office yesterday. In former years Mr. Nicola has had as many or more trees set out on his property, originally one of the largest and finest pine forests in the county, which was known as the "Rights of Man" tract, upon which magnificent white pine trees grew to a height of more than a hundred feet, and it has been asserted by lumbermen that the bowl of the trees were clear of limbs for a distance of 75 feet above the ground. The timber was cut many years ago and manufactured into lumber by a lumbering firm operating at or near Friendsville, the logs being transported to the mill over tramroads.

The work at the Nicola property is being supervised by Carl Pfeiffer, Assistant State Forester who is following the plans for the reforestation of the land worked out by the State Department of Forestry.

There are already 35 acres of red pine, Norway spruce, Scotch pine and locust planted on the reserve and the trees now being planted will cover a large range of mountain land which was swept by fire several years ago.

"When completed," Mr. Pfeiffer said yesterday, "it will certainly be a wonderful piece of work accomplished by Mr. Nicola and will be a monument to his memory for years to come."

PURPOSE OF THE C. M. T. C. ARE OF HIGHEST ORDER

Garrett County Entitled to Send Ten Representatives.

To bring together annually the best representative young American citizens, to give them the basis of military instruction and that physical and moral development that will fit them to become influential leaders in their respective communities in times of peace and leaders for National defense in times of war; to inculcate a stronger patriotism and a wholesome respect for discipline and obedience to constituted authority; above all, to teach the young men of this generation their serious duties, responsibilities and obligations to home and to country—that is the purpose of the Citizens' Military Training camps to be conducted this year from July 6 to August 4 and to which Garrett county is entitled to send ten representatives. Mr. E. E. English, of Friendsville, has charge of the work in this county, and applications will be given preferenee in the order they are received, he has stated.

Quite a number of Garrett county boys have taken advantage of the month's training nnd recreation in former years and it is a month well spent according to one of them who was in a recent camp.

"There is plenty of work to be done in these camps," a bulletin says. "Drills, marches, field maneuvers, organized athletics, schools and indoor instruction, but wholesome and elevating recreation has always occupied a most important part in the object of these training spots. It really supplies one of the most valuable educational and instructional features in the whole program."

Those desiring application blanks may secure them by writing to Mr. English. The Republican also has one application blank which can be obtained upon request.

Terra Alta's Oldest Resident, 101, Dies.

Terra Alta's oldest resident, Mrs. Mary Anne Benson, aged 101 years, died at her home on High street at Terra Alta, Thursday after a short illness. She was the widow of Joseph Benson, of Terra Alta and the stepmother of Mrs. Wylie Falkenstine, of Mountain Lake Park.

Mrs. Benson was born in Somerset county, Pa., but had been a resident of Terra Alta for forty years. She is survived by the following children: J. Milroy Benson, Gary, Ind.; Mrs. Virginia Guseman, Uniontown, Pa.; Mrs. Anna Blaney, Little Falls, O.; Mrs. Zura Mason, Kingwood, W. Va.; Mrs. Letitia Hauger, Terra Alta, and Miss Rhoda Benson, at home.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist church in Terra Alta, of which she was a member during her lifetime, on Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock, with interment in the Terra Alta cemetery.

TWO INJURED IN WRECK IN OAKLAND ON SUNDAY

Infant and Wilbur Bear, Kempton, Receive Cuts and Bruises When Car Strikes Bridge.

Wilbur Bear, of Kempton, and an infant child of Mary Lewis, also of Kempton, were seriously hurt in an automobile accident which occurred Sunday evening on the bridge over the Little Youghiogheny River in Oakland. The other occupants of the Jewett car were Mitchell Lewis and Ruth Moreland, all of Kempton, as well as Mary Lewis, were only very slightly injured. The wreck occurred at the west end of the bridge and the right side of the car was almost totally demolished where it came in contact with the side walls of the structure.

The car belongs to Perry Lewis and his brother, Mitchell Lewis, driver of the car when the wreck occurred, was placed under arrest on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor and also for reckless driving. He was given a hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder Monday afternoon. On the first charge, that of driving while drunk, he was fined $100 and costs and on the charge of reckless driving a fine of $1 and costs was pronounced. He was lodged in Jail in default of payment of the fines thus imposed.

The injured child and the injured man were attended by Dr. N. 1. Broadwater, local physician. Bear was cut badly about the face by particles of glass as he was catapulted through the windshield of the car. The child was at first thought to be more seriously injured and for a time it was feared that the injuries would result fatally, but a report states that it will in all probability recover in a short time.

THREE MEN APPREHENDED WHEN THEIR STILL IS FOUND

Search Warrant Being Executed By West Virginia Police Lead To Discovery and Arrest

An opportunity for a long stay in Maryland was almost assured one day the latter part of last week when Henry M. Travis and Bruce and Clifford Stone, recently of Clarksburg, West Va., were arrested by Thomas Seymour and Joy Gritlith, deputy sheriffs of Garrett county, on a charge of unlawful possession of liquor. The three men are also being held in the Garrett County Jail on a charge of theft, which was preferred by West Virginia authorities.

The three men now in jail had been residing on the John Shaffer farm, near Mountain Lake Park, since last Thursday, upon which day it is said they arrived in Oakland from their West Virginia homes. Two West Virginia officers trailed them to this place and located their whereabouts the following day. The officers from the adjacent State, armed with search warrants and accompanied by the two Maryland deputy sheriffs, went to the Shaffer farm and made an investigation and discovered some property in the way of meats that are said to have been stolen from a merchant in West Virginia, the three men in whose possession the property was found being suspected of committing the theft.

In addition to the hams and sidemeat found at the place a still and some liquor was also discovered and confiscated, the illicit goods being said by the officers as being also the property of Travis and the Stones.

The three men were brought to Oakland following the destruction of the still and liquor and placed in jail where they will be held until this afternoon when they will be given a preliminary hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder, on the charge of possession of the liquor.

If the charge of violation of the dry laws should not be sustained they will be turned over to the West Virginia officers and taken back to their native state to be tried on the charge of theft.

Gilbert, director, and the boys are working hard to keep up the reputation they established at their initial appearance. They meet on Tuesday evening in the Knights of Pythias Hall and many of the members are taking private lessons at odd hours from Mr. Gilbert and Russell Brown, his assistant.

"There were no voluntary contributions this week," Mr. Gilbert said, "but I hope for better luck next week. I am sure that there are more who want to contribute to the welfare of the organization."

REV. BAGGETT ADDRESSES BROTHERHOOD MEETING

Those Present Hear Talk On Young Man's Purpose

About thirty-five members and visitors were present at the monthly meeting of St. Mark's Lutheran Brotherhood, held on Monday evening, and heard the Rev. George S. Baggett, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, Oakland, talk on "A Young Man's Purpose."

"If you ever want to get anywhere in this world," Rev. Baggett said, "you have to work for it. Nobody ever gets any more out of his work or out of his life than he puts into it. The pages of history are full of the deeds of great men, all of whom had to struggle to attain their place of honor. Providence always had some man or woman picked out to fit into a niche in the time of national calamity." His address was enjoyed by everyone in attendance.

MONEY REQUIRED TO BUY SITE HAS BEEN SUBSCRIBED

Solicitors Report That a Fund in Excess of $2,000 for Milk Shipping Location Pledged

Starting Tuesday morning, members of the committee appointed by the Oakland Commerical Club, in a little more than a day secured subscriptions amounting to more than $2,000 for the purchase of the site for the proposed new milk shipping plant. The property agreed to be purchased is now owned by the Baltimore and Ohio Railway Company, being a portion of the old Glades Hotel lot on the south side of the railway tracks and cornering at the Second street crossing where it is intersected by an alley bordering upon the property to be bought.

The chairman of the committee having in charge the financing of the proposition stated that the real estate department of the railway company will be immediately notified of the success of the undertaking and that within a few days it is almost assured that the transaction will be closed up and preparations made for the building of n siding from the main track to the site of the proposed new plant.

The finance committee, named at a recent citizens' meeting was composed of R. D. Houck, Lawrence M. Fraley, H. C. Sincell and Dr. H. W. McComas.

"The matter is now up to the farmers," J. L. McGlone, who has been the leading spirit in the movement for the establishment of the proposed new plant, said yesterday. "The dairy committee has done its part; the Commercial Club has fulfilled its obligation; the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company is ready to do what it has contracted to do. It is now up to the farmers to see that 500 gallons of milk will be supplied on May 1, at which time a refrigerator car will be placed on the site to take care of the product."

The dairy company, of which Henry Brawner, Washington, D. C., is the president, has agreed to build its plant as soon as the quantity received daily reaches 1000 gallons. Until that time the milk will be received and stored in a refrigerated milk car.

Fire Department Extinguishes Slight Blaze

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department responded to a call about 3:00 o'clock last Friday afternoon and extinguished a blaze in a heap of brush and trash which had been set on fire and which in turn had fired a fence and grape arbor in the rear of Grover Stemple's residence on Alder street. A high wind was the means of carrying the fire from the trash pile to the fence and arbor, it was stated.

Since the slight blaze Mayor Fraley and Fire Chief have issued warnings against leaving fires burn unguarded and at all times to be careful in such matters.

Pythians to Confer Rank of Page Tomorrow Night.

Make Your Word Your Bond

What a feeling of satisfaction it is to have our fellow townsmen say, "His word is as good as his bond."

CREDIT, the basis upon which present day business is built, is one of the greatest assets any man can have. Keeping his CREDIT good is a duty every man owes to his community, his family and to himself.

Past due accounts reflect upon a man's business ability. They mark him as a man unworthy of confidence in any business activity. No one likes to be associated in a business or even in a social way with a "dead beat."

[ CREDIT may be kept good by paying promptly as agreed. Almost any immediate sacrifice is well worth while to maintain good CREDIT. ]

Millions of Model T Fords are still in active service
FOR nearly twenty years, the Model T Ford led the motor industry and it still is used by more people than any other automobile. More than eight million Model T Fords are in active service today—an indication of their sturdy worth, reliability and economy.
Because of the tremendous investment which people have in these cars and because so many of them will be driven for two, three, and even five more years, the Ford Motor Company will continue to make replacement parts until, as Henry Ford himself says, "the last Model T is off the road."
For the Ford Motor Company has always believed that its full duty consists not only in making a good automobile at a low price, but also in keeping it running efficiently for you as long as possible at a minimum of expense.
No matter where you live, therefore, you can still buy Model T Ford parts with the same assurance as formerly, knowing that they will give you the kind of service you have a right to expect, and at the same time protect the money you have invested in your car.
All Ford replacement parts, as you may know, are made of the same materials and in the same way as those from which your car was originally assembled, and are low in price because of the established Ford policy.
So that you may get the greatest use from your Model T Ford over the longest period of time, we suggest that you take the car to the nearest Ford dealer and have him estimate on the cost of any replacement parts which may be necessary. You may find that a very small expenditure will maintain the value of your car and will be the means of giving you thousands of miles of additional service.

"MILK FOR TWO"—

With the practical assurance that a new milking shipping station will be located in Oakland, it would now seem appropriate to change that familiar expression, "tea for two" to "milk for two", because that is going to be the only outcome of the whole proposition, the "two" meaning, of course, the new milk shipping station and the one which is already firmly established in the community—The Oakland Creamery Company.

In the opinion of The Republican, if Garrett county is adapted to any industry at all, it is surely adapted to dairying, and the only thing needed to prove this fact is an added incentive to farmers to increase their production in this line. With the advent of the new station there is going to be this added incentive, and in the course of a few years Garrett county is going to find herself occupying the same position all other dairying communities are occupying.

There is not a dairying section that did not have its start on a small scale. Moorefield, W. Va., started in a with a creamery with much less milk per day than Oakland needs to start the new plant and today Moorefield is standing pretty well up in the list of milk producing communities.

The results of the tests being made by Dr. Poe and Dr. M. H. Trout with respect to bovine tuberculosis, is only another proof that Garrett county is adapted to dairying, because of its healthy cattle. In the number of cattle tested thus far, less than one-half of one percent have been found defective; in fact, one cow in two hundred and twenty. Where cattle are found to be healthy there is the place to take advantage of the situation and make dairying pay.

Garrett county is starting in a comparatively small way too, but the added incentive of having two stntions will cause the awakening of the farmers to their opportunities as dairymen.

The dairy committee, which has worked long and faithfully on the project, has done its part in bringing about the desired end; the Oakland Commercial Club has executed what it set out to accomplish in raising by popular subscription nmong the business men of Oakland the required sum of money with whieh to purchase the site for the new plant; the Baltimore and Ohio Railway Company has discharged its obligation to the community and it is now up to the farmers, who in the end will be the ones to profit, to make dairying a successful adventure in this county.

More time devoted to dairying and less attention to some other minor problem on the farm, will open a new era for Garrett county. It will make Garrett county what it should have been a long time ago—a dairying county.

CREDIT—AND BUSINESS—

Each year credit is becoming more and more important as a factor in business. From the greatest industry on down the line to the man who uses his credit to buy his weekly grocery requirements, credit is a factor or dominating interest to one and all.

Naturally when a certain business activity becomes a part nnd parcel of one's own daily life, he is interested in knowing as much as possible about it.

Of first importance to each one, whether he is in the habit of making daily use of his credit or not, is the maintaining of his credit rating upon the highest plane.

When one finds it necessary to make use of his credit is not always known, for the occasion may arise almost at a moment's notice. Then if every precaution has been taken to maintain one's credit, follow townsmen nre always glad to aid in every way they cnn.

In today's issue of The Republican a group of Oakland merchants and business men are calling the attention of the people to the power of credit and the feeling of satisfaction obtained from the knowledge that a person's word is as good as his bond.

These merchants nnd leaders in the business world of the community of which Oakland is a part have the right idea.

SPARKS FROM AN OAKLAND PULPIT

THE PROOF OF THE RESURRECTION.

If we should take all the millions of Bibles in the world and tear from them every page upon which is mentioned the empty tomb and the Easter triumph, nevertheless the resurrection of Christ would remain one of the best attested facts of human history. For the real proof that our Savious conquered death and brought immortality to light is not found in the Bible; it is found in the historical fact of the Christian Church.

Remember that the disciples of Jesus expected that He was going to Jerusalem to establish an earthly Messianic Kingdom. That was why, on the first Palm Sunday, they shouted, "Hosanna! Blessed is the kingdom that cometh, the kingdom of our father David!" And the apostles expected that they were going to have n grand time in this new kingdom: they were going to sit on His right hand and on His left, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

Now, let us try to put ourselves in their place and imagine the surprise, the consternation, of those disciples when their King, instead of being seated upon a throne, was nailed to a cross! Imagine the shock of their disappointment. This Jesus has proved not to be the Messiah; He is only an impostor, or a deluded fanatic. God has condemned Him and repudiated Him by allowing Him to be crucified, to die the ignominious death of a slave. They were absolutely stunned by the catnstrophe. They lost all faith in Jesus. They were scattered. They fled in fear and abject disillusionment.

The crucifixion completely put an end to the Christian religion. That was why the priests crucified Him. And they accomplished their purpose. Christianity died and was buried with the body of Jesus in the sepulcher of Joseph of Arimathea.

For a time there was no Christian religion. And then—something happened! Suddenly the disciples began to gather together again in Jerusalem. They organized themselves into a community, a brotherhood so complete that they shared all their property in common. They began to preach that this crucified Christ is the Savious of the world. And they believed it! They preached it with such superhuman power that the Roman Empire was won to their message. They who had lost their faith, now show themselves imbued with a faith which no danger can frighten. They who fled like cowards now are braver than lions. Christianity, which was dead, suddenly came to life.

Something must have happened. Something did happen. Those disciples knew that Christ was not dead. They knew that He had risen from the grave; for He was with them, transforming their sorrow into joy, their weakness into strength, their fear into courage.

That is why I say that the resurrection of Christ is one of the best attested facts of human history. The resurreetion of Christianity to become the dominant religion of the world is the proof of the resurrection of Christ. If Jesus had not triumphed over death and the grave, there would be no Christian Church, nor any of the philanthropic and educational institutions whieh trace their origin to the Church. Every lofty spire that we see piercing the horizon, like an uplifted finger directing men's souls upward from the dust of earth to heaven above, is a proof of the glorious ascension of our Saviour from the darkness of the tomb to the dwelling-place of everlasting light.

TO HOLD CHILD HEALTH DAY IN STATE MAY FIRST

Maryland to Unite With Rest of Country in Celebration

Maryland will unite with the rest of the country on the first day of May in the nation-wide celebration of Child Health Day. Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health is chairman of the Maryland committee which is composed of representatives of all organizations interested in the health or welfare of the children of the State—including the City and State Department of Health and of Education; the Parent-Teacher Associations; State and local medical socities; public health nursing organizations; home demonstration groups; women's clubs; the Playground Athletic League; the Federation of Labor; the State Dairy Council, the Scout organizations; the Crippled Children's League, and other child caring agencies.

The day will be celebrated in the Kitzmiller section on April 16, according to Miss Yolanda Clawson, health nurse.

"Children and May Day are naturally associated together," Dr. Knox said in announcing the appointment of the Marylnnd committee, "because both symbolize happiness and growth. For the children themselves, the day will be marked by special exercises in the schools and out of doors, but the principal reason for celebrating Child Health Day is to focus the attention of the grown-ups on the younger citizens of the State and on certain rights they have to health and to good care, not only for one day, but for every day in the year. And in Maryland that means good health and good care for what amounts to a great army, for the very young children and those still in school constitute about one-third of the total population of the State. Roughly speaking, that means oxer 550,000 out of the total estimated population of 1,660,000. A great army upon whieh the health and prosperity of the State will depend.

"When the celebration of May Day was first proposed, five years ago, by the American Child Health Association, Mr. Herbert Hoover, the president of that Association, suggested a 'Bill of Rights' for all of the children of this country. Here it is:

" 'The ideal to which we shoul l strive is that there shall be no child in America:

That has not been born under proper conditions; that does not live in hygienic surroundings; that ever suffers from undernourishment; that does not have prompt and efficient medcial attention and inspection; that does not receive primary instruction in the elements of hygiene and good health; that has not the complete birthright of a sound mind in a sound body; that has not the encouragement to express in fullest measure the spirit within which is the final endowment of every human being.'

"If we substitute 'in Maryland' for 'in America' we are stating the platform of everyone who is interested in or who is working for the health of the children here in our own State."

DIED.

WILLIAM BENJAMIN HUTSON.

William Benjamin Hutson, for many years a resident of Oakland, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. C. McCubbin, Princess Anne, Md., on Wednesday, April 4, at 4:40 a. m. He was aged 76 years, 2 months and 13 days. He was taken ill while attending a church on Sunday preceding his death, but from this attack he apparently recovered, but a recurrence took place on Monday morning while he was at breakfast and from this latter attack he never rallied. Mr. Hutson was born at Salem, W. Va., and was a son of Morgan B. and Susan Orr Hutson, early settlers of Doddridge county, W. Va. Mr. Hutson came to Oakland about fifty years ago and engaged in teaching school for many years. In 1880 he was married to Miss Catharine Yutzy, sister of Jonas Yutzy, of Oakland, who died in 1919. Two years ago Mr. Hutson went to Princess Anne to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. McCubbin. Funeral services were conducted at the daughter's home Friday from whence the body was brought to Oakland for burial. He was a member of St. Paul's M. E. church of Oakland, having united with that church on Easter Sunday morning, 1921. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. McCubbin, of Princess Anne; Mrs. Bruce H. Wells, San Francisco, Cal., and Mrs. Mahlon A. Bittinger, of Connellsville, Pa., and by one son, Howard P. Hutson, of Missouri, and also one brother, Chas. B. Hutson, of Little Falls, W. Va.

Mr. Hutson's body upon arrival in Oakland, was taken to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hardesty on Pennington street where services were conducted Saturday, followed by interment in the Oakland cemetery.

Those present from a distance were his only surviving brother, Charles Hutson, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hoffman and daughter Virginia, Mrs. Paul Binns and son Jack, Mrs. C. W. C. Binns, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Smith and daughter Virginia, Herbert Hutson, and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Farlow, all of Fairmont, West Va., and his son-in-law, Charles McCubbins, Princess Anne, and Harland Hardesty, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Pallbearers were Messrs. William Kildow, William King, Michael Boyle, Asa Coddington, Walter Hardesty and Harland Hardesty, the latter filling the place of an elderly gentleman who was unable to be present.

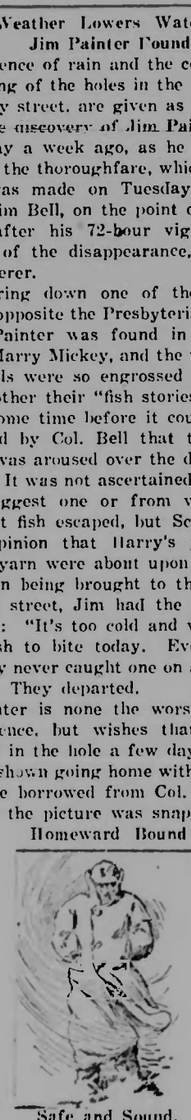
Dry Weather Lowers Water Level· Jim Painter Found



Absence of rain and the consequent draining of the holes in the paving of Liberty street, are given as the cause for the discovery of Jim Painter, lost Monday a week ago, as he was fishing in the thoroughfare, which discovery was made on Tuesday evening. Col. Jim Bell, on the point of starvation after his 72-hour vigil at the scene of the disappearance, was the discoverer.

Peering down one of the biggest holes opposite the Presbyterian church Jim Painter was found in company with Harry Mickey, and the two noted nimrods were so engrossed in telling each other their "fish stories" that it was some time before it could be explained by Col. Bell that the whole town was aroused over the disappearance. It was not ascertained who told the biggest one or from whom the biggest fish escaped, but Scoop is of the opinion that Harry's yarn and Jim's yarn were about upon a parity.

Upon being brought to the surface of the street, Jim had the following to say: "It's too cold and windy for the fish to bite today. Even Harry Mickey never caught one on a day like this." They departed.

Painter is none the worse for his experience, but wishes that he had stayed in the hole a few days longer. He is shown going home with an overcoat he borrowed from Col. Bell just before the picture was snapped.

At the House of Learning.

As the Colonel was still busy assembling photographs for The Oak, year book of the Oakland High school, he couldn't spare much time for a special expedition with Scoop. "And anyway," said the Colonel, "my back is still bent from the mountain climb of last week at Stuart Hamill's sugar camp."

So in view of this fact a closeup was taken of Professor Foster Speicher as he was delivering a lecture to the Freshman class in the O. H. S. Promise was made to mention no names of the pupils appearing in the picture, so just use your best judgment as to who can be seen.

Easter Too Cold.

The weather being entirely too cold and too windy, Easter bonnets and spring coats were in the minority on Sunday. The mystery woman left her bonnet at home and came to church in Oakland in the following:

"I am too old in experience to be caught under wares," said the unknown. "I am a firm believer in comfort, more hair tonic and bigger bottles. And How?"

They All Advertise

A hen is not supposed to have much common sense or tact, yet every time she lays an egg she cackles. The mule, a most despised creature, lets folks know he's around by his insistent bray. The bees buzz, bulls bellow and cows moo, watchdogs bark, ducks quack, doves and pigeons coo, peacocks squawk, pigs squeal, robbins sing and snakes hiss--they all have a way of announcing themselves. But man, supposedly the greatest masterpiece of nature, will often stop and hesitate before he'll advertise.

The Republican offers the best medium for advertising in Garrett county. Its stories are read and advertisements are carefully considered by its rapidly growing list of patrons.

TRANSFIGURATION AND SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 9:2-29.

GOLDEN TEXT—He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit; for apart from me ye can do nothing.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Shows His Glory.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Shows His Glory.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Faith and Prayer Can Do.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of the Transfiguration.

When Christ announced His death which was to take place on the cross, the disciples were unable to see how victory could issue from death. Jesus took with Him Peter, James and John into the mountain.

Two men from the upper world were sent to converse with Jesus about His approaching death at Jerusalem—the very thing about which the disciples refused to talk. The transfiguration is therefore a foregleam of the coming kingdom.

I. Jesus Christ Glorified on the Mountain (vv. 2, 3).

He took the disciples "by themselves" and was "transfigured before them." This shows that the purpose of the transfiguration terminated upon the disciples and not on Christ. Christ's rebuke of Peter for his unwillingness to hear concerning His death apparently for a time estranged the disciples from Him. To heal this breach an unusual transaction was required. His shining raiment was typical of that glory which shall be manifest when Christ comes back to the earth. His appearance on the mountain typifies His visible appearance on the Mount of Olives (Zech. 14:4, 9).

II. Peter, James and John Represent Israel In the Flesh in Connection With the Kingdom (v. 2).

Christ is peculiarly the King of Israel. According to Ezekiel 37:21-27, the Israelites are to be the central people in the kingdom. This people shall be gathered from among the nations and united as one in that kingdom, in their own country.

III. Moses and Elias Appeared In Glory With Jesus (vv. 4-13).

These men in the glorified state are typical of the state of the saints in glory. Moses, who was once denied an entrance into Palestine, appears now in glory representing the redeemed of the Lord who shall pass through death into the kingdom. Multitudes of the Lord's own who have fallen asleep shall be awakened at Christ's coming and pass into the kingdom. Elias represents the redeemed who shall pass into the kingdom through translation. Some shall be living upon the earth when the Lord shall come, and they, without dying, shall be changed and thus pass into the kingdom (I Cor. 15:50-53; I Thess. 4:14-18).

1. Peter's proposal (vv. 5, 6).

So definitely was the method of the kingdom unfolded before Peter that he proposed to erect tabernacles for Christ, Moses and Elijah. It is true that the unveiling of the majestic person of Christ and the panoramic display of the kingdom somewhat disconcerted Peter; yet he grasped its central meaning and proposed to celebrate the advent of the kingdom which had been prefigured in a tangible way.

2. The divine voice out of the cloud (vv. 7, 8).

God declared Jesus to be His beloved Son in whom He was well pleased. If one would know what is pleasing to God, let him study Jesus, who perfectly did His Father's will.

3. Jesus' charge (vv. 9-13).

He charged them that they should tell no man concerning the things which they had seen until He had risen from the dead.

IV. A Demonstration of the Purpose of the Establishment of the Kingdom (vv. 14-29).

When they descended from the mountain of transfiguration they witnessed a great multitude in a state of perplexity. The immediate cause of this state was the grievous condition of a young man possessed with a demon (v. 18). The father of the young man had appealed to the disciples to cast the demon out, but they were unable to do so. When they brought him unto Jesus, the foul spirit was rebuked and came forth. This young man's state is representative of the nations who are oppressed by the Devil. Just as this young man was grievously oppressed, causing him to cast himself into the fire and into the waters, so the nations today in their perplexity are doing the things which will result in their own destruction. The Devil will be peculiarly active in the oppression of men and nations in the last days.

April of last year was the biggest April ever along this line, 111 licenses having been issued to as many couples. IF your newly-arrived chicks could talk they would say: "Do not feed us until we are 72 hours old. We are supplied with food during this period by the remaining part of the egg yolks which we absorbed into our bodies just before we were hatched. When we are 72 hours old give us a feed which will provide life and growth vitamins." There are 1592 hatcheries which say, "Feed Purina." They know what it takes to keep chicks alive and growing. ## 'WAY DOWN ON TOLLIVER RUN.

I shall never forget the time
'Twas when we both were young,
That we first met at an old-time dance
'Way down on Tolliver's Run.

'Twas on one beautiful autumn night,
In eighteen and eighty-nine,
We took a stroll to Tolliver's Run
Among the lofty pine.

Where once those pines so huge and tall
The little brook still flows,
'Tis singing just the same today
As it sang long years ago.

But we since then have grown old,
Our locks are silvered o'er,
Yet memory holds a vision still
As in the days of yore.

I oft recall those golden days
As the years go fleeting by Like peering through the icy mists
Of a chill December sky.

Though looking back through the vale of time
With a vision of those who've trod,
I see many a kind and loving face
We have laid beneath the sod.

But this I'll say to you, dear Joe.
When we pass life's setting sun,
I hope we'll meet with those who danced
'Way down on Tolliver's Run.

—J. W. KIMMELL.

RATTLES ON THE ROOF

How about that ragged roof that makes your house look bum,
And when the weather's wet keeps the family sore and glum?
If you'll listen to our answer and follow out our plan,
You won't need to catch the water in a tub, pail or pan.
But can think of other matters when the weather's wet again,
For "Genasco Asphalt Shingles" will surely shed the rain.

And the excellent-appearance! what a difference will be made
By roofing with our shingles of the proper tone and shade:
They will clothe your house in splendor that will last for quite a while—
Take away that ancient look and dress it up in modern style.
These famous "Seal-Back" shingles that always lie down flat
Stand for the same in quality as J. B. Stetson's hat.

We'll be glad to make suggestions and estimate the cost,
For we know that giving service never can be time that's lost.
And the best part of the story, we hasten to declare,
The cost will not be out of reach, for our price is on the square.
Then when you let us fit you out with the best that can be had,
You'll be glad for many years that you read our roofing ad.

Deep Creek Property Owners Held Meeting Tuesday Evening.

About twenty owners of property located along the waters of Deep Creek Lake, met at Rainbow Inn on Tuesday evening and perfected an organization, naming Dr. Henry W. McComas, chairman, and Dr. T. E. Bullard, secretary.

Sanitation, building restrictions and electricity were all discussed by those present to some length. The question of the right to operate motor boats on the lake was also discussed, but nothing definite could be decided about this, as the law now prohibits the operation of such craft on the lake. This law was enacted at the last session of the Legislature and cannot be repealed until next winter, approximately a year hence. It was thought, however, by those present that motor boats might eventually be permitted but to operate such craft at this time with the law expressly forbidding it, would be taking a risk.

The next meeting of the property owners will be held Tuesday evening, April 22, at 8:00 o'clock, at Rainbow Inn at which time all property owners are requested to be in attendance.

TO RENAME ORGANIZATION OF OAKLAND BOYS' BAND

Will be Called Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland

The Boys' Band Auxiliary, composed of the parents and friends of the members of the organization, gave the boys a party on Tuesday evening in the Knights of Pythias lodge room in recognition of their splendid performance between shows some weeks ago when a benefit picture was presented. About thirty persons, in addition to the boys, were present at the affair on Tuesday evening.

At a business session the Auxiliary members unanimously decided to rename the band from the Oakland Boys' Band to Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland, in recognition of the services being continuously rendered by R. R. Gilbert, director, and Russell Brown, assistant Several plans were discussed relative to the financial support to be accorded the band and Attorney W. R. Offutt addressed those present on the value of a band in community life.

The boys played several numbers which were appreciated by those in attendance. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake and punch were served by members of the Auxiliary.

More Donations

Donations received during this last week were from Mr. Julius Littman, $2.50; Mr. Lewis Littman, $1; and Mr. John Weber, $5. "I knew there would be more coming in this week," Mr. Gilbert said. "Last week was not a sign at all that the people had forgotten. I am still hoping for more next week."

CASE AGAINST THREE MEN DROPPED AFTER HEARING

Turned Over to West Virginia Police on Theft Charge

At a hearing before W. A. Gonder, justice of the peace, on Saturday afternoon, Henry M. Travis and Bruce and Clifford Stone, all recently of Clarksburg, W. Va., who were arrested last week on a charge of unlawful possession of liquor, were found not guilty of the charge because of insufficient evidence. They were released from the custody of Maryland officials but were taken in charge by West Virginia authorities, who held them on a charge of theft in and around Clarksburg.

The three men had been residing on the John Shaffer farm, near Mt. Lake Park, for a short time when they were discovered by two West Virginia police and Tom Seymour and Joy Griffith, deputies.

In addition to some hams and sidemeat found at the place which were said to have been stolen from West Virginia, a still and some liquor were discovered and confiscated. Upon being brought to trial, it was found that Garrett county had no law against possessing a still, and as there was no test made of the alleged liquor which was claimed by the men to have been vinegar, the case against the men was dismissed as far as the Maryland authorities were concerned. They left Saturday for Clarksburg, accompanied by the two State police.

Condemned Negro Is Granted a Reprieve.

Philip Jackson, colored, sentenced to die in the electric chair last Tuesday for a criminal assault on Mrs. Daisy Welling, formerly of Westernport, did not die on that date.

Justice Frederick L. Siddon Friday postponed execution of the condemned man until Tuesday, May 15. Request for postponement was made by John H. Wilson, attorney for Jackson, who explained that he would take a petition to the United States Supreme Court for a writ of review of the recent action of the Court of Appeals when it confirmed the action of the trial judge in refusing to submit the question of Jackson's sanity to the jury.

Mrs. Welling is the divorced wife of J. C. Welling, formerly of Oakland.

MOVIES NEXT WEDNESDAY FOR BOY SCOUT BENEFIT

Proceeds to go Toward Defraying Camping Trip Expenses

One of "Red" Grange's latest pictures, the "Racing Romeo," will be shown next Wednesday night at the Maryland theatre, the proceeds of which will go toward defraying the expenses of the Boy Scouts' Annual Camping trip on Deep Creek Lake, according to Bernard Gonder, manager of the theatre.

Last year, a group of business men bought a camping site for the Scouts and erected the necessary camp buildings, and this will be used permanently from now on, according to Scott Shirer, scoutmaster. "Each year the cost of the two week's trip is about $375." he said. "When the boys are able they pay $5 each for the trip. If they are not able to pay, they are taken along anyway, providing they have had a good troop record during the preceding year."

This picture next Wednesday night is to help take care of the deficit for the trip, it was stated. The admission price will be 25 and 50 cents. The Scouts are planning their trip this year for the last week in July and the first week in August.

CASTLEMAN VALLEY R. R. TO BE SOLD BY RECEIVER

14-Mile Line from Jennings to Worth. Will be Disposed Of.

In The Republican today, Herbert E. Speyer, who was recently appointed receiver for the Castleman Valley Railroad Company by the United States District Court for the District of Maryland, gives notice that under an order of the Court he will offer at public auction the property of the railway company on Saturday, May 12, at 2:00 o'clock in front of the Garrett National Bank in Oakland.

Since being appointed the receiver, Mr. Speyer has been operating the road, which extends for a distance of fourteen miles from Jennings, Garrett county, to Worth Junction, Pa., where it has connection with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

The railroad was built by Jennings Brothers and was operated as a lumber road while the original owners were engaged in the production of lumber at Jennings. Following the closing down of the lumber operation it was sold to a party of Grantsville people who operated it for a time, and it was then taken over by the Morgart Coal Corporation which has recently been in financial straits and whose property was sold several weeks ago under foreclosure proceedings.

The road has been a decided asset to the Grantsville and other communities which it has served and should it now be abandoned by reason of a lack of bidders it will create a hardship not only to the people of the communities which it serves directly but to the entire county as the revenue derived from taxes and the labor it employs amounts to quite a sum.

County-Wide Young People's Conference To Be Held.

A county-wide young people's conference for Garrett county will be held in St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland on Saturday, May 12, according to Miss Esperance Ashby, young people's superintendent.

Each Sunday school in Garrett county is invited and urged to send five delegates, including two boys and two girls between the ages of 16 and 24 and one adult. Large schools may send more than the number above indicated, it was stated by Miss Ashby.

The delegates may be elected by the pupils or the officers of the school and should show indications of leadership. The adult delegate may be the pastor of the church, superintendent of the Sunday school or teacher of young people. The registration fee of $1 pays all expenses. Delegates are expected to make notes of the proceedings of the conference and give a report to their respective schools.

Knights To Confer Rank Of Esquire On Friday Night

LARGE GUN TO BE PLACED UPON COURT HOUSE LAWN

Coast Defense Howitzer Arrives In Oakland on Monday

A coast defense gun, at one time firing a cannon ball 9.2 in. in diameter, was brought to Oakland Monday afternoon and will eventually find a permanent rest on the Court house lawn, according to Delbert Davis, past commander of Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion.

The Howitzer, an obsolete ordnance of the government, came from the vicinity of Ft. Monroe, Virginia, and was at one time used in the coast defense near there, it is said. The gun is of British origin. It weighs three tons, seven hundred pounds, and cost approximately $70 to have it shipped from Ft. Monroe to its present destination.

"It is uncertain just when the gun will be placed in position on the Court House lawn," Mr. Davis stated. "Approximately $350 will be needed to construct the concrete base and get the mass of iron in place."

When erected, it will be to the right of the walk, facing Third street. It is planned to have the concrete base made similar to the Court House wall, with a place provided for a bronze tablet. On this tablet would be inscribed the name of the Legion Post, and the date of the gun's erection. Below this inscription would be placed all the names of those who participated in the World War from Garrett county.

One hundred cannon balls have been ordered also and they will be placed in piles near the gun. Each ball will weigh 12 pounds and will be 4½ inches in diameter. The Legion has no plans as yet for the raising of the necessary funds, according to Mr. Davis.

AUTO BURNS WHEN FIRE STARTS BENEATH ITS HOOD

High Wind Fans Flames and Occupants Narrowly Escape

A Studebaker coach, belonging to Mrs. Earl Pressman, of Friendsville, was almost entirely consumed by fire last Thursday evening when flames broke out under the hood of the car. A high wind swept the fire into the body of the machine almost instantly and the occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bisbing, the former, formerly Miss Frances Umbel, Selbysport, were just able to get away from the car before the entire machine was enveloped in flames. Mrs. Bisbing was painfully burned on her face.

The couple had just recently been married and were on their return journey from Selbysport to Friendsville, where they had gone to announe their marriage to the bride's parents.

From the point in the road where the fire was discovered the couple ran to Friendsville for help to extinguish the flames, but before they could return to the burning car it was past saving. All the car had left intact were the two front tires, the radiator motometer and headlights.

Immediately after the disaster the couple telephoned to Mrs. Pressman, who proceeded at once to the scene. The car was partially insured and was guarded until daylight the following morning by Talmadge Frazee. Upon returning from breakfast to resume his vigil, he found the wreck stripped of the two remaining tires, the motometer, the lamps and everything else of value that was not consumed. The identity of the thief or thieves has not yet been revealed.

PUPILS IN COUNTIES GET MORE TRAINING

Schooling In Year Now Nearly Two Months In Excess of 1920 Figure

Pupils in the Maryland county schools are averaging between one and a half and two months more schooling in a year now than they did in 1920, Albert S. Cook, State Superintendent of Schools, said yesterday. This is explained by a higher percentage of attendance among enrolled pupils and by a longer period in which the average school remains in session.

More than 2,000 more white pupils were enrolled in these schools last year than in 1926, while there was a slight decrease in the corresponding figures for Negro pupils, according to Mr. Cook. The maximum number of schools in any one county that remained open less than the legal number of days was thirteen in 1927, compared with thirty-one in the previous year.

Attendance Greater.

Every type of county school had a higher percentage of attendance in 1927 than in 1926, the white elementary schools showing the greatest gain —1.5 per cent. The graded schools for the first time had more than ninety per cent of the average number of pupils belonging to them in average attendance.

Each white elementary school pupil enrolled in the county schools attended an average of 154 days in 1927, an increase of thirty days over the corresponding figure for 1920 and of three days over the 1926 figure. The average attendance of 160 days in white high schools in 1926 and in 1927 was ten more than the average in 1920.

Advice is to Get Traders' License At Once.

Business men and others who are required to secure licenses from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, are advised to secure them at once. They are being issued and as a matter of convenience all are advised to have the required licenses in their possession on or before May 1st, when they go into effect as required by law.

It is often the custom of traders and business houses to let this important matter go until the last moment but the clerks at the court house are now ready to issue the licenses and ask the cooperation of the public so that no one may be disappointed. The law requires that licenses be secured by all doing business on or before May first.

William Lauer Returns From China Monday.

William Lauer, son of Henry Lauer, recently honorably discharged from the United States Marine Corps, arrived at his home in Oakland Monday evening after an absence of two years and seven months, the major portion of the time having been spent on foreign soil.

He was in Tientsen, China, at the time of his discharge and was landed at a California port several weeks ago, where, owing to a shortage of guards at the Government prison, he was kept on duty there until one day last week.

TAX RATE DECREASED NINE CENTS ON $100 VALUATION

Board of County Commissioners Completed Levy Tuesday —Rate for Year to be $1.90

The levy of 1928 for Garrett county, upon which the Board of County Commissioners were engaged for several days, was completed Tuesday, in accordance with the law and indicates a decrease of nine cents on each one hundreds dollars of assessed property in the county, so far as the county rate is concerned, making the rate $1.90, as compared with $1.99 for last year. This is considerably above the figures of 1927, which were $1.77.

The State tax rate this year, fixed by the Legislature, is 25 64-100 cents per $100, which is almost two cents less than the year 1927, and shows a total decrease in the rate of approximately eleven cents. The State rate in 1927 was 27 11-28 cents.

According to the levy made Tuesday the public school system of the county will receive this year $129,243.84, or $70,222.54 less than the preceding year. This amount is below that levied in 1926, which was $130,348.48.

The fund set aside this year in the general road fund is $25,275, and this, added to the special road levy of $43,000, makes the total road levy $68,275. This is $15,000 more than the figures of last year and $28,000 more than in the year 1926.

Lesson for April 22

JESUS AND THE HOME

LESSON TEXT.—Mark 10:1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Honor thy father and mother, which is the first commandment with promise.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Loves Little Children.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Wants Children to Come to Him.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being a Christian at Home.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Family.

In this scripture we see Christ as a teacher.

I. Concerning Marriage (vv. 1-12). The question touching divorce, which the Pharisees temptingly put to Christ, brought forth teaching which exhibits marriage in its true light.

1. Marriage should not be degraded by divorce (vv. 1-5). Divorce was not instituted by God. God ordained the marriage relation and inteuded it to be indissoluble. Moses did not originate it or authorize it, but suffered, limited and regulated it. The reason Moses even suffered it was because of the hardness of the hearts of the people. The existence therefore and practice of divorce indicates the coarseness and perverseness of man. The real cause is sin. There is no more real evidence of the blighting effects of sin in the world than the increasing number of divorces.

2. Marriage God's primal law (vv. 6-8).

The ideal law of life for the subjects of Christ's kingdom is marriage. This is proven by the fundamental fact of sex. "God made them male and female" (v. 6). The union of the male and female natures is physical, mental and spiritual. In marriage the male and female natures are mutually complemented. "They twain shall be one flesh, so that they are no more twain, but one flesh." God's plan is that man should not be without the woman or the woman without the man (I Cor. 11:11).

3. Marriage has God's sanction (v. 9).

When God created Eve and brought her to Adam He performed the first marriage ceremony and declared that man should leave father and mother and cleave unto his wife. "What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder."

4. Marriage of the divorced forbidden (v. 10-12).

The marriage relation should only be broken by death and sin. In response to the request of the disciples for further information He declared:

(1) "Whosoever shall put away his wife and marry another committeth adultery against her."

(2) "If a woman shall put away her husband and marry another she committeth adultery."

II. Concerning Children (vv. 13-16). The union of the male and female natures, according to God's primal law of marriage, lays the foundation of family life. The normal issue of such a union is children. In connection with the divine law of marriage, it is fitting that Jesus should set forth His estimate of children and show His interest in them. Christian men and women will regard children as the property of the Lord and will esteem it a high and holy privilege to train them for Him. Observe:

1. Children brought for the touch of Jesus (v. 13).

It is incumbent upon all parents to seek for their children personal contact with Jesus.

2. The parents rebuked by the disciples for bringing their children (v. 13).

They seemed to think that attention to children was beneath the dignity of Christ.

3. Jesus' reply (vv. 14, 15). He was displeased—really indignant at their words. He is displeased today over those who are hindering their children from coming to Him.

(1) "Suffer the little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God" (v. 14). The kingdom belongs to the children.

(2) "Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall not enter therein" (v. 15). Those who count themselves morally helpless, and cast themselves upon Jesus Christ, the King, really enter the kingdom.

4. Jesus' action (v. 16).

He took the children up in His arms, put His hands upon them and blessed them. Christ is the Savior of children. Where Christ's spirit rules, childhood is sacred and children have great care.

God Is at the Door

God is knocking at the door of nations today for more recognition and more spiritual power. And the fact is that He is on the outside. When nations spurn this knock from the hand of the Almighty, it is a sure thing that they will crumble into the dust.—Oscar Burkholder.

Need of Faith

Draw nigh to God and He will draw nigh to you. Act faith if you do not feel it.—Alexander Whyte.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE'S LATEST PHOTOGRAPH

THIS portrait shows Hoover at his desk in the Department of Commerce in Washington. The Secretary has been variously pictured by his supporters for the presidential nomination lately. Some paint him as a superman; others as the most human of men. Some regard him as an extremely able executive with a high sense of honor and a tremendous capacity for doing big jobs well. Some say he is the greatest American since Lincoln. Others claim for him the keenest mind America has yet produced. But here he is shown exactly as the camera has caught him at his daily task,—famous blue serge suit and all!

GRANTSVILLE.

By G. W. Diefenbach

The boys preliminary declamation contest for the Grantsville High School was held in the Methodist Episcopal church on Monday evening. The building held a very appreciative audience and quite a lively interest was displayed. The judges of the contest were Misss Kate Bannatyne, Mrs. A. C. Stanton and Miss Beulah Engle.

The invocation was made by Rev. J. E. Johnson, following which the declaimers, four in number, two seniors, one junior and one sophomore, appeared and presented their declamations.

Lee Roy Shumaker, a senior, won the contest with his selection "Not Guilty." He delivered it in a very forceful manner. Clyde Miller, a junior and alternate in the county-wide contest, presented very effectively his declamation, "A Few Bars in the Key of 'G.'" Ralph Younkin, who is also a senior, made quite a hit with his declamation "Regulus to the Carthaginians," and received honorable mention.

John Blocher, who is a sophomore, mode his initial appearance as a declaimer in "Laddie," by Whittier. He did splendidly.

County-Wide Contest

Following the rule laid down by the Board of Education to have the county-wide contests held at various points in the county, the Lutheran church in this place has been selected as the point where the contest will be held on Friday evening of the present week.

This is the first time Grantsville has been selected as the place for holding the final contest for boys. Everyone interested is most cordially invited to attend.

Puzzley Run Bridge Damaged

On Thursday of last week, with a wet road to contend with, a car descending from Keyser's Ridge toward Puzzley Run on the National Highway, several miles west of Grantsville, became unmanageable and ran into the stone coping of the bridge, causing it to fall and a part of the roadway to slip, making a very dangerous condition, due to the steep grades at this point of the road and the deep gorge which is spanned by the bridge. The car was damaged considerably. The road authorities immediately took the necessary steps to make the requisite repairs which are now under way.

Fortunately the damage was not so great as to stop traffic entirely, a one-way portion of the road being used at this time with guards to direct motorists.

The real cause of the damage to the bridge, which would have resulted sooner or later, and which was revealed upon examination, was due to the fact that water seeped through the masonry of the structure and gradually undermined it. The arch remains intact, which will facilitate repairs.

It is the general opinion that a new bridge should be erected at this spot because of the narrowness of the roadway over the structure and the steep and winding approaches from either direction. Since traffic has become heavy and with many large vans going over the highway daily this point has become an unusually dangerous and hazardous place.

Route Signs.

The National Highway has been marked by the State Roads Commission with route signs bearing numbers which correspond with those assigned to the Federal routes, thereby making it quite easy for the tourist to get through towns of the entire State. At intersections the intersecting roads are marked in a very distinct manner, the numerals being luminous, which show up very well at night.

Why not select Cement?

TODAY, everyone in the community has an influence in selecting the type of pavement to best withstand the wear and tear of heavy traffic. Of course, that type of pavement is concrete. Whether for state or county highways, streets, alleys or driveways, concrete has proven its superiority. Cement is the chief ingredient of all concrete—it should be carefully selected.

In this vicinity you'll find permanent roads, bridges, culverts, streets and roadways built with Security Portland Cement.

Lone Eagle Visits His Chief

DURING Col. Lindbergh's recent visit to Washington, it was revealed that his chief advisor and counsellor in planning his career since his return from his traus-Atlantic flight has been the Secretary of Commerce. Mr. Hoover has heen the government's leader in the encouragement of eommercial aviation. On June 23 of last year, after Lindbergh's return from Europe, the aviator was a luncheon guest of Hoover at the Metropolitan Club in Washington, and spent that night in Hoover's home. On June 24th the Washington Star announced: "Col. Lindbergh's future is now in the hands of the Department of Commerce. After conferences with the chiefs of the War, Navy and Commerce Departments yesterday and today, the privilege of his services was won by the Department of Commerce, and all that remains is to decide definitely what form his activities will take." Thus began the partnership of Lindbergh and Hoover, who have recently been called the "two best known Americans in the world."

TEN THOUSAND MILE TEST PROVES

A six cylinder Essex was driven ten thousand miles with "Standard" Motor Oil. The cylinders were worn away only one one-thousandth of an inch, as measured by precision instruments.

The average wear in an automobile engine with oils commonly used by motorists is about three times as great in the first ten thousand miles.

This means that by using "Standard" Motor Oil you can retard wear, maintain piston seal, and reduce upkeep costs.

THE STATE ROADS COMMISSION.

(Baltimore Sun, Wednesday)

The report that the Grand Jury is preparing to make further inquiry into defalcations discovered in the State Roads Commission's funds may be taken as indicating dissatisfaction with Governor Ritchie's handling of the scandal. Unless the Grand Jury believed the previous investigation had not gone far enough, it seems improbable that it would undertake the difficult task of a new probe.

While the five employes of the Roads Commission were in the courts, it seemed proper to suspend discussion of the situation that has been uncovered. Now that they have been sentenced, it may be said that few will be surprised by the apparent viewpoint of the Grand Jury. It may be that all has been done in running down and correcting irregularities that could have been done; and it may be that the State administration has broader and more insistent plans than the public is aware of. But we think it is true that Mr. Ritchie's administration has not appeared to be as aggressive in dealing with this matter as could be desired. The general breakdown of the morale of the commission's organization, as revealed in the trials before Judge Solter, inevitably creates fears that the evils go back further than has been disclosed.

Either by the Grand Jury or by the State administration, there should be rigid examination of all the affairs of the commission. And whether the Grand Jury of the Governor Acts, ample machinery and assistance should be provided to the end that when the work is done there can be no question in the public mind that the ground has been cleared, and has been made ready for the rebuilding of the commission's organization in a manner which will restore confidence. The huge sums that are spent by the commission each year and the vast importance of its work in the economic and social progress of the people of Maryland combine to make imperative upon Governor Ritchie's administration the reestablishment of faith in the ability and in the character of the whole wide-spread organization.

And when the probe is completed and reorganization taken up, Governor Ritchie, we believe, should give the most serious consideration to the question whether he made a grave mistake when he combined the office of chairmen of the State Roads Commission with that of chief engineer. Mr. John N. Mackall, in whom the Governor combined the two offices, has been an employe or officer of the commission for many years, save a brief period spent in another State. The public has confidence in him, and there is general sympathy for him at this time. Yet, it must be said that Mr. Mackall appears to have been unable to attend to the work of both offices. The trial judge and the Governor himself have spoken of the helplessness of officials when men they trust combine to betray them. But a conspiracy so well known as to be almost an office jest should not long have escaped detection.

In the nature of things, an official charged, as Mr. Mackall has been charged, with supervision of the engineering work involved in the annual expenditure of millions of dollars on roads, and also charged with administration of the commission's business affairs and with conduct of its many-sided public relations, must spread himself out exceedingly thin. Therefore, it would seem that in whatever is done to restore the commission, an important part should be division of work at the top. The Governor should consider the appointment of a chairman whose duty would be, as in previous State administrations, to formulate the general policies of the commission and to govern and guard its business administration, and the appointment of an engineer whose mind and energies would be concentrated solely upon road-building and road-maintainance.

DIED

MRS. LOUISE SPERRY AMOS.

The death of Mrs. Louise Sperry Amos, wife of Mr. C. Whitridge Amos of Lutherville, Md., on Thursday, the 5th inst., at the Maryland General Hospital, Baltimore, was a sad ending to a very beautiful life, made the more so by the fact that she left nn infant son just four days old and a lovely little girl, aged three years.

Mrs. Amos was a native of Mountain Lake Park, being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Sperry, of that place, and upon her marriage became a resident of Lutherville and presided over the beautiful new home prepared for her by her devoted husband. She was a woman of wonderful character and early won the love nnd admiration of the ladies of the village. She was modest, gentle and unassuming, but was always foremost when called upon to assist in nny labor of love or anything for the uplift or betterment of the community.

She was a real home builder and was happiest there in the training of her little girl and in administering to the comfort and happiness of her husband. She loved the beautiful and the outdoors with its flowers, its trees and the birds always appealed to her and made her happy. She was of a beautiful Christian character and was constant in her church duties and donated the musical voice with which she was so richly gifted to the service of God and the pleasure of her friends.

Funeral services were held from her late residence on Saturday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. Wm. McCauley, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, assisted by Rev. D. M. Dibble, pastor of Grace M. E. church. The pallbearers were Judge Frank I. Duncan, Hon. E. C. Hatch, C. C. Berry, W. W. Boyce, A. E. Hatch and S. C. Amos.

Her body lies in a beautiful grove in Druid Ridge cemetery, surrounded by beautiful trees and flowers, but the spirit of Louise is where it belongs, in that City whose Maker and Builder is God.

MRS. MARY JANE GLASS.

Mrs. Mary Jane Glass, of Rosedale, widow of the late Chauncey Glass, died Monday afternoon at her home. Death was due to heart disease and dropsy. Success or What Have You

At a special meeting of the Town Council some week last Tuesday at a certain hour in the p. m. it was unanimously decided by those present that a resolution be drawn up. It read: "Be it known by our presence that a drowning on the main streets of town would be detrimental to the reputation of our council; Be it further acquainted that it is unlawful to fish within the street limits; Be it further brought to light that we do not believe the fish stories of "Jim" Painter and Harry Mickey;

Be it resolved therefore, that Liberty street, wherein said Painter was discovered missing for several days, be herein and forever repaired to the satisfaction of Scoop and Col. James Bell." Signed by Mayor Fraley and the several councilmen.

After it was all over Sam Aronhalt confided in Scoop, "We didn't want anyone drowning on the main streets of town, so as representative of the council, I will officially announce that the street will be repaired this week."

* * *

Spittoonically speaking from a cuspidorieal standpoint, this was the idea in the first place. Scoop and the Col. laid a deep plot, and for reimbursement to Scoop which was not made public, Col. Bell received a promise that if he ever moved from his present location to a place fronted by a more uneven street, a similar crusade would be waged for his benefit.

* * *

Now You Tell One

From strict and reliable information Scoop has been informed that Harry Loar threatened to spank Alva Gortner's three kids for playing on his lawn and for planting smart weed in it. This accusation was not denied by Alva.

* * *

Some Laughing Gas

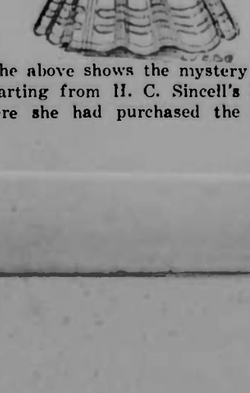
"Smiling Charlie"

The above is an intimate, although a not too intimate glance of Charlie Sprague of Kitzmiller, just after he had received his first payment on one of his insurance policies around Oakland. Needless to say, the picture would have been just the same if he had not found his prospect at all.

* * *

A Snap Of Action

The quick thinking of Col. Bell as he was busily engaged on his front porch Tuesday afternoon saved the day for Scoop and incidentally got a tearing picture of action in the original. He was shining the lens of his camera when a stranger drove up to the Oakland Garage for some gas, and the following all happened as "Pop" Loraditeh rushed out to give him service.



The Fall Of Man

As he went down, he was seen to have in his hand a part for a 1919 Chevrolet which has since disappeared. Sheriff Castel and his deputy, Joy Grifith, who made the investigation, suspect that the banana peel was cast upon the sidewalk unintentionally by James Fazzalari. Everything was finally settled satisfactorily when it was found that the stranger wanted free air and water.

* * *

Lady Is Particular

The above shows the mystery lady departing from H. C. Sincell's store where she had purchased the skirt upon her person. Carlton McComas closed the deal. She was headed for Fraley's store when snapped by the Col. and in a special interview with Scoop she said, "I am not saying what it is I expect to purchase in the store but I want it understood that I want nobody to wait upon me except Neil Fraley. He is a man of few words, and he never tells tales out of school." All of which doesn't tell us what she bought.

Town Tax Situation Serious.

From nearly every section of the country come reports of towns and some counties facing a serious situation with respect to taxation and may go bankrupt, in the opinion of Mark Graves, State tax commissioner of the State of New York.

Addressing a conference of assessors, supervisors and municipal officials of Allegany county at Belmont, N. Y., a few days ago, Mr. Graves pointed out that many rural communities are steadliy losing population and that the tax burden is becoming increasingly difficult for them.

"A serious problem in this state is that of deciding what to do about taxation in the poorer counties and the smaller towns," the Commissioner said. "We cannot go on as we are. Unless we change our methods, some counties and some towns within counties will continue to lose population and grow poorer. The time may come when they will be bankrupt."

As a means of relief he suggested that wherever possible school districts be consolidated as one means of reducing taxation for local units, and that the state pay the entire cost of highways and eventually take over most of the costs of the public school system.

Dogs Running At Large Is Unlawful, States Warden

Paragraph F of Section 20, Chapter 568, Acts of 1927, provides that it is unlawful for any person to permit their dog or dogs to run at large without an attendant on property other than their own, March 1 to September 1st, and pursue game or destroy the nests or eggs thereof, under a penalty of not less than $25.00 nor more than $100 for each and every offense.

The game division of the Conservation Department of Maryland, as has been its policy during the past several years, has completed the distribution of 15,917 cotton-tail rabbits and 6501 bob-white quail in the covers of the State, during February and March, for propagation purposes, therefore it becomes very essential that the public owning dogs should comply with the law quoted herein and assist in protecting these animals and game birds so that 100 per cent propagation may result from this brood stock.

"The greatest calamity," says a bulletin received this morning from the game department, "to our cotton-tail rabbits at this season of the year are the dogs and cats running at large. They destroy more game than the sportsmen, therefore we appeal to all dog owners and request them to keep their dogs either under leash or inclosed (at least on their own property), March 1st to September 1st, and also keep your cats at home and cooperate with us in compelling others to follow your example. The agricultural interests receive more benefit from the presence of bob-white quail on their property than any other bird which inhabits our covers, and should be interested in trying their utmost to preserve this species of game bird in every manner possible. Therefore, by keeping their dogs and cats out of the covers, not only the sportsmen but the agriculturalists will be greatly benefited by such action.

"It is impossible to propagate game 100 per cent in covers where dogs and cats are allowed to run at large and continually destroying same 365 days and nights in the year, and if the public will cooperate with us in seeing that this dog law is enforced we assure you the fall season of 1928 will show a general increase in our upland game. A mother rabbit has not one chance in a hundred to escape from dogs pursuing her at this season of the year. The nesting bob-white quail have not one chance in a hundred of escaping vermin which destroy their nests and eggs, and the roaming cat is one of their worst enemies, therefore we personally solicit the cooperation of the public in general in this important matter."

EVERY TASK A MINISTRY

I Cor. 12:4-6. Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same spirit. And there are diversities of ministrations, and the same Lord. And there are diversities of workings, but the same God who worketh all things in all.

"There are diversities of gifts." While it is true that all souls are of equal importance in the sight of God, and every citizen is entitled to equal rights in our democracy, it is also true that no two human beings are exactly alike. Nature has endowed us with differing talents and abilities.

And in the great scheme of things there is for each of us some task which we are better qauified to do than any other. If we find that task, we find satisfaction in doing it; we have in our hands the key to happiness. But if we are trying to do the other fellow's job, to which we are not temperamentally adjusted, each day is apt to be a tale of annoyance and mistakes.

"Thomas Cadyle said: "Blessed is the man who finds his work; let him seek no other blessedness."

"And there are diversities of ministrations." Every man and woman who is rendering a genuine and useful service to the physical or mental or spiritual needs of his fellow-men may truly regard himself as being a minister. Strictly speaking, there is no single profession which can be called "the" ministry. For "there are diversities of ministrations." Every vocation ought to be a ministry. Every man, whatever the labor of his hand or brain, ought to be able to say, "I am not doing this work simply to make money for myself. I am rendering a service to the community. I am ministering to the life of the world."

If you cannot say that about your work, you had better quit and get another job.

"There are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit." No two gifts are just alike; yet all are of equal importance. Every man has his necessary part to play in the great game of life. And no man has any right proudly to look down upon another engaged in a so-called "humbler" trade. Snobbery is the mark of fools. The Carpenter of Nazareth was just as divine as the Teacher of Galilee.

The only man or woman who ought to be ashamed is the man or woman who is not engaged in a genuine, bonafide labor for the welfare of the world. Whether he be poor or rich, the person who is not rendering a vital service to society in return for the benefits derived from society, is a moral hobo, a parasite upon the life of the community.

It is not the position which we occupy, humble or exalted, hut the spirit in which we do our work, and the vision which guides our hand, which makes us true servants of humanity and fellow-workers together with God in the upbuilding of His Kingdom.

RATTLES ON THE ROOF

How about that ragged roof that makes your house look bum,
And when the weather's wet keeps the family sore and glum?
If you'll listen to our answer and follow out our plan,
You won't need to catch the water in a tub, pail or pan,
But can think of other matters when the weather's wet again,
For "Genasco Asphalt Shingles" will surely shed the rain.

And the excellent appearance! what a difference will be made
By roofing with our shingles of the proper tone and shade:
They will clothe your house in splendor that will last for quite a while—
Take away that ancient look and dress it up in modern style.
These famous "Seal-Back" shingles that always lie down flat
Stand for the same in quality as J. B. Stetson's hat.

We'll be glad to make suggestions and estimate the cost,
For we know that giving service never can be time that's lost.
And the best part of the story, we hasten to declare,
The cost will not be out of reach, for our price is on the square.
Then when you let us fit you out with the best that can be had,
You'll be glad for many years that you read our roofing ad.

CANNERY IS ADDING NEW ADDITIONAL EQUIPMENT

More Corn and Pea Acreage Has Been Contracted For This Year, Manager States

In preparation for the coming canning season, the Mount Airy Canning Company at Mountain Lake Park is making extensive improvements and enlargements to the plant which will give employment to a number of men until about the first of June, according to Howard Reinhardt, local manager of the company.

An addition to the warehouse, to be of tile construction, is now being erected. An entirely new boiler and engine room is also under construction. This building will house two 50 h. p. engines and boilers of enlarged capacity. The interior of the buildings are being entirely remodeled and much new equipment is being added in all departments. The aim of the management is to make the work during the canning season easier and more systematic.

Pea Acreage Large.

Approximately one hundred acres more of peas are being planted this year than were planted last year by the farmers, it was stated, and about twice as much corn will be grown. In all there will be six hundred acres of peas and two hundred acres of corn. An additional viner has been erected at the Gortner station to care for the crop grown in that section. Four viners will be at work in this station during the season.

To Try Cabbage.

Cabbage seed is being planted at the H. Weber & Sons greenhouses, according to Mr. Reinhardt, and the resultant plants will be given out to the farmers for an experiment in growing commerical cabbage. All that is asked that a reasonable percentage of the matured cabbage be sent to the canning company. The crop will be taken to Mount Airy and compared with the cabbage grown in that section of the State, and if it proves as good or better than the product at the latter place, the plant at Mountain Lake Park will eventually can cabbage in addition to the corn and peas now canned.

No estimate of the cost of the additions and remodelling of the plant was given by Mr. Reinhardt, except that it would amount to a considerable sum.

Found Guilty and Fined $100 for Driving Car While Under the Influence of Intoxicants.

Harold Browning of Warrer, Ohio, was found guilty on a charge of driving a car while under the influence of intoxicants by Justice W. A. Gonder Sunday afternoon and was fined $100 and costs.

Bronson Brady, of Deer Park, who was Browning's companion in the car, was fined $5 and costs on a charge of reckless driving.

Brady was at the wheel of the car when Sheriff Casteel apprehended him and brought him into Oakland from a point on the highway near Gortner. The other occupants of the car were told by the officer to remain in the machine until his return, but did not choose to obey the command, according to witnesses, and Browning started to drive toward Gortner on the Oakland-Thomas road when he was overtaken by Deputy Sheriff Griffith, who had been sent out to bring the car and its occupants into town. He placed Browning under arrest on the charge as above. The fines were paid and the offenders were released.

LOCAL CREAMERY PLANT AGAIN TO INCREASE SIZE

New Equipment For Handling Grade A Milk To Be Installed —Buildings to be Extended

Keeping pace with the march of the dairy industry in Garrett county, the Oakland Creamery Company, of which Mr. George D. Sprague is the local manager, has let contracts for enlarging the plant and for the installation of new additional equipment for handling Grade A milk in large quantities, thus giving an additional market for the product of the farmer and dairymen of the community.

To carry out the plans, an outlay of approximately $5,000 will be required.

The contract for enlarging the building was awarded to Stanton D. Whipkey, local contractor, and will be under the supervision of L. H. Stewart, chief engineer of the Imperial Ice Cream Company, of which the Oakland Creamery Company is a subsidiary.

From time to time during the past several years the Creamery Company has made extensive improvements and enlargements consistent with the progress of dairying in the community, and the present expansion is one more cycle of the evolution through which all industries proceed as necessity requires.

The policy of employing and developing home talent in the dairy industry is one that has always been consistently adhered to by the local company, Mr. Sprague said, and supplies, material and equipment have always been purchased in Oakland, he further stated.

Market Secured for Grade A Milk

Markets are secured for Garrett county farmers for Grade A milk, creamery officials state, and in this connection E. Stanley Haller, field representative of the Imperial Ice Cream Company, Parkersburg, W. Va., is now available to lend his assistance on any dairy question without cost to the farmer. Mr. Haller states that he desires to be of assistance to all the farmers and dairymen of the county and offers his services to be used either in public meetings or at private conferences where dairy subjects are to be discussed.

During the few weeks that Mr. Haller has been in Oakland he has been of much valuable assistance to the farmers, it is said by a number of them with whom he has discussed the various phases of dairying.

The county's quota is ten this year and as the quotas from other counties of the State are being filled, it is urged upon those contemplating attending the camp this year to make their applications as soon as possible in order to be sure of having them accepted.

POSTMASTER AT SWANTON MAY GET REWARD MONEY

Bill In House of Representatives Would Authorize Payment

Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman succeeded in securing favorable action by the House of Representatives on Friday on his bill to authorize the payment of $2,000 to Jos. F. Friend, postmaster at Swanton, for the capture and arrest of Henderson Hall, a Negro, who attempted the robbery of the postoffice at Swanton on September 17, 1925.

Because of the fact that the bullet fired by Mr. Friend which took effect in Henderson's face and pierced his frontal brain, causing him to become insane, the Negro could not be tried and convicted for the attempted robbery and therefore, under the regulations of the Postoffice Department the reward for the capture and conviction of Hall could not be paid to Mr. Friend, as the regulations governing the payment of rewards provide that the suspect must be tried and convicted of the robbery of which he is charged, or of the attempted robbery, before the payment of the reward can be made.

The Negro, Hall, according to The Republican's files, was surprised by Postmaster Friend as he was in the act of robbing the postoffice at Swanton on the night of September 17, 1925, and a pistol battle followed during which Hall was shot through the stomach and in the face, the bullet fired into his face penetrating his brain.

Hall staggered from the postoffice following the shooting and was later found lying along the Baltimore and Ohio railway tracks some distance from the scene of the shooting. He was brought to Oakland by Sheriff G. O. Yutzy, later, being a Federal prisoner, taken to Cumberland and lodged in the jail there. As above stated he became demented and was never called for trial. He is now in a Government hospital for the insane.

Mr. Friend, during the battle, was also struck by a bullet, the missile lodging in his face and destroying one of his eyes. He also sustained a number of lacerations about his head and face when the negro during the fight used his revolver as a club.

May Extend High Tension Line and Illuminate Along Deep Creek

Encouraging progress in regard to the matter of having the Penn Public Service Corporation extend its service lines and furnish electric lights from McHenry to Rainbow Inn, was made at the meeting of Deep Creek property owners held on Tuesday evening at Rainbow Inn, according to one of those who attended the meeting. Mr. Wilhelm and Mr. Matthews, representing the electric company, were also present at the meeting. A committee was appointed to take the matter up with the various property owners and the matter of financing the project. It is thought that something definite will be accomplished in the near future.

The fishing season on the lake opens on June 1 and other attractions are expected to make it a popular resort.

TO CONSTRUCT SIDING FOR NEW DAIRY THIS WEEK

Building Will be Erected When 1000 Gallons Daily Is Supplied By Dairymen of County

The construction of a siding leading from the main tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to the property recently purchased from that company by business men of Oakland as a site for the location of a milk shipping station, assures the establishment of a second dairying concern here, it was stated yesterday.

The property was purchased for the use of the Chestnut Farms Dairy, Washington, D. C., from which location milk will be shipped into Washington, D. C., and work upon the siding will be under way before the end of the present week, James A. Hodges, an official of the railway company, said on Tuesday.

A contract has been signed in which the Dairy Farms corporation agrees to operate a refrigerated car between Oakland and Washington, starting on May 1, or as soon thereafter as a quantity of 500 gallons of milk per day is procured, and the agreement further stipulates that the dairy company is to erect proper buildings on the site near the Manhattan Hotel as soon as the quantity of milk received daily reaches a total of one thousand gallons. The contract is between Mr. Brawner, president of the Washington dairy company and the Garrett County Dairy committee.

Field representative W. V. Davidson, of the Chestnut Farms Dairy, is in the county at this time and during the week has been visiting farmers and dairymen in an advisory capacity and assisting them in the remodeling of their dairy barns. Mr. Davidson may be reached through the County Agent's office in Oakland.

Only Five Reactors in 814 Cattle Tested in County.

During the past three weeks in which Dr. D. E. Poe and Dr. M. H. Trout, United States Livestock Division of the Department of Agriculture, have been giving Garrett county cattle the tuberculin test, there have been only five reactors in the 814 cattle tested.

"Just how much longer they will be here for testing depends upon the farmers," Mr. McGlone, County Agent for this county, said yesterday "All those desiring their herds to be tested should get in touch with the office at once."

A meeting of the Garrett County Game and Fish Protective Association has been called for Wednesday, May 2, at the City Hall, Oakland. Each member of the Association is asked to bring a friend to join the organization. No additional dues are required from present members.

KITZMILLER HIGH YOUTH WINSDECLAMATION HONOR

First Place In Boys' Contest is Awarded to Clark Walker— Oakland Takes Second

First place in the Third County-Wide Boys' Declamation contest, sponsored by Delbert Davis, cashier of the First National Bank of Oakland, was awarded to Clark Walker, of Kitzmiller High School, at the Grantsville Lutheran church last Friday evening. The winning declaimer gave the selection "Danny," it being the same piece with which he won second place last year in Oakland where the contest upon that occasion was held.

Thomas Gonder, of Oakland High School, was awarded second place by the judges, and LeVerne East, of the Friendsville school, third.

Representatives from all parts of the county packed the church to the doors and there was much enthusiasm apparent when favorites from the various schools arose to address those making up the audience.

I. F. Hartman and F. W. Smith, instructors in the Keyser (West Va.) high school, and W. H. Cobb, of the State Roads Commission, Morgantown, W. Va., were the judges.

Thomas Gonder gave "Fear God and Take Your Own Part." LeVerne East gave "Beau Nash." Albert Buckle, Accident High, and Lee Roy Shumaker, Grantsville High, were the other contestants.

Several musical selections were given between declamations by students of the various schools. Following the announcement of the judges decision, the awards were presented.

First prize was $25; second, $15, and third, $10, to be presented to the high schools which the contestants represent and to be spent for library or reference books.

Oakland High School, represented by Wiley Welling, won first place in the first boys' contest which was held in 1926 at Kitzmiller, and Mason Callis, Accident High, second.

At Oakland, in 1927, Virgil Ryland, Friendsville High, won first; Clark Walker, Kitzmiller, second, and Kenneth Stahl, Oakland, third.

To Confer Rank of Knight Friday Evening.

PACKED HOUSE WITNESSES "KICKED OUT OF COLLEGE"

Robert Stemple Keeps Audience In Laughter Throughout Play

Before as large a crowd as ever packed the Maryland Theatre, the Civics Class of the Oakland High School presented "Kicked Out of College," a comedy in three acts, under the direction of Mrs. Kathryn Helbig, last Thursday night.

The play was extremely amusing and was made more so by the acting of Robert Stemple, who played his part to perfection. He was not far ahead of Kenneth Stahl, Robert Stanton, Thomas Gonder, Helen Hinebaugh, Martha Gonder, Evelyn Bosley, Dorothy Stevenson and others in the cast, however, for all presented their parts in artistic style. Roland Ready and Mary Grace Shirer, the dusky man and maiden, played their parts well, and Leonard Murphy, Charles Dodge, Denver Sanders, Thurl Tower, George Altstetter, Lavona Blamble, Louise Lauer, Virginia Kelley and Mary Louise Helhig all came in for their just share of praise.

Sold! $17,000 worth of Cars

and less than two tenths of 1% for the Telephone

In speaking of Long Distance — the sales manager of a well-known automobile company says:

"I consider the TELEPHONE the most valuable, and at the same time the cheapest, sales asset I have."

With only ten long distance calls, costing the sum of $19.50 [one-tenth of one per cent], this man sold $17,000 worth of cars at a considerable profit to himself.

Another prominent motor vehicle concern makes four contacts every month with 300 customers in the smaller buying centers, three of which are made by telephone, and the fourth, by a personal visit of the same salesman. They have found that this method pays real returns.

FROM the time chicks step out of their shells, they look to you for protection and care to live and thrive. Poultry yard facts show that more than 90% of the chicks fed Purina Startena and Purina Baby Chick Chow live and grow rapidly into plump broilers and early laying pullets. Isn't it sound business economy to feed Purina, which saves 9 out of 10, instead of average mixtures on which 5 out of 10 chicks die? Come in and let us show you how to save chicks and get them to early maturity.

SPARKS FROM AN OAKLAND PULPIT

THE AMERICAN IDOLATRY.

American cities are rated in importance according to the size of their population. Here in Maryland, for instance, we see the intense rivalry between Cumberland and Hagerstown as to which is the larger. The people of these cities do not seem to care very much about which town has the cleaner streets, or the cleaner politics, or the cleaner reputation, or the cleaner boys and girls and men and women. But, my! how they wait with bated breath for the latest census reports.

According to the American standard, New York is our best city, Chicago the next best, and so on down the list. It might jolt us to our senses to remember that the little city of Athens in ancient times, with its few thousands of people, produced more great philosophers, artists, dramatists, poets and scholars than all the stupendous cities of America with all their vast populations added together.

Mere size is the smallest thing in the world. You cannot measure the importance of a city with a yardstick. Nor can you measure the value of a man by the number of cars in his garage, or the number of bonds in his safe-deposit box.

We Americans suffer from an inverted scale of values, a distorted vision which magnifies trivialties and minimizes the real essentials of life.

"The creation of a thousand forests is in one acorn," says Emerson And we might add that the potentiality of a thousand tears is in one unkind word, or even look.

One day the Master stood in the temple court and watched the worshipers as they deposited their gifts in the treasury. One by one the Pharisees strutted by, each pompously casting his gold coin with a resounding clank into the chest. Then came a widow, dressed in a threadbare garment. Timidly she hesitated, and then with shrinking haste hurried up to the box, dropped in two tiny copper coins; and fled from the scene, ashamed of her insignificant gift. But the Master said to His disciples, That woman has given more than all those Pharisees with all their alms; for they gave only the crumbs of their abundance, while she has given all that she had.

DIED.

MRS. CATHERINE BOLDEN

Mrs. Catherine Lowenstein Bolden, widow of the late Simon E. Bolden, former resident of Oakland, died at 11:25 o'clock last Thursday morning at the Memorial Hospital, Johnstown, Pa., where she had been a patient since ten o'clock Sunday night, following an injury she received by being struck by an automobile at Wood and McMillen streets in that city.

She stepped in front of a car driven by Edward Bette and was knocked some distance. One of her legs was broken and she received a severe scalp wound. Her condition was not considered serious at any time following the accident and she seemed to be resting comfortably when her physician visited her at the hospital Thursday morning, but about 11:30 she collapsed and expired a short time later. Her death was due to embolism.

Mrs. Bolden was born at Grantsville and lived for a number of years in Oakland where she was well known and had many friends. She had been a resident of Johnstown for about 20 years. ## TO OBSERVE BOYS' WEEK CELEBRATION ON SUNDAY

Rotary Club Inaugurating Day for Boys to be Addressed by Judge Doub at Theatre

Boys' Week, under the auspices of the Oakland Rotary Club, will be inaugurated and celebrated in Oakland on Sunday afternoon next when Hon. Albert A. Doub, Associate Judge of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, will deliver an address in the Maryland Theatre. Judge Doub, known far and wide as a lover of manly boys, has a large circle of friends and warm admirers in the county, and a large attendance is anticipated

The Rotary Club will march to the theatre followed by the Boy Scouts, the Crellin Boys' Band, the Gilbert-Brown Boys Band of Oakland, and boys from every nook and corner of the county, if they will come, for it is the aim of the Rotarians to have representative boys from every section. After the boys are seated in the theatre the grown-ups will be admitted.

Dr. H. W. McComas, president of the Rotary, will preside atthe meeting. Charles W. Ream, H. C. Sincell and Lawrence M. Fraley compose the committee in charge of the celebration and have made arrangements for the proper observance of the event.

Originated in New York City

Boys' Week was originated some time in 1920 by the Rotary Club of New York City, when it was started off with a parade, followed by various other observances on the other days of the week. The original parade was begun with a gronp of a dozen boys and before it had covered half a dozen blocks the parade had increased to hundreds.

This year three hundred or four hundred towns and cities of the nation and of the world, for Rotary now encircles the globe, are engaged in celebrating the event. Oakland is one of the towns to make its entrance in the movement this year. Hereafter it will be an annual event, but according to members of the organization it will be upon a more elaborate scale.

Pittsburgh Christian Advocate Carries Tribute to the Late Rev. Albert D. Craig.

A tribute to the late Rev. Albert D. Craig, written by Rev. W. M. Shultz, district superintendent, Morgantown District, appeared in the March 22 issue of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate, official organ of the Methodist Episcopal church. A few excerpts from the article follow:

"He was received on trial in the West Virginia Conference in the fall of 1899, and into full connection in 1903. He served the following charges: Milton, two years; Central City, six years; Philippi, four years; Kingwood, five years; Cameron, three years; Andrews, Grafton, two years; Elkins, two years; Diamond street, Fairmont, five years, and five months at Oakland. He was a workman that needed not to be ashamed. Among the fine traits of character of Brother Craig and of his ministry it could be said he was genial, a fine personality, a good preacher and a remarkable pastor, and all of these fine traits he expended on his people."

O. H. S. Notes.

"Kicked Out of College," a comedy, given hy the Civics Class at the Maryland Theatre under the direction of Mrs. Kathryn Helbig, was a great success. Each character carried out his or her part almost as well as a professional. The amount taken in was $143.25 and after expenses were deducted, which were $63.10, left a balance of $80.15. The class has decided to present two dictionaries to the school and to purchase a number of books for the library.

Miss Louise Lewis, a former student in the school, who is now residing at Denver, Col., with her parents, visited the school last Friday.

Appeal Made By Boys' Band For Music Racks, Lyres, Etc.

"With approximately only $100 needed by the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band in order to enable two much needed horns to be purchased, it looks very much like the people had forgotten about the band during the past week," Mr. R. R. Gilbert, director, said yesterday morning. "No donations have been forthcoming."

The band this week is making an appeal to members of former Oakland musical organizations for music racks, instruments, lyres, music and other equipment, which may be found in the household discards. "These will be most welcome," Mr. Gilbert said.

Mr. Gilbert also wished that the person or persons who borrowed about twenty of their chairs from the band hall would return them. "We had to borrow chairs from the Knights of Pythias lodge last Tuesday night," he said.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

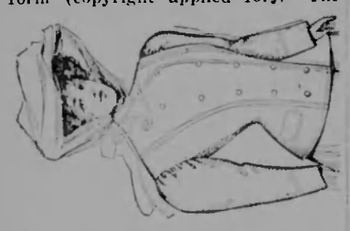
By Scoop.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS MURDER OF FAMOUS MYSTERY WOMAN

She Had Just Departed From Fraley's Store With Mysterious Package

On the main street and in broad daylight, a masked knight of the road last Wednesday assaulted the "Mystery Lady" and with a deadly weapon beat her so severely the effects of which, it is uspected, resulted in her death. The bandit made off with the package just purchased at the Fraley store, but in his haste he left valuable clues as to his identity, which are expected to lead to his arrest: These clues are:



Upon investigation by the sheriff and his untiring deputies, it was found that the unknown man had in his possession a copy of The Republican and it is thought that upon reading in "Scoop's" column where the young lady had refused to tell what it was she was going to purchase, his curiosity got the best of him.

* * *

The Remains.

Col. Bell was on the scene as usual and took a picture of the recumbent form (copyright applied for). The spots where she was beaten by her assailant are well hidden.

May Never Know.

Unless the miscreant is captured it may never be known what was in the package. None know the contents except Neil Fraley, who sold the article, and the villain who took his victim unawares. Neil Fraley won't divulge the knowledge he possesses, so it is up to the readers of Scoop to aid in finding the criminal. Suggestions will be received any day next week as to his whereabouts.

* * *

A personal interview with "Pop" Loraditch, who was reported last week to have fallen via the banana peel route, in his excitement as he attempted to wait on a gas customer, shows that a grave error was committed by Scoop.

"Pop" didn't fall at all, but was so flabbergasted at seeing Michael Maroney and his cohorts repairing the holes in Liberty street eaoin mmm holes in front of his garage on Liberty street, that he fainted dead away and was gone for 31 hours and 10 minutes. He is now reported as completely recovered and it is rumored that he has expressed sincere thanks to Col. Bell and Scoop for their untiring efforts in having the street repaired.

* * *

An Abundance of Scabs.

There were more stiff legs in town during the past two weeks than were seen at the annual convention of peglegs recently held at Bear Hill,and the question uppermost in the minds of Oakland people is not "Have you been vaccinated?" but "Where?"

* * *

An Expert Cannoneer.

The foregoing is a closeup of Walter Janoske as he will appear at the unveiling of the American Legion gun on the Court House lawn sometime in July (maybe). Walt is applying the spark which will set off the sky rocket and Roman candle, and his face has a broader smile upon it than the night the cannon was unloaded at the railroad yard in Oakland. (Reason given upon request).

* * *

How Many Roads in a Street?

Scoop is wondering just how complicated a street can be after he heard, or saw, somewhere, sometime recently, some place, that "the road on Liberty street was being repaired" and that "the road on Second street needed it."

Mr. David Lower has purchased the Jackson property in this village and has moved here with his family.

Mrs. C. E. Hardesty was hostess for the April meeting of the U. B. Ladies' Aid at her home. Mrs. Ben Harvey, Mrs. Elizabeth Longridge and Mrs. Melva Gauer were guests of the evening. Refreshments were served at the close of the business meeting. The May meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. E. Kesner.

The regular monthly meeting of the P.-T. Association was held at the public school building on Thursday evening. Plans are being made for a May Day celebration to be held on May 18.

WORST STORM OF SEASON FELT DURING WEEK END

Fall of 26 Inches of Snow Recorded, Which Leaves Suddenly, and Flood Feared

One of the worst snow storms of the year was experienced in this section of the country on Friday and Saturday, the U. S. Weather Bureau instrument at Weber's showing that 26 inches of snow fell during the period from Thursday midnight until Saturday afternoon at five o'clock.

High winds in parts of the county drifted the snow and blocked all highways leading out of Oakland until late Sunday night.

The West Penn buses, operating between Oakland Morgantown; the Meyer Transit Co., operating a line of buses to Thomas and Davis, and the Blue Ridge busses running from Oakland to the National Highway, were all unable to maintain their schedules. In some cases all attempts to make the runs were abandoned, especially on the Keyser Ridge and Morgantown runs, when the vehicles became snowbound on the roadways. Telephone communication was interrupted as well as telegraph lines being down until Monday. Oakland and other sections served by the West Maryland Company, was without lights or electric power from Saturday afternoon until Saturday night nine o'clock.

Grantsville and the surrounding territory was without electric energy from Friday until Sunday night.

Flood Was Feared.

When Wilson Creek, which runs through the heart of town, began to rise rapidly Monday morning a flood in the business section of town was feared. The water continued to rise until evening when the creek waters receded. About this time Little Youghiogheny River showed signs of rising and it was feared that the waters from this stream, backing up into Wilson Creek would eventually overflow and do damage to the stores and other property, but toward evening the water settled back in the regular channels and the pending danger was passed.

Members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department and several of the City Councilmen worked throughout the day in doing what they could to relieve conditions as they arose along the creek and river banks.

Damage to Telephone Co.

Maryland telephone companies suffered severely, 300 poles being broken down and service to more than 2500 families was interrupted. The cost to the telephone company by reason of the damage sustained as a result of the storm will be more than $100,000, according to W. A. Condit, vice-president of the C. & P. Telephone Company. In West Virginia the damage was in excess of $225,000; in Virginia, the estimate was placed at $25,000.

Tuesday saw hardlly a trace of the severe setback to the season, as the strong sunshine of Sunday and Monday quickly melted the snow.

Standard Teacher Training School To Open Monday Night

The Standard Teachers Training school will hold its first session on Monday evening, May 7, at 7:30, in St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland, and will continue each evening with two class periods and a chapel period, concluding on Friday evening when credits and awards will be given out, according to officials who have been instrumental in having the school organized.

Three splendid courses are being offered, with splendid teachers. Textbooks will be used in each course and each pupil is required to register.

All officers, teachers and Sunday school workers in the community are expected to take advantage of this school and opportunities it offers.

Ryan's Glade Farmers Meet to Discuss Good Roads.

About twenty farmers were present at a special meeting at Ryan's Glade last Thursday, when good roads and dairying were discussed at some length.

Many farmers of that section are desirous of bringing their milk to Oakland to be shipped, according to J. L. McGlone, county agent, but the lack of good roads does not permit this except at certain periods of the year.

A committee was appointed at the meeting to wait on the County Commissioners in the interest of an improved road through that section.

GARRETT COUNTY WOMAN ATTEMPTS TO END LIFE

Ill Health and Despondency Are Given as Cause For Act.

Mrs. Cora Duckworth, wife of Chas. Duckworth, residing one mile east of State Line on the National Highway, and three miles west of Keyser Ridge, attempted to end her life by cutting her throat in four places with a razor, at the family home sometime between three and five o'clock on last Wednesday morning. Mrs. Duckworth has been in ill health for some time, having undergone a surgical operation and not having fully recovered from its effects. She has been despondent and was unable to work, it was stated by members of the family and those who made an investigation of the affair.

Mrs. Duckworth was found at five o'clock by her husband, who was sleeping in an adjoining room at the home. Dr. N. R. Davis, Grantsville, was immediately summoned and he dressed the woman's wounds and assured the members of the family that she would recover. Mrs. Duckworth was in a very weakened condition as a result of losing so much blood prior to her discovery and the arrival of the physician.

She is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Beachy and the mother of five children.

PLANS BEING WORKED OUT FOR FRIENDSVILLE SCHOOL

New Elementary and High Building Expected to be Erected and Completed by October First

Plans and specifications are being worked out by the County Board of Education for the erection of a new elementary and high school building at Friendsville, according to County Superintendent of Schools F. E. Rathbun.

Capt. A. A. Hileman, Frederick, is the architect and he has promised to send blue prints of the proposed building within the next few days, Mr. Rathbun said. When these are approved and adopted by the Board of Education bids will be asked for the erection of the structure.

The building, which will be modern in every department, will contain ten to twelve rooms, one of which will be a spacious assembly hall. The structure, should it be erected, will be completed and ready for occupancy in November or December, according to present plans.

In preparation for this building program practically a block of land in the town of Friendsville was purchased in December, 1925, and plans have been more or less in the working ever since.

The Friendsville building will complete a sort of cycle among the hign schools in the county. In 1918 the Oakland high school was begun, and since that time Grantsville high school has been substantially added to; Kitzmiller has had a new building erected; an addition has been built to the Accident structure and according to the rotation of the cycle, it is now the turn of Friendsville.

Additions and improvements to other buildings are badly needed at this time, but it was felt that the need of Friendsville was the most pressing in the matter of facilities for educating the present generation of boys and girls.

To Hold Two District Short Courses May 4-5; May 7-8.

Miss Venia M. Kellar, State Home Demonstration leader, has made special arrangements for two district short course meetings in clothing and house furnishing. Miss Helen Shelby, the district agent and clothing specialist, will be in the county and conduct these meetings, Miss Elsie Benthien, local agent, has announced.

The first meeting will be held May 4-5 in Grantsville for the members of the Homemakers Clubs in Accident, Friendsville, Bittinger, Turner and Grantsville. The second meeting will be held in Oakland on Monday and Tuesday, May 7 and 8, for the Homemakers' Clubs of Sunnyside, Mt. Lake Park, Loch Lynn Heights, Hutton and Oakland.

The course will include fitting and making a guide pattern, color, children's clothes, window decoration and house furnishings. A more detailed plan of work and program will be sent to all Homemokers' Club members in a short time.

GAS RATE TO BE REDUCED JUNE 1, IT IS ANNOUNCED

New Schedule Will Affect Oakland, Mountain Lake Park, Loch Lynn and Deer Park

A new scale of rates, descending from the present flat rate of 80 cents per thousand cubic feet, has been filed voluntary with the Public Service Commission of Maryland by the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas company, according to R. R. Gilbert, local manager, and beginning June 1, the lower rate will go into effect. Letters regarding this reduction were sent to the Mayors and Town Councils of Mt. Lake Park, Loch Lynn, Deer Park and Oakland.

Following is the new schedule of rates as announced in the letter:

Rate per thousand cu. ft. for first 5,000 cu. ft., gross, 82 cents, net, 80 cents; rate per thousand cu. ft. for next 5,000 cu. ft., gross 72 cents, net 70 cents; rate per thousand cu. ft. for all additional gas, gross 62 cents, net 60 cents.

The gross revenue, based on 1927 consumption, will be reduced by $22,000, it was stated, and corresponding ly the Maryland consumers will be benefited by $22,000.

This is a voluntary reduction on the part of the Gas company, according to J. A. Mayers, vice-president, in order that its domestic and commercial consumers may be in a position to enjoy a more liberal use of gas, and for a greater variety of purposes, at a very much less possible cost than under the present flat rate. for the training of officers and also for teachers. At least one hundred registrants are expected.

BOYS' BAND STILL HAS ROOM FOR NEW MEMBERS

Additional Boys Will Be Welcome—Donation Made

There is still plenty of room in the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band for new members, stated R. R. Gilbert, director, yesterday, and anyone who is desirous of joining is most welcome, he said. The altos, trombones, baritones and bass horn sections will be built up by any new applicants, as the band now has plenty of cornet and clarinet players.

The cornet of Dr. John E. Legge of Baltimore, which was given to the band as long as use was made of it, was brought to Oakland last Thursday by Mr. Henry Lauer upon his return from Baltimore, and this will be given to one of the members of the organization.

"There was a donation of five dollars this week," Mr. Gilbert said. "The donor expressed a wish that nothing be said to indicate who it was that gave so liberally."

New caps were purchased and were given to the boys last Sunday afternoon. These caps will be worn by the members upon all public occasions. It is also planned to buy white trousers to match the hats in the very near future. "The band will appear on the street before very long," Mr. Gilbert promised.

Boys' Potato Club Getting Ready for Planting Seed

Planting of the certified potato seed sent out by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to the Certified Potato Seed Club of Oakland and vicinity, will take place in a short time, according to O. T. Graser, agricultural instructor in the Oakland high school, who is supervising the work. L. S. Hartley, agricultural agent for the Baltimore and Ohio, was in Oakland on Saturday and distributed the seed, which came from Northern New York growers.

The members of the club, who are planting one-half acre each of potatoes are as follows Lawrence Bittinger William Friend, Joseph Glotfelty, Benson Kelley, Harland Ridder, William Spiker, Charles Spoerlein, Logan Weber, Wellington Welch and Lester White.

The railway company furnishes five bushels of seed potatoes to each member, which is sufficient to plant a quarter of an acre, and each boy has purchased additional seed which will give him a quantity sufficient to plant another quarter acre. The work will be inspected at regular intervals by Mr. Hartley and County Agent McGlone. A prize will be awarded the grower of the best crop.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stanton have announced the birth of a son, Andrew Robert, born yesterday morning.

FIRE FIGHTERS RESPOND TO TWO CALLS LAST WEEK

Three Buildings Saved at Blisstown, But One Burns—Rock Lodge Is Destroyed.

Fire, of undetermined origin, destroyed one house and damaged three others located at Blisstown, a mining hamlet just west of Crellin and owned by the Stanley Coal Company, last Thursday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock, and except for the quick response and good work of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, would have totally destroyed all four of the building, occupied as residences by employes of the coal company.

The fire originated in the house occupied by Albert Alexander and the entire second floor of the structure was in flames when discovered. Dwellings adjacent and occupied by Walter Johnson, Lloyd Armstrong and Bruce Lewis and George Friend, were saved. There was no insurance and the loss to the coal company will amount to approximately $1500.

Letter of Appreciation.

Charles W. Ream, president of the coal company, acknowledged the work done by the local fire company in a letter to George Kerins, fire chief, in which he also expressed his thanks to the department for its prompt action. The letter follows:

Crellin, Md., May 1, 1928.

George Kerins, Chief,
Oakland Volunteer Fire Department,
Oakland, Maryland.

Dear Sir:—We wish to express our appreciation to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department for the quick response and excellent service rendered us last Friday, when the residence occupied by Albert Alexander caught fire in an upstairs room. When the fire was first discovered the entire upstairs was ablaze. Mr. Alexander lost all his furniture on the upper floor.

In just eleven minutes from the time that the fire call was given from Crellin the Oakland Fire Department was in Crellin. This is what we call real service. When the fire truck reached the fire the Alexander house was too far gone to be saved and three other houses were on fire. That occupied by Walter Johnson, one end and the entire roof were ablaze, the fire extending ten to twelve feet into the air, and only by the prompt and excellent work done by the fire department was this building as well as the residences occupied by Lloyd Armstrong, Bruce Lewis and George Friend, saved.

The Oakland Fire Department is a very valuable asset to this section of Garrett county; an organization worthy of our best support and one of which we can all be proud.

Very truly yours,
CHARLES W. REAM.

Rock Lodge Burns.

Rock Lodge, the home of F. F. Nicola, located on Cherry Creek, a tributary to Deep Creek Lake, was totally destroyed by fire of undetermined origin on Friday afternoon. The caretaker of the property was engaged elsewhere on the place when the fire was discovered by his wife and upon entering the building the interior was a mass of flames. The structure was of stone and the interior was of wood, which, with the roof timbers, was burned to ashes.

A call was telephoned to Oakland for the fire department and two of the trucks set out. The drivers were forced to turn back, however, after going out about a mile on account of the driving sleet and snow and the consequent inability to keep the vehicles in the road. Members of the department, however, piled hand equipment into a touring car and arrived at the scene of the fire, but too late to be of much assistance.

The building was erected several years ago by Mr. Nicola at a cost of approximately $10,000.

Jake Bonner Escapes from Jail at Thomas, W. Va.

Jake Bonner, 25, of White Church, who was lodged in the Thomas (W. Va.) jail on last Saturday night on a charge of larceny, the alleged crime having been committed in Garrett county, broke from the prison sometime Saturday night and when Deputy Sheriff Griffith and Constable Andrew Shartzer went to the West Virginia town Sunday morning for the purpose of bringing him to Oakland, they were met by officials there and informed that the bird had flown. The cell in which Bonner had been placed was securely locked, no bars were broken and the officials are now confronted with the mystery of how the prisoner escaped.

Bonner was placed under arrest by Wm. McVeigh, Western Maryland Railway officer, and was lodged in jail at Thomas only after a severe struggle.

JOS. E. HARNED ELECTED PRESIDENT OF ROTARIANS

At Meeting of Board of Directors Held Last Night.

Mr. F. E. Rathbun was elected vice-president; Delbert Davis, secretary; R. R. Gilbert, treasurer; H. C. Sincell, sergeant-at-arms.

The Board of Directors was chosen at the regular meeting of the club on last Friday night and is composed of the following Walter W. Dawson, J. E. Harned, Charles W. Ream, F. E. Rathbun, James A. Towler, R. R. Gilbert and H. W. McComas, the latter a member of the board by virtue of being past president of the club.

Mr. Gilbert, Mr. H. A. Loraditch and Mr. Ream all gave short impromptu talks at the meeting Friday evening.

HEALTH WEEK IN GARRETT COUNTY MAY 28-JUNE 1

A welfare clinic for children from one to seven years of age, a tuberculosis clinic for all ages, a pre-school clinic and the second orthopedic clinic to be held in Garrett county, will be the program to be carried out during the week of May 28, which has been designated as Health Week, according to Miss Rhesa M. King, county public health nurse of Oakland.

The program as arranged is as follows: May 28, welfare clinic for children from one to four years of age, starting at 9:30 o'clock and continuing throughout the day. This clinic will be in charge of Dr. Charlotte Gardner, of Cumberland.

May 29, the same clinic continued for children from four to seven years old. There will be examinations of the chest, eyes, ears, nose, throat, teeth, weight and measurement and those needing attention will be referred to their family physician for diagnosis and treatment.

May 30, a tuberculosis clinic to be conducted by Dr. John Nicholas, Baltimore. All old cases as well as new ones should report at this clinic. Chest condition, expectoration of blood, etc., will be investigated.

May 31, a clinic for all children of pre-school age, who will be old enough to attend school in the fall, will be conducted by local physicians and anyone in the county who is in Oakland on that day, may be examined free of charge. This is to ascertain whether or not the child is in proper condition to enter school. This clinic will be held in connection with the Field Day meet, which is to occur on that day in Oakland.

June 1, the second orthopedic clinic in the history of the county will be held with Dr. George Gennett, of Baltimore, in charge. All return cases and any other cases not examined last year should attend at this time.

Lunch will be served at the Court House, as was last year. The Boy Scouts will assist and cars for the transportation of patients will be donated by members of the Oakland Rotary Club. More details of this clinic will be announced later, Miss King said.

Money For the Cripples.

The Lenten service offerings taken in the various churches prior to Easter, amounting to $52.42, has been turned over to Miss King for the benefit of the crippled children.

Other Health Notes.

Miss King returned home Saturday from the health conference in Baltimore where she spoke on "Supervision of Crippled Children." Before returning she visited all the orthopedic patients now in the hospital sent from Garrett county and found them doing quite well.

Miss King has just completed an examination of pupils in the Grantsville district, after having spent three weeks in that community. Children with defects were referred to the family physician for diagnosis and treatment.

Patients for the tuberculosis preventorium, a camp located near Baltimore for tuberculosis contacts, are now being lined up by Miss King. Those in the county to go to the institution will be selected in a short time, she said.

Twelve hundred fourteen cattle have been subjected to the tuberculin test in Garrett county during the past four weeks by Dr. D. E. Poe and Dr. M. H. Trout, of the Department of Agriculture, and only seven reactors have been discovered, according to County Agent J. L. McGlone. "This is still far better than any other county in the State," Mr. McGlone said yesterday.

The two specialists will be here two or three weeks longer, it was stated, as they expect to make the test in the Ryan's Glade section of the county within the next few days. Many requests have come to the county agent for this test and he wants all those who desire the test to notify him at once.

SPARKS FROM AN OAKLAND PULPIT

"The jewels of all the earth are not to be weighed against one good friend."

From whatever point of view you choose to regard it, friendship is the indispensible treasure of life. Consider it, if you please, even from the most selfish, the most sordid, standpoint—one real friend is worth more than a million dollars.

I know a man who doesn't believe this. His only friends are greenbacks and yellow-backs. Though he is wealthy, he will not give a single penny to a charitable cause. "H'm! I'm not to blame for the orphans in Armeni; ask the Turks to take care of them." With some such reply he answers every appeal for help.

That man has gained financial success; and he has lost every friend he ever had. He doesn't realize that, even on a dollars and cents basis, he is making a most terrible mistake. The sun will not always continue to shine for him; fortune will not always continue to smile. Some day sickness, trouble, sorrow will darken his threshold; some night the angel of death will knock at his door. And in his supreme hour of need his filthy gold will only mock his heartache. His own children, carefully trained by him in the spirit of selfishness, will laugh at him.

The shrewdest merchant knows that real success can be built only upon the foundation of good will; but this man has built his house upon the ill-will of his community and the wrath of his God.

Even from the most selfish of motives it would surely be more profitable to practice the fine art of Christian neighborliness; to walk the highway of life, not with the priest and the Levite, but with the Good Samaritan; to follow the teachings of the Master—

"If any man will take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also. And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain. Give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee, turn not away." —Matt. 5:40.

But remember this: that though it is possible, theoretically, to consider friendship as a strictly business proposition, it is not possible in actual practice to do so. A selfish friendship is, of course, a contradiction in terms; for the law of friendship is love, and its method self-sacrifice.

He who prudently seeks to cultivate only the acquaintance of the rich and powerful from whom he expects some return, and spurns his weaker brother, will never find a real friend.

As, in the old fable, the proud lion owed his life to the humble mouse whom he had befriended; so we can never forsee the emergency in which some despised fellow-creature may be able to render us more effective aid than a regiment of millionaires

ACCIDENT.

Father and Son Banquet.

On Friday evening, April 27, the Agricultural Class of the Accident High School, held its fourth annual father and son banquet. Owing to the very stormy weather there were not so many present as in former years, although between thirty-five and forty were served.

The evening began with the presentation of the one act play, "An Arkansas Swab," the parts being played by Robert DeWitt and Edward G. Glotfelty, members of the Junior agricultural class.

Immediately before the banquet Mr. Arthur Scrogum made the invocation. He was followed by Mr. B. O. Bowman, principal, who gave a short address to the fathers and boys. The banquet was prepared and served by the home making department under the direction of Miss Margaret Rovenolt, and consisted of the following: Cream of tomato soup, chicken patties, buttered potatoes, string beans, olives, celery, rolls, coffee, pineapple sponge cake.

Following the banquet the girls of the home making department and Miss Rovenolt sang two songs that were much enjoyed by all. Mr. Carter, of Friendsville high school, and Mr. Bishoff, of Grantsville high school, were introduced and gave short addresses. Mr. Henry Speicher, as one of the board of school trustees, was called upon and gave a short address. He was followed by Mr. J. W. Dunkel, principal of the Frostburg State Normal, who was the chief speaker of the evening. Mr. Dunkel brought a message of inspiration to the boys and their dads and encouraged the latter to live closer to their sons and not allow a gap of misunderstanding to grow up between them because the father thinks he is too old to join with his son in pleasures. The banquet was quite a success and will be long remembered by those who were present.

Death of Samuel Lininger.

Samuel Lewis Lininger, a former resident of Accident, and well known here, died at his home near Hazelton, West Va., on April 21, aged 78 years, 8 months and 14 days. He was born at Chambersburg, Pa., August 7, 1849, and was the third son of Lewis and Margaret Lininger. In 1874 he was married to Rebecca Hayes, of Cranesville, West Va. To this union seven children were born, two daughters preceding him in death. His wife and the following children survive: Lloyd, of near Hazelton; Carl, of Uniontown, Pa.; Rhoda, wife of L. J. Niner, Hazelton; Bertha, wife of John Deal, of Cumberland; Maggie, wife of Alex. Frazee, Friendsville; also the following brothers and sisters: Henry Lininger, who is now ill in a Uniontown hospital; Mrs. Margaret Conaway, of Connellsville, Pa.; Mrs. Sallie Hetrick, of Morgantown, W. Va.; Mrs. Amanda Schlossnagel, Sabraton, W. Va., and Mrs. Ida Hetrick, of Accident. Mr. Lininger was a member of the Church of the Brethren. Funeral services were held in the Chestnut Avenue church Monday morning, conducted by Rev. J. Thomas. Interment in Chestnut Avenue cemetery.

As a tribute to the deceased the following poem was written by her sister, Mrs. Ida Hetrick:

A face that we loved from the circle is missing,
A smile that we cherished forever is gone;
A chair in our home will forever be vacant,
The dear form we loved from our midst has been borne.

Farewells have been said with hearts nearly breaking,
'Twas hard to part with a brother so dear;
A father so loving, a husband so faithful,
To all those who knew him a friend held so near.

But call it not death that embraces our loved one,
'Tis only sleep and the set of life's sun;
So help us to say with gentle forbearance
Our Saviour has called him and His will be done.

Death of Mrs. Louise Georg.

Mrs. Louise Georg, who has been a life-long resident of this community, died Tuesday, April 24, aged 73 years. She was a woman well preserved for her age and her death came suddenly. Her husband, the late George Georg, preceded her to the grave 11 years ago. She is survived by the following children: Alexander Georg, Emory Georg and Mrs. Christian Margroff, all of whom reside near Accident. She is also survived by ten grandchildren and one great-grandchild and the following named sisters: Mrs. Henry Kamp and Mrs. Henry Schlossnagel, also residents of Accident. ## BITTINGER.

Snow began falling in this section early Friday morning and continued without intermission until late Saturday evening, by which time field, forest and highway was hidden beneath a white blanket more than two feet deep. The storm was accompanied by a strong east wind until Saturday morning when the wind shifted to the west and then the snow began to drift.

Within a few hours there were hugn drifts in the roads and all travel had to be abandoned. There was no mail service on Saturday and on Sunday all church activities were abandoned. Earlier in the month some farmers had turned their sheep and lambs on the public range and many of them failed to return home when the storm came, and although searchers were out on Saturday and Sunday trying to find the missing animals, reports on Sunday indicated that many were not found and it is thought that many may have perished in the snow.

Rev. E. E. Campbell has been ill at his home in the village for several days, the last report, however, states that he is much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Georg are rejoicing much over the coming of a son to their home on April 23.

Much of the maple syrup and sugar made in the local camps this season was bought by local dealers and has already been taken out of the community.

District Forest Warden A. L. Sines was in the neighborhood last week visiting schools and attending to other official business.

ONE HOUR MORE—

Reasons have been advanced by a number of persons within the past two or three days on why Oakland should adopt daylight savings time, such as forty other large and progressive cities in the United States have already done, and as no one has been heard to voice his sentiments against the proposition it might be well to get down to realities.

Oakland can adopt daylight saving time if the majority of the people desire it.

Forty other progressive cities in the United States have adopted it;

Many European countries have also adopted it;

Farmers would be enabled to get all business transacted in town at an early hour and return to their homes and tasks;

Employes in stores, banks and at other indoor tasks would have an additional hour for recreation in the evening;

Everybody would get one more hour of sunshine, and days would, figuratively speaking, be an hour longer.

There are many more reasons, but these are enough to think about this morning. Now, what do you think?

Is There Any Money In the Dairy Business? Answer This Question First.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Are you keeping cows or are the cows keeping you?

The amount of milk produced for each cow in the United States in 1916 was 3,700 pounds; in 1921 it was 4,000 and in 1926 it was 4,700 pounds. 4,700 pounds of milk at 28 cents per gallon will bring $152.75 and the feed cost will he approximately $100, leaving a profit above the feed of $52.75. A cow giving 8,000 pounds of milk at the same rate the product would be worth $250 and at a feed cost not to exceed $125, leaving a profit of $125.

Should the latter cow be pure bred, it would be safe to asume her calf is worth $75 each year. Yet a calf from the poorer cow will be worth but little, as we are not making progress toward higher production and more profit.

The feed cost is the important one concerned with profit.

Growing feeds at home and selling them to the cows make the most profit. Prepare now for just a little more silage. If you have no silo, build one. Plan for legume hay, either soy beans, cow peas or alfalfa. A little oats and vetch will make good feed and it will take 4,000 pounds for each cow you have until hay comes again.

An acre of mangel's have been known to yield 50 tons. Why not grow a quarter acre; they will put money in the bank

To maintain the body weight of a 1000-pound cow, it requires 5 months' pasture at $3 per month, $15; 2 tons legume hay at $20 per ton, $40, and to produce 4,700 pounds of milk it requires 300 pounds of digestible protien. Using 100 pounds ground oats, 100 pounds corn meal and 100 pounds farm bureau 32 per cent special we have a feed with 17 per cent digestible protien at a cost of $2.50 per 100 pounds.

To get 300 pounds digestible protien it will require 1800 pounds of this mixed feed at a cost of $45.

For a cow giving 8000 pounds of milk, the requirements are the same for maintenance, hut the milk requirements is 432 pounds of digestible protien of 2700 pounds of grain at $2.50 per hundred, or $67.50, plus maintenance, or a total cost of $122.50.

Of course, the individual cow will make some changes, as no two cows are of the same disposition and require different handling. Know what each cow is doing.

E. STANLEY HALLER,
Field Representative.

C., on April 25, for his home near Wheeling, W. Va., a physical wreck that all the science and resources of the government he fought for can't save.

The ailment, doctors say, is the resule of cerebral lesions, the direct effect of many blows on the head he received battling for the championship. ## TWENTY-FIVE LICENSES ISSUED PAST TWO WEEKS

Two "Don't Publish"—Total For Month of April Is 78.

Twenty-five marriage licenses were issued during the past two weeks ending Tuesday at noon at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, according to the records.

The total for April was 78, one less than in 1926 for the same period and considerably less than last year, when the licenses issued totalled 111. Six of those issued last week were granted on Saturday and five Monday, showing that the week-end is still popular for a honeymoon. The past Saturday, however, only one applied for a license which was issued. The lack of applicants was probably due to the snow storm and blocked roads as a consequence.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

A week's heavy work in the line of detective duty by Sheriff W. D. Casteel and his deputy Joy, hasn't revealed much knowledge concerning the mystery woman, which proves conclusively that it is still a mysterious mystery. The officers report that they have gained some knowledge on the case but withhold it for fear that Scoop will give it publicity and thus thwart their endeavors to bring the perpetrator of the foul crime to justice. Watch this column next Thursday for developments—one way or the other.

The mystery woman was interred and sprinkled with petals from the roses of her Easter bonnet.

Goodbye Forever.

* * *

Ode to a Snowstorm.

So many requests have been made to Scoop, both orally and by mail, asking that he write a poem on the latest snowfall, that he has constructed a lot of "blank verse" to show just what he thinks of snowstorms of such a severe nature that dare to happen on week-ends.

This Is It:

May be continued next week.

* * *

Mike's Playground.

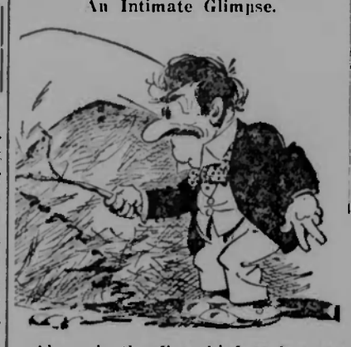
Michael Maroney, official operator of the municipal snowplow, had the time of his life Sunday morning playing fox and geese on Second and Alder streets and other byways and highways of the town. But it did open the gutters.



* * *

Col. Bell Snowed In—Or Up.

A prearranged trip between Scoop and Col. Bell was knocked skyhigh Sunday morning when it was ascertained that Col. Bell was sewed up tight in his residence with so much snow around the doors that it was not until 4:30 that afternoon that he emerged unscathed from his long indoor sojourn. It is hard to say who would have been snapped, but the day was saved Monday morning.

An Intimate Glimpse.

Above is the fire chief as he was bending over the screen back of the Oakland Model Bakery extracting debris, oil drums, lumber and what have you from the turbulent waters of Wilson Creek as they rushed madly onward toward the Mississippi. But while Scoop is on the subject, when has there been a danger threatening Oakland, either by fire or water, or when has there been a call for help in community welfare that George Kerins was not in the thick of it every time and doing his best for the interests of Oakland and its citizenry.

* * *

That goes for all of the other members of the Oakland Fire Department also.

* * *

A Real Estate Man Proposes.

Well, old girl, I'm gonna give you the first chance to make yourself Mrs. Henry H. Jones. I'm the very best to be had in the matrimonial line and I won't take "no" for an answer. Plenty of women are crazy to get a chance at me; since you're a good friend of mine, though, I'm making you the first offer. And let me tell you right now, you'll be making the biggest mistake of your life if you don't grab me now while you can get me. Well, whadda you say?

One of the most severe snow storms of the year visited this section during the latter days of last week, when snow began falling on Friday morning at an early hour and continued until Sunday morning. Telephone and electric service was cut off by the wires being broken down and there was no mail delivered here on Saturday. Sunday afternoon about four o'clock a caterpillar snow plow succeeded in pushing its way through the immense drifts which had formed on almost every mile of the National Highway between here and points east. Approximately one hundred cars from the east followed in the wake of the snow plow and mail was brought from Frostburg Sunday evening.

The snow was extremely heavy and measured about two feet on the level. Considerable damage was done to telegraph and telephone poles and wires and many trees were broken down. Hotels and boarding houses were very quickly filled to capacity after the road had been opened as many of the tourists had been snowbound in both Frostburg and Cumberland.

Council of Religious Education.

An interesting meeting of the Garrett County Council of Religious Education was held one evening last week at the home of George W. Diefenbach. Many matters pertaining to the interest of the Sunday schools of Garrett county were discussed.

Under the department of Religious Education, directed by Rev. C. A. Shilke and Rev. W. B. Brock, steps were taken to organize the communities in the county into community councils and to encourage each community to conduct either daily vacation Bible schools or week-day schools during the summer months.

Ernest R. Jones, director of finance, was encouraged in his attempt to get a 100 per cent report from the schools of the county who pay 10 cents per member for the convention pledge and to be paid as promptly as possible.

Miss Coral McRobie announced the program for the county young people's conference to be held in Oakland on May 12.

Rev. Campbell and Rev. Shilke announced the plans of Col. Cudlipp, who hopes to meet all the Sunday school workers for a conference during the week of May 7, in the afternoon at Friendsville, Tuesday, May 8, in the M. E. church; Grantsville, Wednesday, May 9, in the Lutheran church; Kitzmiller, Thursday, May 9, at 2:00 p. m., to discuss the work and various problems for a better Sunday school.

The sending of a representative to the World's Sunday School Convention to be held in Los Angeles, Cal., in July, was discussed, and it was decided that an appeal be made to the Sunday schools and to individuals to help finance one delegate or divide the fund thus raised among several who contemplate going, so that the county may be represented.

Miss Viola Broadwater, public school music teacher at Tawneytown, Md., very successfully directed the musical comedy, "Wind Mills of Holland," presented by the glee club of the Tawneytown high school last Friday and Saturday evenings to large and appreciative audiences.

High School Play.

The Grantsville high school pupils are rehearsing for the three-act comedy "Go Slow, Mary," to be given Friday and Saturday nights, May 11 and 12, at W. O. W. Hall. Ira M. Staley is director.

Ladies' Aid Meets.

The Methodist Ladies' Aid Society was delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. Lillie Younkin Saturday afternoon. The attendance was small owing to the very severe snow storm. The devotional service was led by Mrs. Harry Edwards. A delicious two-course luncheon was served.

Anniversary Recital.

Sunday night being the anniversary of the first production of Haydn's oratorio of "The Creation," the musical hour at the Holmes and Wallace studio consisted of piano selections by Miss Holmes and Miss Wallace from the works of this composer. Vocal selections were also given by Mr. Alvin Miller.

Dr. William Getty.

Many friends attended the funeral of the late Dr. Wm. R. Getty, dentist, at Meyersdale, Tuesday morning at nine o'clock. He was the son of the late Dr. Oliver Getty and a grandson of Senator William R. Getty. He was born and reared in Grantsville. He maintained offices in Mayersdale and at Salisbury, Pa. Dr. Getty was stricken with an unusual disease, richinosis, about eight months ago. He was fifty years of age and is survived by his wife and four children, his mother, Mrs. Alice Getty, three brothers, Daniel and Oliver, of Meyersdale and Gorman Getty, dentist, of Lonaconing.

Annual School Exhibition

An extensive program is being arranged by Miss Kate Bannatyne and Miss Ida Friese for the annual school exhibition and May Day exercises to be given by the schools in Grantsville District on May 25 at Grantsville High School. Ira M. Staley, of the high school, will have charge of the athletic features in the afternoon.

Parent-Teacher Meeting.

One of the most interesting Parent-Teacher meetings held since the organization of the society was that at the Turner school house on Tuesday evening, April 24.

Delegations from the Pope and Long Stretch schools and others from a distance attended. Miss Regina Lorditch, principal, was in charge, and introduced the speakers. Rev. J. E. Johnson, Grantsville, gave a splendid address. Mrs. Tucker, of Nebraska, but who has served the psat 26 years as a medical missionary in China, and has only recently returned, gave a most interesting talk on manners, customs and the current history of China to a most appreciative audience. At the conclusion of the program the social committee served refreshments.

Mrs. Tucker is spending some time visiting her cousins, William, Henry and George Turner, at Shade Mills, and renewing her childhood acquaintances. Her deceased father, A. J. Boose, of Somerset county, Pa., was well known in Garrett county.

Sunday School Social

The social held by the Lutheran Sunday school on Thursday evening was well attended and was very succesful. The sum of $10 was cleared and will be paid on the piano, which was recently purchased.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Zeller have returned from a ten days' trip to Washington, D. C., and other eastern cities.

Mrs. James K. Smart, who has spent the past two weeks with her mother, Mrs. Annie Getty, has returned to her home in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Ella B. Keller spent several days this week with friends in Meyersdale and also attended the funeral of her nephew, the late Dr. Wm. Getty, at that place.

Mrs. Matilda Burrows, of Addison, Pa., who spent the past winter with Miss Cora Opel, was taken seriously ill on Friday and on Monday was taken to Cumberland and entered as a patient in the Western Maryland Hospital for an operation. She was accompanied by Dr. Davis and Miss cora Opel.

Miss Mollie Dorsey and Mrs. Wilda Fahey spent Monday in Cumberland.

Mrs. Marion Broadwater, who has been ill for several months, is now improving.

The trucks used in hauling milk to the creamery on Keyser's Ridge were unable to get through the snow from Friday until Monday, when they made their regular trips.

RED HOUSE.

Sunday school and church services on Sunday at 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock.

The Sunday school elected the following officers for the coming year: Superintendent, Hervey Roth; assistant superintendent, Wilbert Ridder; treasurer, A. J. Martin; secretary, Miss Tela Mosser; assistant secretary, Miss Romaine Moon.

The Claiborne Construction Company has resumed operations east from Red House on the Northwestern Turnpike. The company was low bidders for the additional mile and three-quarters of construction which will be completed this summer. This leaves three and one-half miles still uncompleted between the stretches of road to the West Virginia State line at Gorman and no provision has been made for the work on this section.

HOOVER AND BRUCE CARRY GARRETT COUNTY EASILY

A Total of 636 Ballots Cast at Monday's Primaries By Both Parties—People Too Busy

A total of 636 ballots were cast at the primaries held in Garrett county on Monday of this week, as the returns canvassed by the Board of Election Supervisors yesterday afternoon shows. Of the number 420 were cast by Republicans and the remainder, or 216, represented the Democratic vote.

Hoover was successful in large measure as against an uninstructed delegation in the convention to convene in Baltimore sometime during the present month, the date of which will be fixed at a meeting of the State committee to be held tomorrow, while Senator Bruce, Democratic candidate for United States Senate, was the successful contender against Virginia Peters-Parkhurst.

The primary election cost the county taxpayers approximately $2,500, or about $4.00 for each ballot cast. This sum is the average in other counties of the State, or may be exceeded in some counties.

In the State Mr. Hoover was successful in every county as was also Mr. Bruce. The Republican State convention will likely be controlled by National Committeeman Jackson's friends as against Mr. Weller.

Conferences for Sunday School Workers Being Held.

Col. Joseph H. Cudlipp, superintendent of the Young People's Division of the Sunday School Association of Maryland, accompanied by Rev. E. E. Campbell, president of the Garrett County Council of Religious Education, and Rev. C. A. Shilke, director, conducted a conference for Sunday school workers in the M. E. church at Friendsville an Tuesday afternoon. About 35 persons were present. Helpful suggestions for better and more efficient Sunday schools were brought out in the conference.

Plans for the community union Daily Vacation Bible school and also a Standard Teacher Training school at some future date, were told by Rev. Shilke. Similar conferences were held at Grantsville yesterday afternoon and at Kitzmiller this afternoon.

To Hold Community Sing on May 25.

A community sing for children, to be sponsored by the Oakland Civic Club, will be held in the Maryland Theatre on Friday afternoon, May 25. Mrs. James P. Treacy is chairman of the committee of arrangements and she will be assisted by Miss Karin Stenholm of the High School faculty. Grown-ups are requested to be present also.

BOYS' BAND MAKES FIRST APPEARANCE ON STREETS

Boys Will be Out Frequently Now, Mr. Gilbert Promises

Quite a number of people witnessed the first street appearance of the Gilbert-Brown Boys, band last night in front of the West Penn office on Second street. "From now on, the boys will be out quite a bit," R. R. Gilbert, director, said.

"We expect to be out for the Teachers' meeting on May 11, and on May 25, when the Community Sing will be held at the Maryland theatre, and are also planning for another street appearance on Saturday of this week."

A unique way in which the merchants of Oakland will be advertised, is the covering for the bass drum. Last night the words "Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band," with "Boost the Oakland Bakery," were on the covering. At the next appearance, some other merchant's name will be chosen and placed on the covering, according to Mr. Gilbert. The merchant's name will be chosen by drawing straws, it was pointed out.

The band auxiliary is planning another food sale to be held in the office of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company on May 19. Cakes, pies, rolls and other articles will be on sale.

STATE ROAD "BED" USED LITERALLY BY TRAVELER

Ambulance Called To Edge of Town to Care for "Body."

"Waking up to find yourself dead" approached the experience of Lewis Beal, of Mount Savage, who was reclining alongside the State highway north of town Sunday evening about 9:00 o'clock when be was found by a passerby. The passerby not knowing the cause of "death" or near death, called for the hearse, otherwise known as the ambulance, but when it arrived the driver and his assistant were able to shake the man into wakefulness and partial sensibility.

They departed, the man wending his way northward toward Mellenry, and the ambulance returned without a passenger.

Later the same evening another passerby, three or four hundred yards further down the road, saw the same man, far in the land of oblivion or what have you. He notified Sheriff Casteel and Deputy Griffith, who were soon on their way to give the man a decent bed in which to sleep, but State Officer James Currie arrived ahead of them and was escorting him into town.

Beal was placed in jail and on Monday was given a hearing by Justice Gonder who fined him $1 and costs on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

Mt. Lake Youths Fined $5 and Costs for Conduct

Ike Turney and Fred Landon, of Mt. Lake Park, both minors, were fined $5 and costs Tuesday morning before E. I. West, justice of the peace, on charges of disorderly conduct, breaking windows, and throwing eggs.

Eight boys were arrested several weeks ago but the evidence was only sufficient to convict the two boys, Mr. West stated. The house of a Mrs. Johnson had been egged, it was alleged. The eggs were not rotten, the testimony revealed.

Not Paying Dog Tax

Samuel Peck, of Mellenry, was brought before Justice West on Tuesday, charged with not paying his dog tax, and was fined $10.85. He was committed to jail but was released upon payment of fine. Walter Coddington, constable, made the arrest.

Young People's Conference to Convene on May 12.

Plans are complete for the county-wide young people's conference to be held on Saturday, May 12, in St. Paul's M. E. church, Oakland, according to Miss Esperance Ashby, young people's superintendent.

Each Sunday school in the county may send as many delegates as are able to attend, it was stated. The registration fee is $1. Everyone who comes is expected to bring with them a box dinner. A fellowship supper will be served in the Parish House connected with the church in the evening by the girls of the church.

Col. Joseph H. Cudlipp, young people's leader in the State of Maryland, will have charge of the classes. There will be plenty of recreation interspersed with the study periods, it is said.

Registration will begin at nine in the morning and the meeting will be closed with the Friendship Circle at eight o'clock in the evening.

No Signers For Daylight Saving Petition

A petition for daylight saving time in Oakland, circulated among the business men of town, failed to produce a signer. It is therefore improbable that the Mayor and Town Council will take any action in the matter, the person circulating the petition said.

OAKLAND CREAMERY WILL HANDLE GRADE A MILK

Manager Says Concern Will Be Ready to Receive Five Gallons or a Thousand Gallons June 1

The Oakland Creamery Company will be able to handle all Grade A milk from farmers up to one thousand gallons a day, by June 1, E. Stanley Haller, field representative of the Imperial Ice Cream Company, Parkersburg, W. Va., stated yesterday. "The equipment we are now installing will take care of five gallons or one thousand," he said, "and we will receive either the small amount or the larger."

The construction work on the new corner addition to the local plant, 16x28 feet in size, will be completed this week, L. H. Stewart, chief engineer, stated, and the new equipment will be installed within two weeks. All the cement work for the receiving vat has been laid and a concrete walk fronting on Center street has also been completed.

These improvements are being made as the necessity arises to accommodate the increased business and represents nothing more than a cycle in the building program of the company. The local creamery has been enlarged several times during recent years.

The advantages and disadvantages to the farmer for handling Grade A milk were pointed out by Mr. Haller, his conclusions being based on last year's production figures and the estimates of costs of milk houses and dairy barns made by J. H. Conover of the Extension Service, University of Maryland.

Last year, according to the figures, the average price for milk with four per cent butterfat was $2.31 per hundred pounds; $2.80 for five per cent. Grade A milk would have brought $2.80 for four per cent butter fat and $3.50 for five per cent.

Farmers delivered to the company last year 4,394,600 pounds of milk, at an average price of $2.31, which amounted to $101,515. If the milk had been Grade A, the amount would have been $123,048, or $21,533 additional.

The other side of the picture as pointed out by Mr. Haller, was the expense of building and equipping for Grade A milk. The average cost of a dairy house and equipment is $754, including hired labor, and about $1,000 for a dairy barn. This seems quite a sum to any farmer, Mr. Haller said, and could not be returned to him for four or five years. But after the extra money is obtained for Grade A milk had paid for improvements then the advantage of the better system would be seen, he added.

Anyone requiring information on the material required and the kind of milk house necessary for the Washington dairy market should get in touch with Mr. Haller at the Oakland Creamery.

Improvement Association.

The Oakland Creamery is now engaged in forming a Garrett County Herd Improvement Association, in cooperation with the Extension Service and the County Agent, and this association will find the value of each cow as a producer. This association with the knowledge thus obtained will be in position to weed out the "boarders" or non-producers in every herd in the county, Mr. Haller said.

Congressman F. N. Zihlman Secures Pensions For Several.

Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman, representing the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland, has secured the passage of the following pension bills, which were signed by the President on May 3:

William A. Wilburn, Deer Park, pension of $50 per month.

Mrs. Emily E. Weiss, Chevy Chase, Maryland, pension granted of $30 per month. (Civil War widow.)

George B. McIntyre, Barton, helpless child of a Civil War veteran, $20 per month granted.

Mrs. Alice A. McKenzie, Cumberland, Civil War widow, $30 per month.

Mrs. Mary E. Lee, Luke, pension of $20 per month, Civil War widow.

Mrs. Gertrude Gould, formerly of Barton, now of Baltimore, Civil War widow, granted $30 per month.

Mrs. Mary E. English, Rockville, Civil War widow, granted $30 per month.

These people, because of some technicality in the law were unable to obtain a pension except by a special act of Congress, and Mr. Zihlman worked diligently to get his bills through this session and before adjournment.

TOWN COUNCIL DECIDES TO REPAIR ALDER STREET

Traffic Signals to be Erected Soon—Water Here is Pure

Decision to repair Alder street between Third and Fourth streets was made at the monthly meeting of the Mayor and Town Council held at the City Hall on Monday, according to L. M. Fraley, mayor. This work will be done as soon as possible and will be made similar to other streets in town, he said. It will be given a covering of amisite to insure its staying in place.

Pennington street between First and Second streets has been improved during the last week with crushed rock and a covering of amisite.

Traffic Signals Soon

Practically all of the material for the traffic signals has arrived, and these will be installed by the West Maryland Power company in a short time. One box of material has been lost in shipment, and nothing can be done until it arrives, it was stated.

The lights will be in two colors, red and green. There will be no amber light for traffic change or pedestrain travel, because it was felt that the foot traffic was not heavy enough to warrant a separate light.

Water is Pure

Mr. H. P. Shaffer, of the State Department of Health, Baltimore, was in Oakland on Tuesday making a test of the water, and he found it pure. This test is made monthly, Mr. Fraley said.

Other routine matters of business were brought before the Council and the monthly bills were passed. The next meeting will be held on Monday, June 4.

TRAINING SCHOOL WILL CLOSE FRIDAY EVENING

Approximately 45 Persons Have Been Attending Study Classes

The Standard Teacher Training school for Sunday school workers and teachers, opened with two classes at 7:30 o'clock in St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland, with approximately 45 persons in attendance, these coming from Mountain Lake Park, Deer Park and Oakland.

Col. Joseph H. Cudlipp, superintendent of the Young People's Division of the Maryland Sunday School Association, is dean of the school and instructs in "Young People's Methods and Materials." About twenty-five are enrolled in this class.

Approximately twenty are enrolled in the class taught by Dr. Harriet B. Jones, of Glen Dale, W. Va., who has the book "The Worker and His Bible." Dr. Jones is an outstanding Bible teacher and social worker.

The school will close tomorrow evening when at the final session the dean will award credits to all credit students in the two classes. Everybody is invited to be present at that time.

Rev. Walter B. Brock, pastor of the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church, has charge of the chapel periods.

On Monday evening the faculty was introduced and each gave a short resume of the work to be covered. Mrs. Naylor gave an address on "How to Tell a Story" on Tuesday evening, and on Wednesday evening Mrs. W. W. Grant dramatized a story. This evening Mrs. Grant will again be on the platform with an interesting story for all.

Those in charge of the school are well satisfied with its success considering the many outside interests.

The class which was to have been conducted by the Rev. John A. Wood, of Keyser, West Va., on "Sunday School Administration," could not be taught at this time but will be some time later, when it will assemble each Monday evening for a period of five weeks, it was announced at the Monday evening session of the school. All Sunday school superintendents, pastors and officers, and all future prospective officers are invited and urged to take this course when it becomes available.

State Legion Meeting to be Held August 23, 24, and 25

Several members of Procter Kildow Post, American Legion, are planning to attend the State convention to be held in Cumberland on August 23, 24 and 25, according to I. R. Rudy, Post Commander. All those desiring to attend should make inquiry about reduced rates of fares for themselves and families. If the attendance at the convention is 250 one and one-half fare for the round trip will be effective, it is stated.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS IN PERHAPS FATAL ACCIDENT

Monica Maroney Suffering From Concussion of the Brain with Little Hope For Recovery

One Oakland High School girl was perhaps fatally injured, two seriously and three others badly bruised and cut by flying glass when the Whippet sedan, driven by Clifford Hahn, a high school youth, left the Oakland-Keyser Ridge highway and stopped in a field opposite the David Enlow farm about two miles north of Oakland last Friday afternoon at six o'clock. After leaving the roadway the car turned over several times, throwing all but two of the occupants from it.

The injured are:

Monica Maroney, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John W. Maroney, concussion of the brain; has been unconscious since the accident but with a slight improvement during the past twenty-four hours.

James Nordeck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nordeck, injured internally; improving at this time.

Robert Lohr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Young Lohr, bruised and cut.

Hazaleah Yutzy, daughter of Guy O. Yutzy, cuts and bruises; has recovered.

Clifford Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bliss R. Hahn, Crellin, cuts and bruises; has recovered.

The party was returning from a baseball game at Friendsville and it is said the wrecked car was traveling at a high rate of speed when the accident occurred, the machine leaving the road when the driver attempted to pass another car being driven by an Oakland girl, vaulted the wire fence skirting the road and landed in a ploughed field. The front truck of the car as well as the motor seemed not to be badly damaged, but the rear of the car as well as the body was almost a total wreck.

The injured were brought to Oakland immediately following the accident where their injuries were dressed by Dr. McComas and Dr. Gattens.

Miss Maroney was taken to her home on Sixth street where she has been in a state of coma ever since. She takes but little nourishment. Her sisters, on account of the serious injuries she had sustained, were immediately summoned to her bedside. They include Sister Bertille, of Wheeling Hospital, Wheeling, W. Va.; Misses Esther Maroney and Dartest Maroney and Mrs. George Robbins, of New York City.

Hazaleah Yutzy, Robert Lohr and Clifford Hahn are all able to be out and it is expected that the Nordeck children will be enabled to resume their studies in a few days.

Newly Elected Rotary Officers Are Inducted Into Office.

The recently elected officers of the Oakland Rotary Club, who will serve the organization and community during the year ensuing, were inducted into office at the weekly meeting of the club on last Friday evening. In the absence of Dr. McComas, the retiring president, who was engaged professionally, W. W. Dawson made the address, and Mr. Joseph E. Harned the new president, made the response.

Judge Casteel Quietly Celebrates His 79th Anniversary.

Associate Judge Truman W. Casteel of the Garrett County Orphans' Court, and one of the county's oldest and highest esteemede residents, celebrated his 79th anniversary in a quiet manner at his home near Oakland yesterday. He has resided in this community for more than a half century, having moved from the vicinity of Hoyes, where he was born, when quite a young man. He is a son of the late Nathan Castell, who was one of the county's pioneer settlers.

Mr. Casteel is at present an associate judge of the Orphans' Court. He was at one time a member of the Board of County Commissioners and has always been a leader in Republican politics and an influential member of the Methodist church. He is one of the largest landowners in the county and has always been a member of the Fair Association and one of its strong advocates. He is in fact a real Garrett countian.

Lesson for May 13

JESUS ENTERS JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—Mark 11:1-33.

GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, thy King cometh unto thee; He is just, and having salvation.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Hailing Jesus as King.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Hailing Jesus as King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Kingly Qualities of Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Asserts Messianic Authority.

I. Jesus Officially Presented to the Jewish Nation as King.—vv. 1-11).

This should not be designated the triumphal entry, for it was so only in outward appearances. The shouts were empty and meaningless. It was the promised King publicly offering Himself to the nation.

1. The preparation (vv. 1-6).

(1) Two disciples sent for the ass (vv. 1-3).

He told them just where to go to find it, and how to answer the owner's inquiry. The providing of this animal was the working out of the divine plan according to Christ's foreknowledge.

(2) Obedience of the disciples (vv. 4-6). Without asking why, they go at His bidding. The command may have seemed strange and unreasonable, but they rendered explicit obedience.

2. The entry into Jerusalem (vv. 7-10).

(1) The disciples put their garments upon the ass and set the Lord upon it (v. 7). This act showed their recognition of Him as their King (II Kings 9:13).

(2) The multitude (vv. 8, 9). Some spread their garments in the way; others who had no garments to spare cut down branches and strewed them in the way, which was just as acceptable unto Him. This entry was in fulfillment of a prophecy uttered some five hundred years before (Zech. 9:9). They uttered the very cry which the prophet foretold. This is a clew to enable one to understand the prophecies which are unfulfilled as yet. If the prediction of His first coming was thus literally fulfilled, we must believe that those of His second coming will likewise be literally fulfilled. The prediction of Zechariah 14:3-11 will be just as literally fulfilled as that of Zechariah 9:9.

(3) The Lord's action (v. 10).

Upon entering the temple, He looked around upon all things; but as it was eventide He withdrew to Bethany with the twelve.

II. Jesu Exercising His Royal Authority (vv. 12-19).

1. The barren fig tree cursed (vv. 12-14).

The fig tree is typical of the Jewish nation. The fruit normally appears on the fig tree ahead of the leaves. The presence of the leaves is the assurance of fruit. This was an acted parable of the Lord's judgment on Israel for pretension of being the chosen people without the fruits thereof.

2. The temple cleansed (vv. 15-19).

For the various sacrifices in the temple, many oxen, sheep and doves were needed. Many persons came from the distant parts of the land; therefore it was impracticable for them to bring their sacrifices with them, so they brought money and bought the animals needed. This privilege the law had granted to them (Deut. 14:24-26), for the exchange was necessary. When evil men used it as an opportunity for gain it became an offense before God. It defiled His house. Jesus made Himself a scourge of cords and drove out the money changers, overthrowing their tables and pouring out their money. By this act He declared Himself to be the Lord of the temple and one with God. That which God intended to be a "house of prayer for all nations" was made a "den of thieves." This action symbolized the call of the nation to repentance.

III. Jesus' Authority Challenged (vv. 27-33).

They challenged Him to show by what authority He accepted the honors of the Messiah, and who gave Him the authority to cast out the money changers. This seemed to place Jesus in a dilemma. He responded by a question which placed them in a counter dilemma. Since John was His forerunner, the divinity of His commission rested upon that of John. They were powerless to discredit John, because the people accepted him as God's prophet. If they had accepted John's message they would have been prepared to accept His. They weakly confessed that they could not answer the question.

Route to Glory

"'He must increase, but I must decrease.' This is your route to Glory. Unless He increases in your life and you decrease, your life will be contrary to what He wants it to be. In fact, it will be fruitless. In all things He must have the pre-eminence if you would be fruitful for Him.'"

Worthy Qualities

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

Breaks Down; Confesses.

The guilty party who caused the mystery woman's death has at last been apprehended and by his own confession there is no doubt of his guilt, and it is none other Joy Griffith, deputy sheriff, himself. According to Joy's statement to Scoop he has always liked motorcycles and consequently when Sheriff W. D. Casteel was not looking, being preoccupied by thoughts as to how he could possibly round up a group of bootleggers who have been thumbing their noses at him for some months past, Joy took his superior officer's brand new speedster and started down the street. Not being thoroughly familiar with the mechanism of the machine and the proper method of procedure, he was unable to stop and bowled the lady over on her "blind side."

Since the lady's death was accidental and not caused by malice aforethought as first surmised by the officers who made the investigation, Joy was charged with polygamy and sentenced to live in the county jail as a "trusty" until his term of office expires.

As the Blow Struck.

Above is a picture taken by Col. Bell as the collision between the officers motorcycle and the mytery woman occurred. This has been witheld from print until the present time, but the picture was taken at the scene of the accident. The Colonel is always right on the spot.

* * *

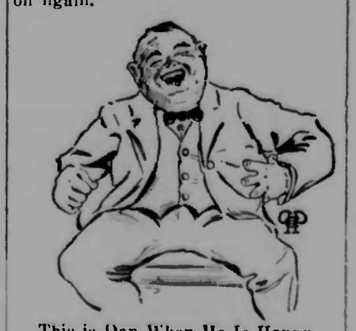
Carroll Elliott.



Above is a pictorial exhibition of the patience of Carroll Elliott as he is waiting for the traffic light at the corner of Second and Liberty streets to show "green." This work of art has been taken somewhat in the future by the Colonel through a somewhat complicated process of his own fabrication and which he is endeavoring to patent. Scoop is under the impression that the picture is a "dream creation" of the Colonel's and therefore it is hardly patentable. Carroll has been represented as saying in recent days, "That's just what we need at that corner to keep automobilists in their places."

* * *

Mr. J. M. Stanton has also been represented as being heartily in favor of electric traffic signals. "This will eliminate any danger of collisions between taxicabs, especially at three o'clock in the morning," he is quoted as saying.

* * *

A friend of Scoop's, happening to stop at Dan Dorsey's filling station in Grantsville last Friday afternoon, was rather surprised to observe that Dan, uncompromising Democrat and close personal friend of Gov. Albert Ritchie of Maryland, had nothing but Sinclair gas on tap. He has two pumps along the pike, both blazing forth as Sinclair gas and this brand only could be obtained. When twitted about it Dan, good natured and jolly at all times, said, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "Write Gov. Ritchie about these two Sinclair pumps and he may order them off the road the same as he ordered the Sinclair horses off the Maryland race tracks—but he ordered them on again."

This is Dan When He Is Happy

* * *

Voted for Hoover.

It has been rumored that a prominent Democratic woman leader of Oakland has been in the throes of remorse since the primary election on Monday when it is reported that she voted for Herbert Hoover by mistake and the election officials would not permit her to rectify her error. She is still remorseful and feels that she has made a grievous error. But she has not. This is one of the times when she voted for a winner.

* * *

J. W. Kimmell's Contribution.

I thought I thought, I think I thought;
I thought that I was thinking,
If the jails are filled with men who "stilled"
Some good folks must be drinking.

* * *

Know Your Council.

As Scoop and the Colonel are agreed that the citizens of Oakland should keep up with the administration of affairs in the town and should also be able to recognize members of the Town Council at sight, a number of pictures have been taken of these public officials in "action poses" and will be published in this column from time to time.

Here's The Mayor.

This is Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley himself in characteristic pose at the Council chamber. The picture was taken as he was instructing one of the councilmen to make a motion that all persons working for the city should be made to patronize home printers and all other home places of business.

SAFEGUARDING MENTAL HEALTH OF CHILDREN

Importance of Emotional Control Stressed at Medical Meeting

The importance of emotional control and of other old fashioned traits was stressed by Dr. Esther Loring Richards, associate psychiatrist at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, in an address on "Protecting the Mind of Childhood," at the annual conference of Maryland health officers and boards of health in Baltimore last week. Many of the grown-up mental misfits, she said, are victims of poor habits of mental hygiene that becomes established in childhood. The mental health of children can be safeguarded only by the most careful watching of the habits of child life as they manifest themselves at home and in school. Referring to the popular notion that in this scientific age, "with physical hygiene taking care of the body of the child and psychology and education takeing care of the mind of the child, the home can sit back and rest from its labors," she said. "Not a bit of it. Science offers no substitute for the intelligent common sense training of a real home."

Just as medical science has discovered that establishing good physical habits regarding food, sleep, exercise and play gives the growing child a fair chance to develop without undue strain, so, Dr. Richards said, modern psychology has come to the help of parents and teachers and has made discoveries in regard to mental habits and their equally direct bearing on the child's mental health and on the develpoment of his character.

One of the most important of these discoveries, based upon tests made of thousands of growing children is that all children are not cut out of the same pattern and have not the same intellectual capacity. Unwillingness on the part of parents to accept this fact often leads to undue intellectual pressure on children unfitted to stand the pace. Such children become the victims of parental ambition or vanity and are forced into intellectual competition beyond their powers. The result is lack of success, unhappiness, personal bitterness and maladjustment.

A second discovery concerns the habit life of the child and has shown that habit formation in the management of emotions, impulses, craving, appetites, begins in the very young child and gradually becomes fixed.

Suggesting some of the ways by which the mental health of children may be safeguarded and developed in the home, Dr. Richards said, "A good start in emotional control is one of the greatest helps parents can give their children—habits of responsiveness having to do with such simple matters as food, bedtime, study hour, punctuality at school, the going on an errand. Don't nag at the child to sit still, to pay attention, to be less noisy, to stop sniffing or batting his eyes. Make a few rules dealing with what you expect of him in the way of necessary habit response and let up on the rest of the worries. Having made these few rules, never let the child get away once with excuses.

"But perhaps the most important factor in protecting the mind of childhood is parental realization of the fact that the personality of a child is like a highly polished mahogany table, prone to take the dust and scratches of all sorts of things in its environment. He inevitably takes sides with father or mother in parental disharmonies; he senses parental attitudes of mutual distrust; he senses parental attitudes toward respect for religion and for the observance of law. Every slurring phrase, or sarcastic remark, or angry rejoinder registers upon the mind of the child no matter how absorbed he may appear to be with play or book and unconsciously fashions his own growing attitudes and outlooks on life.

"Idealism must be practical to appeal to childhood. Sons and daughters judge parents by the ideals they practice, not by the ideals parents express in words."

Protect Your Investment in Your Model T Ford

THE Ford Motor Company is making a new car, but it is still proud of the Model T. It wants every owner of one of these cars to run it as long as possible at a minimum of expense.

Because of this policy and because of the investment that millions of motorists have in Model T cars, the Ford Motor Company will continue to make parts until, as Henry Ford himself says, "the last Model T is off the road."

More than eight million Model T Fords are still in active service, and many of them can be driven for two, three and five years and even longer.

So that you may get the greatest use over the longest period of time at the lowest cost, we suggest that you take your Model T Ford to the nearest Ford dealer and have him give you an estimate on the cost of any replacement parts that may be necessary.

You will find this the economical thing to do because a small expenditure may enable you to maintain or increase the value of the car and give you thousands of miles of additional service.

No matter where you live you can get these Ford parts at the same low prices as formerly and know they are made in the same way and of the same materials as those from which your car was originally assembled.

Labor cost is reasonable and a standard rate is charged for each operation so that you may know in advance exactly how much the complete job will cost.

MOTHER

Who is it that bears untold agonies in order to give us that magical experience called life? Whose tender care ministers to our early well being? Who runs to help us when we fall; who scrubs the grimy little hands; whose heart beats quicker at the sound of childish prattle; whose skillful needle mends raiments torn in careless play? Who sheds a tear at the first shearing of our long locks; at our first long pants, or our first party dress?

Father? No; mother!

Whose solicitous eyes see us started along the path of education? Who willingly performs the most arduous and disagreeable task if it is to benefit her children? Who stays at home while youth sallies forth to enjoy itself? Who, after a long selfsacrificing day, puts a smile on her tired face to welcome home the husband? Who cheerfully mends a torn catcher's mitt for a boy, or sews a bit of ribbon on a girl's dress before being left alone to wash the dinner dishes?

Yes, it's mother!

Who is proudest when we get our first raise? Who so bravely sends her own flesh and blood to war when the call of country comes? Who comforts us in time of distress and inspires in us the will to succeed?

Again it's mother!

Who is so tearfully happy when we are all married and "settled down," as she likes to say? And who, when the tired hands are folded and the loving eyes grow dim, is so grateful for any little attention from her boys and girls (yes they are always boys and girls to her)?

Of course it's mother!

Young or old single or married, we should all think of and honor our mothers, not only on Mother's day but every day in the year. Always remember that though youth may fade, sorrows darken and friendships fall a mother's love outlives them all.

THE PEOPLE WANT HOOVER

Where the matter of choice is left to the rank and file of Republicans, it looks ns if Hoover is overwhelmingly their choice for the Presidential nomination, and where the politicians follow the people or lead them where they want to go, the opposition does not amount to anything.

The vote in Michigan is an illustration. There the sentiment for Hoover was so strong that the favorite son group couldn't drum up a respectable opposition. Such opposition as there was had to express itself by voters writing on the hallot the names of their candidates.

Anyhow, Hoover led Lowden hy about one hundred to one and Dawes by seven hundred to one.

Plain as Hoover's popularity with the rank and file appears to be, that doesn't mean that he won't have a fight on his hands at Kansas City.

The professionals who want a different kind of candidate for President are skilled in all the tricks of politics, including the manipulation of delegates and deadlocks.

So those who helieve that Hoover is the best candidate available should not be lulled into a false sense of security, but should keep on fighting for a faithful representation of their will at the National Convention.

While Democrats in Michigan are not so numerous as Republicans, the vote for Smith indicates that he is about ns popular with Democrats as Hoover is with Republicans, and confirms his position as the leading Democratic candidate.

* SPARKS FROM AN * OAKLAND PULPIT *

CURIOSITY.

I have six honest serving men:
They taught me all I know.
Their names are What, and Why, nnd When,
And How, and Where, and Who.

So Rudyard Kipling tells us the secret of his own rich and ahundant life and the secret of those vivid books of his which have enriched the imagination of the world.

Most people yawn their way thru life, half asleep, half dead. "Eyes have they but they see not, ears but they hear not." The world is just crammed full of wonderful things and they see almost nothing, and what they do see they make no effort to understand.

It is really amazing how blind and deaf most of us are. We travel thru life like the carriage horses that some of us remember, bridled with blinders to prevent them from seeing anything except the road immediately ahead.

Or, to express it in more modern language, we go thru life with one foot on the gas and our eyes glued to the narrow ribbon of concrete that stretches before to the horizon. Flowers, trees, birds, streams, meadows—all the myriad interesting things along the wayside—melt into a confused blur.

Stevenson said, "The world is so full of a number of things I'm sure we should all be as happy ns kings." But each person lives in a different world. The world you live in is only the world you see, the world of your experience. And oh, how scrimpingly furnished is the world of many a man! How pitiful the poverty, the joylessness, the destitution of so many lives!

We need to take the blinders off our eyes, the wax out of our ears, the nightcap from our brain and the pall of indifference from our hearts. Curiosity is one of the most effective antidotes for the deadening monotony of the years.

Curiosity is a strange instinct: it has produced some of the best and some of the worst characters. When curiosity is expressed in prying into private affairs of other people, we have the busybody and the gossip. When curiosity is lifted above personal prejudice and petty interests, and expresses itself in prying into the hidden mysteries of the universe, it produces the scientist and the philosopher.

The most wonderful of all thrills is the thrill of discovery, whether it be the discovery of a continent or the discovery of an electron, the discovery of a truth or the discovery of a friend. There is no keener joy than the joy of a wide-awake, alert mind, allied with a sympathetic, open heart.

"One of the great crimes which shorten life is indifference," said the late Chauncey Depew. "As one loses interest in his church, in his political party, in his club, in his friends and acquaintances, he dries up and the grave claims one whom no one wants or laments. The two most fatal phrases and the most common are: 'What's the use?' and 'Why should I?' A hungry and needy world answers both with open opportunities for service, helpfulness and good fellowship."

A Friend of the Boys' Band of Oakland Is Gratified With the Progress Made by Its Members.

To the Editor of The Republican.

I have been watching with a great deal of interest the activities of the Boys' Band of Oakland hut I was more than pleased, and indeed surprised at the splendid musical program rendered by them on Wednesday evening.

I believe this was the first appearance of the boys for an outdoor program and the numbers rendered certainly were appreciated.

We are especially interested in the work of our "Own Boys" and to see and hear them gives one the satisfaction of knowing that results are being accomplished and that we are to have many more musical programs from them.

The boys are to be congratulated and certainly we all feel grateful to Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Brown, who have been instructing the boys and who are responsible for this splendid organization. The several numbers rendered show that work, patience and cooperation must prevail and with this spirit great success is ahead for the boys and their band.

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band is with us to stay and their work in the community is something of which we should feel proud.

A Friend.

DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM IS PLANNED BY GAS COMPANY

To Expend Over $200,000 During 1928 for Extensions

To keep pace with the growth and demands of the territory served by the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, it has been announced that an expenditure of over $200,000 during 1928 for extensions, additions and betterments of the corporation's property and service will be made. Mr. J. A. Mayers, vice president and general manager of the company, whose office is in Cumberland, is responsible for the announced intention of his corporation to make these betterments.

Since 1925 this company has spent over $345,000 on similar projects. The present plans call for extensive field developments, additional transmission and distribution lines and necessary compressor station equipment, which will provide an adequate supply of gas at a uniform pressure throughout the year. Additional service pipes, meters and necessary equipment have already been provided to care for the increasing number of consumers for several years to come.

Work on these projects has already been started and will continue during the year until completion and will be carried on wherever possible in conjunction with improvements to highways and streets to be made by the county or city so as not to inconvenience the public at any time.

This is part of the vast program requiring the expenditure of many millions of dollars during 1928 of the Columbia System, of which the local gas company is now a part.

May Day Has Been Proclaimed Child Health Day by Governor

In the interest of the children of Maryland, the Great Seal of the State has been duly affixed to an order issued by Governor Ritchie proclaiming May Day as Child Health Day. Mayors of cities, superintendents of the public school system, leaders in community activities, doctors and clergymen, and fathers and mothers everywhere have endorsed the plan and throughout the State preparations are under way for the observance of the day by special exercises in the schools, by pageants and plays and by athletic contests.

Because every day in Maryland is Child Health Day, some of the organizations have held advance celebrations. A typical child health program was presented at an all-day celebration at Kitzmiller, this county, last week, by the schools of the Bloomington-Kempton-Kitzmiller Health District of the county, under the direction of the local public health nurse, Miss Yolanda Clawson.

Nearly three hundred children took part in the exercises and each group contributed something worth while to the program.

The grown-ups in the community were out in large numbers and were equally active in the celebration. Miss Clawson was largely responsible for the success of the affair, she having devoted much time and work to the preparation and carrying out of the program.

Retired Maryland Minister Dies.

Rev. A. L. Donachy, for fifty-nine years a minister of the Baptist church at points in Maryland and Pennsylvania, his last charge being at Friendsville, where he served for more than a quarter of a century, was found dead in bed on Friday, May 4, at the home for retired Baptist ministers at Castle Shannon, Pa., three days after he had been admitted to the home. He was aged about eighty years.

Board of Education Re-Elects

At the annual election of the County Board of Education held Monday afternoon, H. A. Loraditch was re-elected president of the organization, and John O. Thayer was re-elected vice-president.

Routine matters of business were discussed during the remainder of the meeting.

Card of Thanks.

The family of the late Mrs. Carina Peck wish to express their thanks for the many acts of sympathy and their appreciation for the kindly help of all neighbors and friends during the illness and after the death of their loving mother and wife. THE FAMILY.

The outstanding horsewoman in the United States today is accredited by all to Miss Dixie Baldwin, a girl from the "Golden West," who lives up to all of the traditional heritages of that section of the country. She is one of the leaders of the horsewomen with the Walter L. Main Circus this year and is being paid n salary that is unprecedented in the American circus history.

Following her sensational success at the Frontier Days celebration in Wyoming and at various other rodios, Mr. Main approached Miss Baldwin with a view of signing her for a tour with the Walter L. Main circus. At that time Miss Baldwin would not listen to talk of a circus tour.

"Wait," she said, "until I have proved myself to be what the newspapers and authorities say I am now, 'America's leading horsewoman.' When I have tried my skill at the Calgary stampede in competition with the most skilled women riders of the world and if I am successful I will talk with you about a contract."

Mr. Main waited. A few months later while reading the morning papers aboard his private car he read headlines on the front page which told him that Miss Dixie Baldwin had been declared the greatest woman rider in America. Immediately he wired Miss Baldwin. He received this answer:

"Your offer accepted. Will join circus in New York next week."

Since that time the Walter L. Main Circus has been able to offer America's best in women riders. Besides Miss Baldwin there are those spectacular European horsewomen, Miss Peggy De Martini and Miss Winnetti Roberta. Miss Lillian DeJarnette, the society equestrienne, also furnishes many of the big thrills of the performance. These stars are assisted by twenty of the leading horsewomen of the world.

Performances will be given here at 2 and 8 p. m., and the doors to the mammoth menagerie will open at 1 and 7 p. m. At 11 a. m., a spectacular street parade will wend its way thru the principal down-town streets—Advertisement 12-1t.

ONLY 10 REACTORS FOUND IN 1679 CATTLE TESTED

Absence of Tuberculosis in County Herds Best Record in State

Ten reactors in 1679 cattle subjected to the tuberlin test in Garrett county are the latest figures available from the office of J. L. McGlone, county agent. This percentage is the best in the State of Maryland, Mr. McGlone stated.

D. E. Poe and M. H. Trout, veterinarians of the Department of Agriculture, have been in the county for the past six weeks making the tests and expect to continue their work until all who desire their cattle tested have been served.

Dr. Poe is now making tests in the Asher Glade and Friendsville sections of the county while Dr. Trout is likewise engaged in the Accident community. Thus far tests have been completed in Districts Nos. 8, 14, 7, 5, 2 and 10. "These are the only districts from which applications for the test have been received," Mr. McGlone said yesterday. "Other districts will be visited if the farmers desire it."

INSTRUMENT FOR BOYS' BAND HAS BEEN SHIPPED

Sufficient Money Finally Raised to Purchase Bass Horn

A bass horn, for which members of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band have been waiting, and for which R. R. Gilbert, members of the Band Auxiliary and interested parties have been untiring in their efforts to secure, has been ordered, and Mr. Gilbert received word that the instrument has been shipped from the factory.

"A substantial donation from an interested concern and individual donations have made the purchase of the horn possible," Mr. Gilbert said, "and shows what can be done for a cause when it has been proven that the cause is a worthy one."

Food Sale on Saturday.

There will be a food sale under the auspices of the band auxiliary at the offices of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company on Saturday, May 19. Cakes, pies, rolls, candy and other things to eat, will be on sale.

The band appeared on the streets again on last Saturday evening and rendered several fine selections. They also appeared before the Garrett County Teachers' Association at the meeting held by that organization in Oakland on last Friday afternoon.

Knights of Pythias to Observe Veterans' Night. May 25.

Five Knights of Pythias, who have been members of Garrett Lodge No. 113, for a period of twenty-five years or more, will receive awards at a meeting of the lodge on May 25, which will be known as "Veterans' Night." Those who are to receive the awards are Mr. Louis Littman, Rev. J. B. Workman, J. H. Eckles, Benj. H. Sincell and Albert Markley.

Mr. J. C. Renninger, past Grand Chancellor of Maryland, will present the medals. The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band will be present and refreshments will be served. All members are urged to be present.

Thirty-seven Federal prisoners, sentenced in the United States Court at Cumberland during the present week to serve jail terms of from thirty days to four months for having violated the prohibition law, were brought to Oakland Tuesday and yesterday and are now confined here. Among the prisoners are four women. There are now 44 prisoners in jail, only five of whom are local people or are being held for action at the June term of the Circuit Court.

Purnell, Caught Between Truck and Tree, Is Improving

Lewis Purnell, Loch Lynn, an employe of the Mt. Airy Canning company, who received a broken right arm and severe body injuries on last Thursday morning when he was pinned between a tree and automobile truck, is improving as much as can be expected, Howard Reinhardt, manager of the plant, stated yesterday.

A defective emergency brake allowed the truck to go into gear as he attempted to start it, and Purnell was caught between the front of the car and a tree. Dr. McComas treated the injured man.

Rev. E. E. Campbell, county president, has announced.

Supper will be served at 75 cents per plate and all who expect to attend should notify George W. Diefenbach, at Grantsville, as early as possible. "If you have any doubts as to your duty or ability to be present," Rev. Campbell said, "make it a matter of prayer. We do many things as a result of prayer. If you cannot come at six, then come at seven and hear the State Secretary. Let us first seek the kingdom of God and His righteousness."

SCHEDULE NOW ARRANGED FOR PRE-SCHOOL CLINICS

They Will Be Held in All Parts of the County, June 11-21.

Meeting of The Garrett County Teachers Held Last Friday

A meeting of all the public school teachers of Garrett county was held in the Oakland High school last Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. E. E. English, president of the Garrett County Teachers' association, presided at the meeting.

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' band rendered several selections and several songs were given under the direction of Miss Karin Stenholm.

Deer Park Hotel May Reopen.

After weeks of indecision as to whether or not Deer Park Hotel would re-open this summer, it seems probable that it will be operated beginning about July 1, if present plans mature, according to those who have the property in charge. Sometime ago a receiver, the Continental Trust Company, Detroit, Mich., was appointed by the court to take the property over. If it should be operated it will likely be in charge of W. J. Flynn, who was manager a few years ago.

FOUR YOUTHS FIND "COMPANION" COLD AND DEAD, PERFORM PROPER SERVICES AND LAY HIM TO REST

"Quality Hill" Boys Lose Valued Friend in "Tippy," Faithful Dog of Donald Stemple

They found him at noontime, in the backyard of his master's home on Alder street, stone dead—dead as a doornail, or cold in death, whatever you will—but anyhow, not alive. But they called no undertaker—they would prepare him for burial when they returned from school, for at that hour the shades of evening would be drawn and that is the proper time to inter the remains of a faithful companion. And they would try to find out who had committed the heartless murder and left him to die within reach of his master's home.

Their one dear friend had been taken from them, but they would see that he received all honors and a proper burial service. So they wrapped him in a robe (a burlap sack, to be accurate), placed him in a rough box obtained at a store, took one last, lingering look at their dear friends and the hearse, a flat-bed wagon, approached, placed the box and its contents upon it and then walking beside it in the capacity of four official pallbearers as the "hearse", drawn in all solemnity by boys who volunteered their services, wended its way to the edge of the cemetery where there was a depression in the ground of the proper length, width and depth, prepared by the mourners at a previous time.

Interment Was Solemn.

Carroll Casteel and Walter Dawson, Jr., stood with bowed heads as Donald Stemple and Richard Gonder each offered a prayer for the repose of their lost friend, and after the body had been covered with mother earth a horseshoe was placed as a marker for them when they wished to pay him a tribute at any future time.

It was only a dog, but he was loved by these boys, and what boy does not learn to love a dog even though he be a mongrel? And it was Donald Stemple's "Tippy," friend and companion of all the boys on "Quality Hill." He has gone to the place where all good—and bad—dogs go. But he was only one of three dogs poisoned Monday in that neighborhood. "Tippy" was just a dog—nothing else.

The others poisoned were more valuable from a monetary standpoint. One, a German police dog, was owned by Dave Walter, and the other was the property of Charles Riley and his children. They were loved in their individual circles, and it is even rumored that tears of sorrow were shed over the body of "Tippy" by two of the chief mourners, Misses Elsie Benthein and Rhesa M. King.

AMERICAN LEGION MAKING PLANS FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Will Participate In Parade Followed by Service at Cemetery

Final plans for a Memorial Day service, May 30, will be made at a meeting of Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, to be held shortly, according to I. R. Rudy, past commander.

The tentative program as outlined calls for a street parade about 9:30 a. m., forming on Third street, followed by services to be conducted at the cemeteries. Some local speaker will make the address.

The Boy Scouts, Knights of Pythias, the American Legion and the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band will take part in the parade, as well as the members of the G. A. R. and soldiers of the Spanish-American war organization, according to present arrangements.

The program in full will be announced in The Republican on next Thursday morning.

STATE GRANGE COMMITTEE PLANS FOR MEETING HERE

Tentative Program Outlined at Session Held in Baltimore on Monday, May 14.

Preliminary plans for the State Grange meeting, which is to be held in Oakland on August 14, 15 and 16, were made at a meeting of the executive committee of the State Grange held at the Rennert Hotel, Baltimore, on Monday, May 14, according to Mr. J. L. McGlone, who represented the farmers and grangers of the county at the meeting of the committee.

According to the program as arranged in Baltimore the first day of the convention (Tuesday, August 14) will be given over to arranged business matters claiming the attention of the delegates, while Tuesday afternoon will be an open session to which the public generally is invited, and Wednesday, the second day of the convention, will be left open for entertainment. Upon this day the visitors will be shown some of the beauty spots of Garrett county.

Dr. Symonds, director of the Extension Service in Maryland, is telling all the county agents of the State to arrange for an automobile tour so that a large number will be able to attend. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is also offering special rates to Oakland on these days, hence a large number of visitors is expected. A conservative estimate places the number of strangers to be here at five hundred.

The members of the Junior Class will conduct a food sale at Fraley's store on Saturday, May 26. Any contributions will be appreciated.

The Senior Annual for 1928 is being printed at The Republican office. It will be on sale before long, so get your order in soon, as there will be a few copies only.

HELEN HINEBAUGH,
VIVIAN CLARY, Reporters.

Miss Elizabeth Heath, English instructor in the Oakland High School, was called to her home at Lovingston, Va., Friday evening by a message announcing the serious illness of her father, Mr. W. Scott Heath, who had suffered a stroke of paralysis earlier in the day and whose death resulted on Sunday morning at three o'clock. Mr. Heath was editor and publisher of the Nelson County Times, a weekly newspaper published at Lovingston, Va.

ACCIDENT VICTIM MAY RECOVER FROM INJURIES

Monica Maroney Has Regained Consciousness and Others In Wrecked Car Return to School

Monica Maroney, 16 years old, the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John W. Maroney, who was unconscious for a week and three days from concussion of the brain received in an automobile accident on Friday, May 4, is improving more and more each succeeding day, according to members of her family and will in all probability recover.

Since Monday she has been conscious of her surroundings, talks at times rationally and other times irrationally, knows her brothers and sisters and takes quite a bit of nourishment. She began to move her arms on Wednesday, and her rally from what were considered fatal injuries is considered miraculous.

Miss Maroney was one of six high school boys and girls who were returning from a baseball game at Friendsville in a car driven by Clifford Hahn, of Crellin, when the car left the highway at a point two miles north of Oakland and turned over several times, stopping in a plowed field.

The other occupants of the car were more or less injured, but all except Miss Maroney are now able to be out and have been attending school the past week.

The most painfully injured of the five who have recovered were Geraldine Nordeck, whose arm was dislocated, and Jas. Nordeck, her brother, who was thought to be injured internally. The other three, Hasaleah Yutzy, Robert Lohr and Clifford Hahn, while receiving serious cuts and bru while receiving painful bruises and cuts, were not confined to their homes for any considerable length of time.

Program Is Arranged For Community Sing on May 25.

A Community Sing for the young folks of Oakland, sponsored by the Oakland Civic Club, will be held in the Maryland Theatre, Friday, May 25, at 2:15 p. m., Miss Thekla Fundenburg, president, has announced.

Those scheduled to take part, according to the program which has been arranged, are the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, in charge of R. R. Gilbert; members of the High school, in charge of Miss Karin Stenholm; members of the Grammar school, in charge of Miss Marion Leary; members of the Parochial school, in charge of Mrs. James Treacy.

Mrs. Treacy, chairman of the committee on arrangements, will accompany the singing at the piano. The Boy Scouts will bring their flags and act as ushers, it was stated. A certain part of the theatre will be reserved for the "grown-ups" and all are welcome to take part.

The Power of Credit

[ The mightiest engine ever built, rushing onward at top speed, is but an infant in strength when compared to the power of CREDIT. ]

Credit can build great cities or it can destroy them. Credit can make or break a world power nation.

Yet with all its great power, Credit is one of our most fragile institutions. Rightly guarded and fostered it can carry us onward and upward to untold heights of success.

Each one of us is entirely responsible for his own Credit. The man who pays his bills promptly, be he banker or day laborer, is doing his share toward guarding his Credit. He is building for the future upon a solid foundation. None can tell when good credit may mean the difference between success or failure in his future life.

Life of Circus Girl Healthy and Normal, Visitors to Walter L. Main Circus Find

THE CIRCUS WOMAN IS INDUSTRIOUS.

The insatiable desire of the stage for young and pretty girls, even if without noteworthy talent, does not have a counterpart with the circus. Unfortunately for these innumerable recruits for the stage, youth and beauty do not survive, and when these two qualities are not coupled with ability of a decided order, these girls find themselves miserably afloat in the flotsam and jetsam of great cities.

Visitors who have seen and met the girls and young women with the Walter L. Main circus declare that their idea that the circus life was so irregular, so hurried, and abnormal, that it would soon rob a young girl of her beauty, was quickly dispelled when they saw at first hand exactly what the life behind the curtains at the circus was.

As a matter of fact, the visitors found that the majority of circus girls are the most refreshing, the healthiest and the cleanest minded young women ever assembled together. Many of the socalled girls are married women with young daughters and sons who are also with the circus. There is little difference between the girls of the circus and the ordinary, healthy girls who live in comfortable, refined homes except that the life of a circus girl is in the open where she has a better opportunity to develop both physically and mentally.

Life behind the red curtain which separates the dressing rooms from the rest of the circus is not unlike that of a big family in camp. Here the women do their sewing, their laundry, their reading and writing and the instructing of their children. Nobody molests them, no profanity is allawed to reach their ears and the atmosphere in which they live is as refined and respectable as it would be in the best regulated home. Circus folks are home-loving, family people at heart and not at all like the misguided public is prone to consider them.

Many entire families, ranging from grandparents to year-old children, travel with the Walter L. Main Circus and enjoy all the comforts and privacy of home life. In some of the ring acts three generations of a family are performing at the same time. Most of the really great circus performers of today are descendants of a long line of circus ancestors, and their success in their chosen field is largely due to the heritage of clean living and clean thinking that has been handed down from generation to generation.

Of the 600 people traveling with the Walter L. Main Circus nearly 300 are women. The big show will exhibit in Oakland, Monday, May 21.

The street parade will be at 11 a. m. and doors open at 1 and 7 p. m. to the immense menagerie. The performance will start at 2 and 8 p. m., promptly.—Advertisement 13-1t.

HUMANITARIAN

Just as in the past the problems of the hour called for varying types of men, whether lawyers, legislators, politicians, soldiers, or diplomats, so today we need at the head of the United States a man whose training, abilities and broad experience enable him to grapple with and understand these intricate and world-wide forces, and to furnish the leadership and direction that will enable the Nation to control and direct them for the common good.

Of all the men in public life, Mr. Hoover is supreme in this line. If there is a major economic problem in the life of this Nation with which his vigorous and resourceful mind has not already become thoroughly familiar, I have yet to discover it.

For me Hoover's life begins in 1914, when he organized the relief of 160,000 Americans stranded in Europe. He then became head of the Commission for the Relief of Belgium formed under his chairmanship, which for over four years was to feed and provision a nation of over ten million people. This Commission was more of a government than a private enterprise. It purchased quantities of food in the world markets; it operated its own fleet of 200 ships, together with canal boats, railways, warehouses, slaughter houses, bakeries and flour mills; it expended $1,500,000,000; its overhead was only 1½ per cent. and its final statement of accounts was accepted without any question by all governments.

Pretty good for the hitherto unknown son of the Iowa blacksmith, aged forty. Pretty good for the country that breeds such men.

The Belgian story is typical of all that follow. Returning in 1917, he organized the United States Food Administration, which promoted and directed our food exports, which rose from 6,000,000 tons annually before the war to 20,000,000 tons. In 1919 he was again in Europe organizing and directing the food supply of enemy and liberated countries, directing many activities looking to the economic restoration of that continent; organizing the campaign against the typhus epidemic, then raging in Eastern Europe, a campaign which reduced the number of afflicted from 600,000 to 10,000 in six months. It is no exaggeration to say that he in these six years rendered greater direct service to more human beings than any other individual since the world began.

We are in the market for more milk than we are at present receiving.

A real road test

Sixty cars and trucks were operated for two months with a good oil commonly used by motorists, and then for two months with "Standard" Motor Oil—nearly 200,000 car miles in all. The same gasoline was used throughout.

With "Standard" Motor Oil these cars averaged 8.5% greater mileage per gallon of oil. The better piston seal and greater power resulted in 12.7% more miles per gallon of gasoline.

The greater oiliness of "Standard" will have the same effect in your car.

HOOVER AND SMITH HELP EACH OTHER.

The desire to win is the most potent factor in party politics. The seemingly irresistible progress of Governor Smith toward the presidential nomination has been greatly stimulated by the belief —and the propaganda—that he has the best chance to be elected. In a lesser degree , but in the same way, Hoover's success thus far has been helped hy the general conviction that he is the strongest Republican candidate. The strong lead achieved by each of these candidates has been helpful to the other candidate, altho they are of different parties.

That is to say, the more likely the nomination of the strongest candidate in one party becomes, the more inclined the other party will be to rally to its most pouplar candidate. Perhaps for this reason the opposition to Hoover in his own party—aside from the opposition centered around opposing candidates—has grown less as the Smith nomination has become more probable and as Hoover's strength has been more definitely revealed.

For example, Smith would get many wet Republican votes, and there would be many other Republicans to whom his hurrah, demoneratic style would appeal. Hoover would get many conservative Democratic votes and some dry Democrats would go to him. He would have a strong appeal to business interests that have been generally satisfied with the Coolidge policies and would count on Hoover to carry them on. He would appeal especially to women because of a record of achievement that is nothing short of romantic in its scope and fullness and is touched with sentimental appeal in its humanitarian phases. There would be more than the usual breaking away from party lines if Hoover and Smith should be the nominees.

No one can say that Smith is the only Democrat that could possible beat Hoover or that Hoover is the only Republican that could possibly beat Smith; but as the candidates, active and available, are lined up for the coming conventions, will not the conventions be disposed to size up the situation about on that premise?

IS THE PRIMARY ON THE TOBOGGAN?

It would be a curious development, indeed, if the movement for the aholition of the popular primary should gain such an impetus because of the financial rather than the moral or political feature of the system. Within the last few years there has been a rising doubt in the minds of many people as to whether the popular primary was really representative of the will of the people, and an equal increasing feeling that improvement in the type of candidates for public office can be best secured through municipal, county and state conventions.

Somebody has now been at work consolidating the costs to the public of the popular primaries which have been held, and they have decided that in many cases it runs to almost five dollars a vote. Where there is congestion, of course, the figure runs down.

In Ohio, for example, the entire election machinery of the State was called into action to record the votes of approximately twenty-five per cent of the electorate. In Hamilton county alone the cost was $45,000. In short, the figures in total and per capita are rather disturbing, particularly when the advantage of the judgment obtained hardly seems to be worth while.

KILLING A LANGUAGE.

That new English dictionary with 15,488 pages containing 500,000 definitions and a total of 50,000,000 words is probably necessary, or at least inevitable. There are people who seem to want that sort of thing. But to the ordinary human being it is appalling.

Think of searching among 500,000 definitions for the one you want! And this number, too, very likely refers only to primary definitions, or numher of words defined. There may he millions of subsidiary definitions.

The business man who wants to know about a word and has such a monumental work around, will ask somebody else to look it up and report. There will be a vast, new range of opportunity opened up for the word hound who likes to use words in unusual senses, or to start a controversy and make good on it.

The chief benefit should accrue to cross-word puzzle fiends, many of whom still pursue the exercise. They can hunt words to their heart's desire.

Speaking in general, those who resent such a dictionary can ignore it. But in a sense, it cannot be ignored. It will fasten its grip or the language, perhaps, more firmly than any previous work has done. Every possible shade of meaning of every possible word and phrase will be set down in black and white, as a law of the Medes and Persians. Language, which should be a living thing, will lose still more of its flexibility. Speech and literature will be more tightly bound. Pedants, rather than creative artists, will dominate our mother tongue.

So it will go on and on, with ever-increasing precision, formality and fixidness, until finally the whole vast, frozen system is smashed—as other great languages have been—and the debris used as raw material for new, living, growing tongues again.

TWO GRAND OLD MEN OF THIS COUNTY 97 AND 96

J. J. Beachy and A. A. Maust. 97 and 96 Years, Respectively, are both well Preserved Physically

(By P. L. Livengood in Meyersdale Republican)

It is not often that two men, both nearly a hundred years old, are found living only a few miles apart, but Grantsville District, in Garrett County Maryland, has two such men in the persons of Jonas J. Beachy and Abraham A. Maust. Mr. Beachy was 97 years old on Feb. 6, of the present year, while Mr. Maust rounded out his 96th year last November. Both men are of the finest type, men of intelligence, and what is better still, men of sterling and unblemished character.

It is indeed a pleasure to announce that both of them are still exceedingly well preserved physically for men of their great age, with general health good, and their mental faculties unimpaired. Both have good memories, and still take a keen interest in current events. Mr. Beachy, the older of the two, has a memory that is really phenomenal, which he attributes to inheritance from his mother, who was Christena Livengood, a sister of the writer's paternal grandfather, the late John C. Livengood. She was also a sister of the late Christian C. Livengood, and the late Samuel C. Livengood, the latter known for many years, by the nickname "Shingo" who died in 1898 in his 93rd year.

In spite of his great age. Mr. Beachy remembers practically everything that is read to him, whether it be a newspaper column of statistical matter expressed in terms of dollars and cents, or in numbers of various denominations dealing with war casualties or whatever. His greatest physical handicap is his eye-sight, which has been failing him for the last few years, and is no longer good enough to enable him to read ordinary newspaper print. Mr. Beachy was always a great reader, and since his sight has become too bad to read, he has members of his household read newspapers and other literature to him. In that way he manages to keep posted on current events and on other matters. He possesses a large amount of general information which he acquired by reading, and being a close observer all his life, he also gleaned much useful knowledge by observation and association, and although he grew to manhood at a time when all school facilities were exceedingly poor he nevertheless became a well-read man. His talented son, the late Leo J. Beachy, who died a little over one year ago, was a great comfort and consolation to his aged father for many years, as he was the possesso: of a fine literary mind, and did a great deal of writing for the Motor Travel Magazine, and for other publications, of a character in which the father was deeply interested, and furnished much of the information that went into the son's magazine and newspaper articles.

Jonas J. Beachy has for many years lived on a fine farm about three miles southeast of Grantsville, at what is known as Mount Nebo, about 2 miles south of the National Pike. His wife, who was a sister of the late Col. E. D. Yutzy, died within the last two years, but her venerable husband is still being cared for on the old home farm by his eldest son and daughter, Edward and Kate.

It was the writer's good pleasure last Sunday to be one of a party of five cousins of Mr. Beachy to make a visit at his Mt. Nebo home. The party was made up of James K. Livengood, Walla Walla, Wash.; W. S. Livengood, owner of The Meyersdale Republican; the writer, his daughter Florence and son Joseph. The visit was greatly enjoyed by all members of the party, and it was the first time the writer saw and conversed with his aged and venerable cousin since early in the year 1919. We found the grand old man in his usual jovial mood, full of anecdotes and jokes, and also eager to discuss some of the leading topics of the day. The time seemed all too short to all concerned, and had the pilot of the party, W. S. Livengood, not been obliged to be back in Meyersdale hy a certain time, all would have been greatly pleased to call on the venerable Abraham A. Maust, also, on their return trip from Mt. Nebo. Mr. Maust has for many years re-resided about four miles northeast of Grantsville, on the north side of the National Pike. He was born and reared in Elk Lick township, Somerset county, Pa., however, and is the father of Harvey and Aaron Maust, of Salisbury.

It was a pathetic scene when the cousins, James K. Livengood and Jonas J. Beachy bade each other goodbye, as both are high up in years, although the cousin from the far west is twenty years younger than cousin Jonas. Cousin James lives too far away to get back to his native heath very often, and he is due to be back home in two weeks. He thinks, too, that it is doubtful whether he will ever make another trip east, and when he bade cousin Jonas farewell, he said it would probably be the last time they would ever see each other in this world. Both were deeply affected over what was probably their last earthly farewell expressed very feelingly to each other, and cousin James expressed the hope that God would continue to deal kindly with one and all, and permit Cousin Jonas to live long enough on this earth at least , to round out his 100th year, and then be called to a better world to enter upon a nobler, happier life than is possible here. So may it be, is the writer's fervent hope and prayer.

GORTNER.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Christena Slabach, of Mountain Lake Park, was held at the Union church here on Sunday afternoon. The services were conducted by her pastor, the Rev. C A. Shilke, of the Oakland Lutheran church. Mrs. Slabach was aged 77 years and is survived by ten children, all of whom were present at the funeral, as follows: Mrs. Lydia Stark and Mrs. Melchoir Hetrick, of Bittinger; Noah C. Slabach, Gortner; Alvin G. Slabach, Clarksburg; Mrs. William C. Hutchinson, Buffalo, N. Y.; Mrs. Lewis Killius, Mrs. Thomas Compton and Mrs. Hervey Bittner, Mountain Lake Park; Clayton Slabach, Corinth, and Elwood Slabach, Weston. Three brothers, Messrs. Ira and Noah Durst of Bittinger, and Jonas Durst, of Frostburg, also survive.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Slabach spent last Saturday evening at Springs, Pa., with relatives.

Rev. F. L. Fultz, of Loch Lynn, delivered a sermon at Union church on Wednesday evening on the Ascension. Mr. L. H. Fike preached in the same chapel on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Mary Lee is spending some time with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Newman while they are absent from home on a trip to the west.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Swartzentruber attended church services at Springs on Sunday evening.

Mr. P. P. Gortner was painfully injured on Thursday when the lever of a farm drill struck him on the nose and resulted in a fracture and deep cuts. It was necessary for the physician who attended him to close the wound with several stitches.

We are indeed sorry to note that Mrs. P. P. Gortner is again quite ill owing to an affection of her heart.

Miss Mary Hershberger, who has been at the home of Simon Swartzentruber for some time, returned to her home in Grantsville on Sunday.

Miss Agnes Keller, of Weber, and Mr. Perry Enlow, of Hoyes, spent Thursday evening with Mrs. Sisk.

Mr. J. H. Sanders spent Saturday night here with Mr. and Mrs. William Sanders.

An Ideal and An Aim

"The ideal and aim today of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and its associated companies is a telephone service for the nation . . enabling at all times, anyone anywhere to pick up a telephone and talk to anyone else, anywhere else, clearly, quickly and at a reasonable cost."

WALTER S. GIFFORD,
President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company
(Bell System)

¶ This statement of the president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company expresses the ideal and aim of the Bell System. It is the principle which has guided the management during the entire life of the system —to give the most telephone service and the best at the lowest cost to the public.

¶ In pursuit of this objective, there has been established a great nation-wide system of communication — built and extended in a spirit of service to the public—permitting at all times, anyone, anywhere to talk to anyone anywhere else, clearly, quickly and at a reasonable cost.

¶ The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City which furnishes your service, is a part of the Bell System. Its policies are the same—to give you the most telephone service and the best at the lowest possible cost.

¶ To this end we are constantly setting higher standards of service—then bending our energies to attain them. The year just closed has witnessed greater progress in this direction than any similar period in the company's history.

¶ This year we expect to do better and next year better still. In this way we are striving faithfully to realize the ideals and aims of the Bell System.

One hears much critical talk about "foreigners." We have little right to make distinctions. This whole country is so new compared with some other great nations of the earth that we are all foreigners—all but the red Indians. To be sure, some men and women have been here but six months. The oldest families have been here two or three hundred years. And in the long run of time and the long processes of nature there is little difference between six months and a hundred years. It is a poor "knock" to say your fellow citizen, perhaps neighbor, is a foreigner.

Lesson for May 20

JESUS TEACHING IN THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:13-44.

GOLDEN TEXT—He taught them as one having authority.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Answers Some Hard Questions.

JUNIOR TOPIC — Jesus Teaches Great Duties.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Answers His Critics.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Love, the Law of the Kingdom.

I. The Parable of the Husbandmen (vv. 1-12).

Having put the scribes, chief priests and elders to confusion by a skilful counter question when they demanded to know His authority, Jesus by means of a story lays before them His claim of divine authority, and charges them with betrayal of trust and with plotting to murder the very Son of God. His teaching cut them to the quick, and they sought to lay hands upon Him, but desisted for fear of the people.

1. The vineyard (v. 1), represented Israel (See Ps. 80 and Isa. 5).

2. The husbandmen (v. 1) represented the rulers who were charged with responsibility for the spiritual interests of the people.

3. Messengers (vv. 2-5) represented the prophets whom God sent to Israel, even including John the Baptist.

4. The Son (vv. 6-8) represented Jesus Himself.

5. The judgment of the Lord of the vineyard (v. 9). This represented the time when the Jews shall be brought to account for their treatment of the servants of God and of Jesus Himself.

II. The Tribute Money (vv. 13-17).

They already would have gladly taken Him by violence and killed Him, but they feared the people. In order to destroy Him they seek to discredit Him among the people (v. 13).

1. Their question (v. 14).

"Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar, or not?" The Pharisees contended that since God was the real King of Israel, it was not obligatory, yea, it was even sinful to give tribute (taxes) to a heathen king. The Herodians were supporters of Herod; with flattery on their lips, they put this subtle question. For Him to answer "Ye" would have discredited Him with the people, and to have said "No" would have made Him liable to arrest as an enemy of the government.

2. Jesus' reply (vv. 15-17).

He asks that a coin be brought and inquires whose image and superscription it bears, declaring that those who accept the coin of Caesar should pay taxes to Caesar. In this reply the Lord escapes their trap and enunciates a principle which applies to all time and conditions as to the Christian's responsibility to civil government.

III. The Resurrection of the Dead (vv. 18-27).

The Pharisees and Herodians being silenced, the Sadducees came with a question which involved not only immortality but the resurrection of the body. They denied the reality of the resurrection, and believed not in angel nor spirit (Acts 23:8).

1. The case proposed (vv. 19-23).

The law of Moses made it not only legal but morally binding in the case of a man dying without children for his brother to take his wife (Deut. 25:5). They propose the case of a woman married successively to seven brothers. They ask whose wife she will be in the resurrection.

2. Jesus' reply (vv. 24-26).

By a quotation from the Mosaic law (Ex. 3:6) He proves the resurrection of the dead, and their continued existence after death as glorified beings. He shows that marriage is for this present life. He points out that their great error was due to two things.

(1) Ignorance of the Scriptures (v. 24). In the very Scriptures which they professed to believe was positive proof of the resurrection (Ex. 3:6).

(2) Ignorance of the power of God (v. 24). God is able to provide a life where there is no death, no births or marriages.

IV. The Great Commandment of the Law (vv. 28-34).

Christ's answer shows marvelous insight. He sums up man's whole duty in one word—love. The first and great commandment is supreme and undivided love of God. The second is like unto it in that love is its center, but love for our neighbor in the measure that we love ourselves. Having put His questioners to silence, Jesus now puts to them a question which involves the central doctrine of the Christian faith—the person of Christ (vv. 35-40). Is He human or divine, or both?

Some Good Advice

There is nothing more that I can say. Christ is before you to take freely; accept Him; trust Him; believe what He says; assume that you are His and behave as if you were.—Alexander Whyte.

Without Love

Without first love we may retain ceaseless activity, immaculate purity, severest orthodoxy, but there will be no light shining in a dark place.—G. Campbell Morgan.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

Never Light, Anyway

Archibaldson, the pressman in the back room, claims that cigaret lighters will never wholly replace matches because one can't pick one's teeth with a lighter. Yes, he uses matches exclusively and often.

* * *

All That Goes Up—

Scoop and Col. Bell walked the Oakland streets for two days and nights, covering approximately 414.6 miles, hunting for a picture for the week. And the only thing we could find was the predicament of "Betty" Dawson, the twin of Andalusia, one of the gold dust twins of Harned's Pharmacy, as he was in the midst of getting a step ahead of "Clean-up Week."

As the Colonel and Scoop walked up Pennington street for the seventeenth time, a neighbor told us how "Betty" had come to make the missteo as he was engaged in painting his home. We were too late for the picture, but with a little persuasion and a guarantee on the part of the Colonel that the picture would be realistic as well as a work of art, "Betty" was willing to do it again, just for the sake of getting into print, so here he is—

"Now He's in The Air."

Clean Your Ivory.

Neil Liller, the graceful barber, is thinking of putting a sign on the mirror in front of his chair in Bittner & Stahl's shaving and hair cutting emporium, to read, "Time to clean your woodwork (or ivory). Don't wear yourself out by rubbing all day. Let us show you how to shampoo the easy way."

* * *

Another Councilman.

In pursuance of the policy inaugurated last week to put the members of the Town Council in the public eye, the Colonel presents this week a close-up of Jesse James Ashby, one of the recently elected members of the Town Council, just as he was making a stormy scene in regard to repairing Pennington street. He won the argument as witness the repairs made an about completed.

The "Hill" Representative.

Another noteworthy figure just now in the public eye, is Samuel Aronhalt, also a councilman by the grace of the voters of town two years ago. He is pictured as trying to put over a motion before council to prohibit "mountain pussies" from entering the city limits, especially those who make entrance into the sacred precincts via Crook's Crest.

A Fishy Fish Story

This fish story has not been concocted by Harry Mickey or Jim Painter, but is a tale of the Middle West possibilities for all admirers of Isaac Walton. A subscriber of The Republican residing at Lakeside, Nebraska, sends in the money for his paper with the notation: "I have been up in the Black Hills fishing. We have fish here in Nebraska but it is so dry the fish are losing their scales; some have worn their tails off standing up looking for rain. It is the driest winter and spring we have had in twenty years."

City Gains Ground

A half-acre of pavement was returned to the city of Oakland Tuesday afternoon when part of Second Street sidewalk was unearthed and rediscovered under the Presbyterian church lawn.

Rains over a period of years gradually covered up a considerable portion of the walk, but the voluntary work on the part of the church members shows that they wanted to "do the right thing by our Nellie." And they did.

There's still another acre that can be returned to the city a short distance from that property, on Second street just below Center street.

Some Points About Nicaragua As Related by a Returned American Traveler to the United States.

To the Editor of The Republican.

"Nicaragua must be brought before the world; the world must be made to see the tragedy and the needs of this country. If my death can accomplish this, my life is well spent." This is the gist of a returned traveler's report on Sandino and what was told him by Sandino's gather.

It was the father who expressed in words like these his son's ambitions.

This returned traveler who is being quoted is one of the four friendly visitors who went in the winter of 1927-28 on an expedition of friendship to Central America. Yet Nicaragua, in its present chaotic condition, received the most of its attention.

The purchase of the Nicaraguan canal route, the occupation by United States Marines, the proposed election to be held under United States supervision, the rebellion of Sandino, have been so constantly in the press recently that these points were not stressed by the four friendly visitors.

They do lay emphasis on the character of Sandino's family, his father in his quiet life as a coffee grower, the young alertness of his wife who at one time had charge of the telegraph station at San Rafael. But the main value of the report, which has been given neither to the press at large nor to the Government, is in suggestions made as to our future relation with Central American countries:

"There is need of more favorable news and of appreciable articles in our newspapers and periodicals, to counteract the unfavorable side which appears too often. It would be an international service to promote travel through Central America. Those who go with human sympathy and understanding will come home with a new respect for the cultured people they find and for the human and industrial possibilities of these southern neighbors of ours."

"We should interest ourselves actively in the problem of transportation, the lack of which is at the root of much that is wrong politically and socially in Central America. We ought to agitate for the construction of the Nicaraguan canal. We hold an option on it, but will neither build nor let anyone else do it.

"There is need for libraries, which could be provided at little cost and which would not only provide means of enlarged knowledge and entertainment, but would stimulate the desire for education.

"Everyone with whom we discussed the matter said that, in the last analysis, education must provide the cure for the political ills of Central America as well as the strategic point of attack upon their economic difficulties. There should be at least one good school of agriculture and manual training in each country to train the teachers."

In return for this interest in Central American affairs we would be helping in the development of one of the richest countries in the world. Central America could furnish a vast food supply. It is exceedingly rich in minerals and woods, declared these visitors, who made a careful economic survey, and is naturally one of the finest cattle-raising countries in the world. It is in reality, also, our southern border, since our Pacific shipping must pass through the Panama Canal, and, when it has been constructed, that of Nicaragua.

To establish friendly relations with these southern neighbors and help them in their problems will, in their belief, bring return a thousandfold.

RESTLESS!

Members of the Senate and House are becoming restless—the usual "state of mind" and of "nerves" about this time every four years when a Presidential election looms. Republicans and Democrats alike, naturally enough, would like to get home as much before the date of holding the national conventions as the legislative situation will permit.

Practically all the G. O. P. House members expect to attend the gathering at Kansas City and nearly all of the members of the minority are planning to give Houston the "once over."

It is difficult to estimate how many senators will be present at the national conventions, but whether they are planning to be on hand or not, it is a fact that the two great dramas are foremost in the vision of most of them, and law-making problems are becoming drudgery. The color and snap and vigor of the quadrennial national gatherings of party chieftains make an almost irresistible appeal. Hence, the growing desire to get away from Washington.

There are House members and members of the Senate who desire to hasten home because they have either fights for renomination on their hands or feel that, even though renomination is certain, they need to begin the campaign for election early, and continue it without let-up until November.

There are legislators who are talking of May 19 as moving day. Of course, these optimistic ones are not numbered with the foremost leaders among the lawmakers. Although the urge to go home is just as strong with the latter, it is their particular duty to hold the rank and file to the grindstone. The country knows how Smoot and Moses and Fess, Longworth, Tilson and Begg, among others, shine at this particular kind of labor.

This is about how the principal problems of the lawmaking branch shape up "as of the beginning of the first week of April":

Flood Control—Passed the Senate without a negative vote, with only brief discussion. The House is mulling over the subject.

Tax Reduction—Already passed the House. Will be taken up by Senate Finance Committee to determine whether Treasury finances will permit a cut as large as the $289,000,000 the House provided.

Farm Relief—Senate will take up revised McNary-Haugen bill as soon as pending Agriculture Department appropriation bill is out of the way. House leaders preparing for early action there where bill has already been reported by the Agriculture Committee and is on the calendar.

Radio—Bill extending the life of the commission and providing reallocation of wave lengths has passed both Houses and been signed by the President.

Alien Property—Adjustment bill passed and signed; now a law.

Merchant Marine—Jones bill to stop sale of government lines passed Senate, but may be held up indefinitely in House. Substitute measure now being framed by House.

Appropriations—Only three government supply bills remain to be acted upon. All save the second deficiency bill will be out of the way within two or three weeks.

Sunday School Class Meeting

The members of the Victor's class of St. Paul's Sunday school met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ault on Saturday evening. After devotions a short business session was held at which plans were discussed for raising a sum of money during the summer months. Quite a number of contests were held, after which the boys were given a maple taffy party by their teacher. Those present were Ralph Ault, Arthur Peck, Earl Englehart, Peter Lohr, Norman Humberson, Wade Turney, Claude Friend, Ruth Ault, Mr and Mrs. E. H. Ault and Miss Nina B. Peck.

Sunday School Teachers' Meeting

The teachers of St. Paul's Sunday school attended a special meeting at the parsonage on Friday night, which was called by the pastor, Rev. G. W. W. Amick. Plans for making the Sunday school room more convenient were discussed and it was decided to start and organize both a men's and women's Bible class, which was done on Sunday. Plans for securing larger and more regular attendance were also discussed and it was decided to purchase some new equipment for the Sunday school room. All members of St. Paul's Lutheran church are urged to attend the Sunday school sessions, whether they be young or old. Come and see what is being done in the way of improvements.

The following named compose the petit jury and will be called on Thursday, June 7, at 9:00 o'clock: Albert W. Kahl, Charles V. Harvey, Adam Hetrick, Jacob J. Bender, Ernest S. Mosser, Enoch E. The argument in the matter was not completed on Friday and will be continued today at which time the Court will again be in Oakland.

HOW TO DISPLAY FLAG AND HOW TO RESPECT IT

Post Commander, American Legion, Gives a Few Pointers

Flags are seen flying in front of the majority of business houses on all holidays, and many people in Oakland carry out this idea at their residences Sometimes they should be displayed at full staff, other times at half.

Memorial Day, Wednesday, May 30, is one of the days when the flags should be displayed at half staff until noon, and at full staff from noon until sunset. In placing the Flag at half staff, according to some rules of flag etiquette, it should first be hoisted to the top of the staff and then lowered to position, and preliminary to lowering from half staff, it should first be raised to the top.

Further Rules About the Flag State

It should not be hoisted before sunrise nor allowed to remain up after sunset.

When the Flag is flown at half staff as a sign of mourning it should be hoisted to full staff at the conclusion of the funeral.

At "Retreat," sunset, civilian spectators should stand at "attention" and uncover during the playing of the Star Spangled Banner.

When the National Colors are passing on parade, or in review, the spectators should, if walking, halt, and if sitting, arise and stand at "attention" and uncover.

These rules were given out by I. R Rudy, post commander, of the local American Legion, and should be observed on Memorial Day, he said.

Sheep-Killing Bear Escapes.

A large ram, belonging to Arch Rinker, a farmer residing near Bayard, was killed by a bear last Friday night, according to reports. Mr. Rinker, whose sheepfold had been previously raided, had set a trap for the animal immediately after the discovery that his sheep had been killed. When the bear returned to finish its repast the trap was sprung, but the bear escaped being caught by it.

GARRETT COUNTY SHEEP TO COMPETE FARMERS DAY

Will Then Be Offered For Sale at College Park On May 26

Henry P. Miller, manager of the Little Meadows or Stone House Farm, located on the National Highway, a few miles east of Grantsville, whose rams last year brought the highest prices obtained at the purebred sheep sale held by the Maryland Sheep Growers' Association at College Park, will offer six ewes and two rams at the sale to be conducted by the association at the University of Maryland on Saturday, May 26, the occasion being the annual Farmers' Day observance at that institution.

The sale, as above stated, will be held under the direction of the same association, with K. A. Clark, University of Maryland specialist, in charge, and will be only one of the many features of the day of pleasure and profit for the farmers at this outing.

Every farmer of Garrett county who can should attend this meeting of the agriculturalists of the State. Low railroad fares are offered for the trip.

Mr. Miller has quite a reputation as a breeder of purebred sheep and has been receiving inquiries from all over Maryland regarding the animals he raises. The ewes and rams he will offer for sale are expected to bring top prices at this year's sale.

The University of Maryland, is preparing to be host to about 50,000 farmers from all over the State and those attending will see live stock shows, hear public speaking contests, witness public school athletic events, participate in poultry judging contests, be entertained by music, motion pictures, demonstrations and exhibits of all kinds, and this will occur on Saturday, the 26th inst.

Oakland Gun Club Placed Fifth In Meet.

Meadow Lark Gun Club, Keyser, placed second; Barton Gun Club, third; South Branch Gun Club, Franklin, fourth; Keymont Gun Club, of Piedmont, sixth.

W. R. Browning, was high scorer for Oakland's team with a total of 46 out of 50. Others on the local team were J. P. Treacy, Bruce Lohr, Dr. Edward Harris and "Doc" Bradour.

The next league shoot will be staged at the Meadow Lark Gun Club near Keyser, W. Va., on June 15 .

Senate Passes Bill Rewarding Swanton Postmaster.

The United States Senate has passed the bill of Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman authorizing the payment of a reward of $2,000 to Joseph F Friend, postmaster at Swanton, for the capture and arrest of Henderson Hall, who attempted to rob the postoffice at Swanton about two years ago, the bill having previously passed the House. The measure now goes to the President for his signature and it is anticipated that the President will sign the bill in a few days.

Hall was wounded during a pistol battle with Mr. Friend and became insane as a result of the wounds he received. Mr. Friend was also shot in the face, losing the sight of one eye as a result. Hall could not be tried following the development of insanity and Mr. Friend could not receive the customary reward offered by the Postoffice Department because of the fact that Hall was never convicted of the crime which he committed.

Streets Being Resurfaced.

All the macadam streets in Oakland are being resurfaced by employes of the State Roads Commission. Work was begun yesterday and will likely be completed today. The State was given the contract for this work because all the material for the job was in this community as well as the oiling machine, roller and men. The resurfacing of the Gortner highway was completed yesterday.

JAKE BONNER CAPTURED; JONES HELD FOR COURT

Several Other Hearings Held at Offices of Oakland Justices of The Peace.

Jake Bonner, of White Church, in this county, who escaped from the Thomas (W. Va.) jail several weeks ago, was apprehended Tuesday at a point near Keyser, W. Va., by a constable of Gorman, and was brought to Oakland and lodged in the County Jail.

The charge against Bonner is stealing meat and other articles from various farmers in the vicinity of White Church. He was first arrested by Wm. McVeigh, Western Maryland Railway officer and placed in the jail at Thomas, but made his escape before Deputy Sheriff Griffith and Constable Andrew Shartzer reached the town. How he escaped remains a mystery, as the doors were found locked and no evidence of the bars having been cut was apparent when the officers went to get the man to transport him to Oakland.

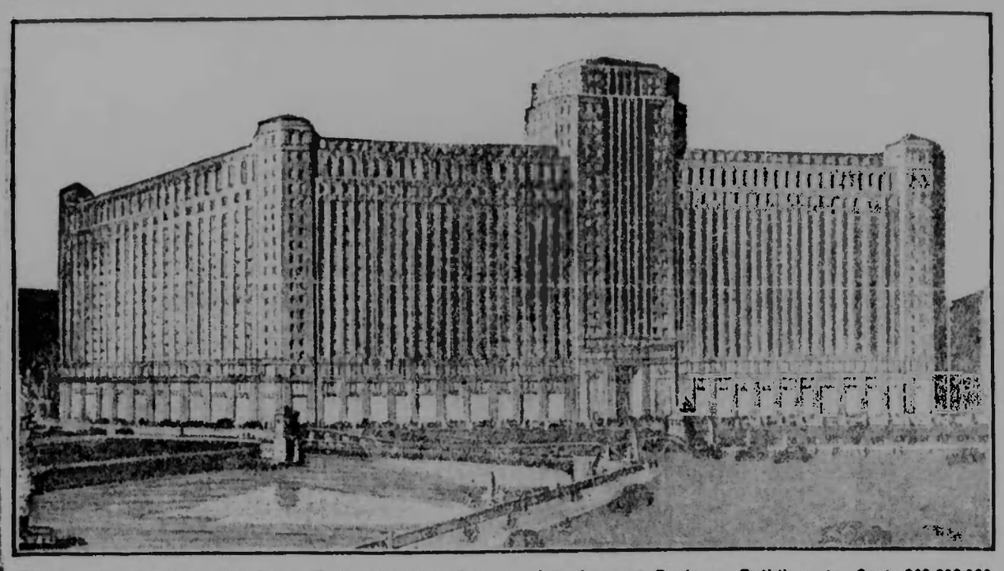
Young Man Held on Serious Charge

Randall Jones, 22 years of age, of Terra Alta, W. Va., following a hearing yesterday afternoon before Justice E. I. West, of Oakland, charged with a statutory crime, was held without bond and remanded to jail where he will be held pending the finding of the grand jury, which meets on the 4th of June.

The charge against Jones was preferred by Miss Dorothy Dent, aged 19 years, of Moundsville, West Va. Miss Dent is a nurse at the West Virginia Tuberculosis Sanitarium, Hopemont, W. Va., 9 miles west of Oakland. The offense is said to have been committed in Maryland, the young woman having accompanied Jones in his automobile to a point on the highway near Crellin where the alleged assault is said to have been made. It was brought out in the testimony before the Justice that the young woman suffered indignities of a most serious nature and that she became unconscious following the attack made upon her. Miss Dent was accompanied to Oakland by her father and an attorney of Moundsville, W. Va., while Jones was represented by L. F. Everhart, of Terra Alta.

Arrested For Burglary; Still Found

Arresting Claude Keyser, of Table Rock, Garrett county, Friday, on a charge of burglary and larceny, county officials discovered a medium sized still, completely equipped, in the man's home. He was brought to Oakland for a hearing on the two charges. Justice W. A. Gonder, at the preliminary trial held him under a $500 bond on the liquor charge and $300 on the charge of larceny, for his appearance at court. The bond was forthcoming. A Mr. Dean had sworn out the warant for larceny, alleging that tools and accessories had been stolen from him.



Oliver Paugh and George Irvin, of Bloomington, were arrested by Federal authorities last Friday for manufacturing moonshine liquor and they were brought to Oakland where they were given a hearing before Justice Gonder on the charge. They were held under $500 bond each for the appearance at Court and in default were sent to jail. They later gave bond.

Escaped Convict Captured.

Jacob Bradshaw, an escaped convict from the West Virginia state penitentiary at Mouadsville, was recognized Monday by Constable Fred. Seymour of Kitzmiller, as the man wanted by the authorities and he placed Bradshaw under arrest and lodged him in the jail here until the West Virginia officers called for him, which they did Tuesday morning and took him back to the prison. Bradshaw came to Oakland as an employe of the Main circus.

J. W. Mopwell, of Parsons, was accorded a hearing Tuesday by Justice West. He was charged with having failed to pay sundry charges for board and lodging at the Frantz hotel. It was alleged at the trial that Mopwell appeared at the hotel several times and registered under a different name upon each occasion and then left town without paying the landlord. He was ordered by the Justice either to pay what he owed at the hotel within a certain time or serve a term in the House of Correction. He is now in jail.

Mr. Earl Thayer, who is employed by the C. B. Hawley Construction Co. at Bristol, Tenn., came to his home in Oakland on Monday evening for a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Thayer.

The Merchandise Mart of Chicago, Twice the Size of the World's Largest Business Building, to Cost $30,000,000.

GIGANTIC MERCHANDISE MART TO BE TWICE SIZE OF WORLD'S LARGEST BUSINESS BUILDING

New Project for Chicago's Great Central Market to Cost $30,000,000—Involves the Greatest Single Development of Air Rights in the West.

Foremost Manufacturers, Wholesalers and Importers Will Be Housed Under One Roof in New Wholesale District; Inbound and Outbound Freight Station on Ground Floor of Building; Club in Tower for Nation's Merchants.

Chicago, (Special).—Chicago is to have a gigantic Merchandise Mart housed in its own building, which will be twice the size of the largest business building in the world. This mammoth structure, two city blocks in length, 18 to 23 stories high, is planned for the service and convenience of merchandise buyers of the United States and to achieve for Chicago a still greater prestige as a Great Central Market, it was declared today. It will cost $30,000,000. Construction will begin immediately.

The project will be the largest single development of air rights. The property of the new building except for caissons begins 23 feet above "datum."

The big business of the country is now done mainly in concentrated market places, as evidenced by the Garment Center and Cotton Goods Center in New York City, automobile rows in all leading cities, financial buildings, and the Furniture Mart in Chicago, where more than 700 furniture manufacturers show their products side by side, in the most modern manner and under ideal conditions. Business men have learned that the nearer they are to the centers of these market places, the greater is their opportunity for volume and profit.

The establishment of the Merchandise Mart is a dramatic development in the program to make Chicago the Great Central Market, a movement which the Chicago Association of Commerce started a number of years ago and a goal toward which it has been devoting its energies continuously ever since, under the leadership of its Foreign and Domestic Commerce committee.

Located on River Front.

This great Mart, which will house sales quarters and merchandise displays of several hundred of the country's foremost manufacturers, wholesalers and importers, will be located in the rapidly developing new river district, and will occupy a distinctly conspicuous position just across the river from Wacker Drive at Wells street, where the southern facade of the structure will be visible for blocks. The site was formerly that of the Chicago and North Western Railway Company's passenger station. The building will extend 724 feet on Kinzie street, 577 feet on the river front and 324 feet on Wells street, with a diagonal frontage facing Orleans and Franklin streets. It will be set back from the river about 80 feet to accommodate a broad upper level drive extending from Wells to Franklin. The main entrance of the building will face the river and the drive.

The Merchandise Mart will have a total floor space of about 4,000,000 square feet as compared with slightly less than 2,000,000 square feet, which is the floor area of the Furniture Mart, the next largest building. Each of the eighteen main floors will have an area of more than 200,000 square feet.

Within the walls of this huge edifice the retail merchants of the United States, Canada and foreign countries will be able to see, under one roof, hundreds of lines of the world's best merchandise. The manufacturers' exhibits will include textiles, ready-to-wear, toys, laces, gloves, corsets, millinery, silverware, glass, rugs, knit goods, hosiery, shoes, men's wear, fancy goods, sport goods, art and antiques, jewelry, trunks, toilet articles, house furnishings, office equipment and scores of other merchandise displays.

Ten Largest Business Buildings in the World

Comparison of the cubage of the largest buildings in the world shows the Merchandise Mart, to be erected in Chicago, will be more than twice the size of the largest business building ever constructed. Here are the figures in cubic feet:

1. The Merchandise Mart, 53,000,000.
2. Chicago Furniture Mart, 25,370,000.
3. Equitable Building, New York City, 24,000,000.
4. General Motors, Detroit, 20,411,000.
5. Union Trust, Cleveland, 20,000,000.
6. Railway Exchange, St. Louis, 18,898,000.
7. Illinois Merchants' Bank, Chicago, 17,850,000.
8. Continental & Commercial Bank, Chicago, 13,200,000.
9. Woolworth Building, New York City, 13,200,000.
10. Straus Building, Chicago, 10,000,000.

ments of engineering science, including fast elevators, freight conveyors of both the gravity and endless chain type and quick horizontal distribution on every floor.

Probably no building in the world will have such facilities for receiving and shipping merchandise as the new Merchandise Mart. The entire ground level below the street floor will be a modern freight station. Private tracks for incoming carload freight will extend under the center of the building. The Chicago and North Western Railway will operate an inbound freight station for less than carload lots, as well as an outbound station, which will connect with all other roads through its new Proviso yards. The merchandise as it comes into this big freight station will be loaded into high-speed conveyors and transported immediately to the exact floor and aisle of the merchant for whom it is intended.

Connection will be made with the Illinois Tunnel Company's system of freight transportation, which has more than sixty miles of tracks beneath the streets and buildings of the city, reaching all other railroad terminals. A river dock for vessels will connect with the south freight elevators of the building.

Club Planned for Tower.

One of the interesting features planned for the Mart will be a Merchants' Club in the tower of the building, with lounging rooms, reading and smoking rooms, where the retailer may relax and meet his friends. The Mart will provide the retailer with everything but a place to sleep. He can go direct from the train to the Mart with his baggage. Here his hotel reservations will be taken care of, his baggage transported to his hotel and placed in his room. Restaurants, lunch rooms and grills in the Mart will further economize his time. He will have the facilities of a barber shop, and a branch postoffice, telegraph office and public stenographers will afford him the opportunity to handle his correspondence without leaving the building. One of the biggest telephone exchanges in the world will be installed in the Mart.

Many other unique features are being considered for the Mart, including an Assembly Hall, where trade meetings, business conferences and fashion shows may be held from time to time. As the plans are worked out, many other features may be decided upon.

Within recent years Chicago's central business district has been developing northward across the Chicago river. East of State street, along north Michigan avenue, Cass, Rush and other streets, this development has reached impressive proportions, evidenced by more than twenty large buildings. To the west of State street, a comparable development is under way. The site of the new Merchandise Mart is in the direct path of this new northward movement.

In the new river district where the Merchandise Mart is to be located, many great buildings have been erected, and others soon will be begun. The Builders' Building, the Engineers' Building, the Chicago Evening Post Building, have been completed opposite the new Mart on Wacker Drive. The new Chicago Daily News Building and the great new opera house of the Chicago Civic Opera Company are being constructed on the river three blocks south.

Bird's-eye View of Chicago's New Business District Carrying Out the City Beautiful Theme in Which the Mercantile Mart Will Be a Dominant Factor

Among the largest tenants will be the wholesale and manufacturing sales departments of Marshall Field & Company.

Time Saver for Merchants.

Every possible facility will be provided for the comfort and convenience of the retail merchant, who under one roof will be able to see hundreds of lines, thus saving time and money by doing in a few hours what ordinarily would take him days to accomplish.

On all floors of the Mart will be great corridors, with all the appearance of boulevards, more than 650 feet in length, on either side of which will be the shops displaying their varied lines—veritable "business streets." These great corridors will be impressively treated architecturally and with the large space available it will be possible to house the selling activities and warehousing of many allied concerns on one floor, thus attaining the advantages of concentrated groupings.

The facilities for handling merchandise within the building will embody the best and most modern achieve-

An Ideal and An Aim

"The ideal and aim today of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and its associated companies is a telephone service for the nation . . . . enabling at all times, anyone, anywhere to pick up a telephone and talk to anyone else, anywhere else, clearly, quickly and at a reasonable cost."

WALTER S. GIFFORD,
(Bell System)

¶ This statement of the president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company expresses the ideal and aim of the Bell System. It is the principle which has guided the management during the entire life of the system—to give the most telephone service and the best at the lowest cost to the public.

¶ In pursuit of this objective, there has been established a great nation-wide system of communication — built and extended in a spirit of service to the public—permitting at all times, anyone, anywhere to talk to anyone anywhere else, clearly, quickly and at a reasonable cost.

¶ The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City, which furnishes your service, is a part of the Bell System. Its policies are the same—to give you the most telephone service and the best at the lowest possible cost.

¶ To this end we are constantly setting higher standards of service—then bending our energies to attain them. The year just closed has witnessed greater progress in this direction than any similar period in the company's history.

¶ This year we expect to do better and next year better still. In this way we are striving faithfully to realize the ideals and aims of the Bell System.

Republican Meeting Place Ready

THE biggest coming event on the political skyline will be at Kansas City, Mo., where the Republican National Convention will go into session June 8. This year's meeting is the second of its kind to be held in Kansas City, and that fact, along with the knowledge that the man chosen there has a big chance of becoming president has increased civic interest in the event. ### EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

Archibaldson didn't have much to say this week. He went to the circus. He had plenty to say about that—that is he had plenty to say about what they didn't have. But then, he didn't take in the side shows where the snake charmer blew on his wicked instrument. Scoop didn't take them in either.

* * *

A Bad Influence.

After attending the circus Monday afternoon Frank Smouse returned to his store and attempted to duplicate the performance of the trapeze artists with the result pictured below. Although the chandelier has been pulled loose from its achorage on the ceiling, it is thought that repairs can be made and Frank is expected to fully recover.

Frank in a Nose Dive.

Col. Bell On a Rampage.

Colonel Bell is on a rampage this week. His dog Moonshine was shorn to resemble the lion in the circus and somebody brought him in for a "sitting" at the Colonel's office. After the picture was taken the party refused to make payment saying that the dog was the Colonel's own. Colonel Bell is only half convinced at this time and as a consequence refused to go out on any expeditions with Scoop this week.

* * *

However, Scoop obtained the services of the "tin-type" specialist seen on the streets Monday and the result was the picture below showing Dave Walter as he gazed into the lens. Other "takes" will have to be omitted on account of lack of space, but if they looked anything like their poses would indicate as seen from Scoop's office on Second street, they sure must be "birdies."

Dave at His Best (or Worst)

* * *

In speaking th eother day of great inventors, such as Mareoni, Edison, Charley Tower, etc., Louis Waingold said that the guy who invented per centage wasn't any slouch.

* * *

And that reminds Scoop that Louie was down in Old Virginia last weekend, but Scoop is doubtful if Louie collected any percentage on that trip.

* * *

The Gas Man Outgassed.

Russell Brown, the gas man, was outgassed at the circus on Monday when he politely turned over $4 in bills for $1.75 in change when requested by a ticket seller. But the help of the other three "horsemen" present, who backed him with their moral support, the money was returned. Who ever heard of a circus with everyone in it as honest as Abe Lincoln, or even the "horsemen?"

* * *

In the Public Eye.

Today Oakland's public official is none other than Ralph Thayer, recently elected to serve as a member of the City Council. He is always actively engaged during council meetings in delivering addresses, the major portions of which are on "black" subjects. As this picture was taken he was talking earnestly on "Why Freeport coal is blacker than Newburg but yet left nary a trace behind after being consumed."

Another Fish Story.

About two weeks ago a merchant of Oakland expressed a desire that he wanted to learn how to fish, so he left town early in the morning with two experienced anglers, Harry Mickey and Clyde Breedlove, after having borrowed most of the paraphernalia, including the bait.

The party went over to Canaan Valley where fish are fish and men have scales, and in the course of the day the merchant lost his boots, likewise his companions, and as he had no success in fishing he was quite put out.

When he found his boots there was a fish in each and it is reported that even then he couldn't get them to take his hook. The trip was supposed to be kept a secret, but Col. Bell was on the scene, having arisen at two in the morning and Harry Sincell was snapped with hook, line and sinker. This is as true as any tale ever told by Scoop in this column. Judge it accordingly.

GLASS HOUSES IN THE SENATE

(From the Cumberland Daily News)

Senator Curtis found it necessary the other day to invoke against Senator Bruce of Maryland and Senator Black of Alabama the senate rule that a state of the Union may not be referred to in an offensive manner in debate. The point of order was well taken; Mr. Bruce had been picking at Alabama and Mr. Black had been picking at Maryland, and neither had been convinced that their respective criticisms were just: the recriminations therefore were simply wasting the senate's time, as all such always must.

If the nagging senators would give thought to the point they would recognize that the rule cited by Mr. Curtis is soundly based. It is necessary because Alabama and Maryland, and all the other states, are so palpably open to criticism on numerous grounds that they all have to be protected under the principles of tolerance. Man's fallen nature is such that in no state in the Union or elsewhere in the world, has he been able to build up society that cannot be picked at. We think it very likely that some of Mr. Bruce's strictures on Alabama are supportable by evidence, and that some of Mr. Black's indictments against Maryland are true. It is human also that Mr. Black should repel Mr. Bruce's charges and defend Alabama as a commonwealth peopled and administered by angels, while it is no less natural that Mr. Bruce should represent his state as being the perfect flower of an unblemished and flawless civilization.

Both gentlemen are wrong. Their respeetive states probably are no better and no worse than others, and when they say they are proud of them they probably are just using a figure of speech. It is because they are aware that there is much in their states that they cannot be proud of that they are so ready to uncover the shortcomings of others; it is soothing to their feelings to discover faults away from home, and anyway attack is often better strategy than defense.

But the point is that attack is so easy that something has to be done to head it off, and the senate rule invoked by Mr. Curtis is evidence of the recognition of this fact; it is a plea in avoidance. It is an admission that our social organization everywhere remains very imperfect, and that while we are trying to make it better (an effort in which the senate is supposed to be cooperating, though of course it really hasn't much time for it), the common object can best be served by refraining from nagging.

Probably it will be a long time before all the states are so cultural, spiritual and otherwise so fully partakers in the perfection Mr. Black and Mr. Bruce claim for their own, that it will be safe to abrogate the senate rule framed for the common defense.

When that time comes, if it does, the states will be so free of human frailties that they probably won't even need any senators at Washington. But that state of perfectibility probably will not be ours to see, and the best we can hope for it that senators will not take themselves too seriously and will nag each other as little as is humanly possible.

Lutheran Synod In Session at Wheeling, West Va.

Revs. C. A. Shilke, Oakland; E. E. Campbell, Bittinger; G. W. W. Amick Accident, and W. E. Waybright, Red House, with their lay delegates, are in Wheeling, West Va., attending the annual convention of the West Virginia Synod of the United Lutheran church in America, which includes the charges of West Virginia and Garrett county, Maryland.

The convention opened Tuesday at noon.

During one of the sessions, Loyal Riley, a Garrett countian, who has been a student at Gettysburg College and Seminary for several years, will be licensed and will be ordained a minister at the meeting of Synod next year.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Sincell accompanied Rev. Shilke to Wheeling, the former as an alternate lay delegate in place of Henry Lauer, who was unable to attend.

DEPARTMENT OF FORESTRY TELLS OF OOUNTY UNITS

Report Issued For Fiscal Yeau Carries Descriptions of Land

In the report of the State Department of Forestry, University of Maryland, for the fiscal year 1927, there is a description of the four Garrett county forest reserves and a short article on the chestnut blight which may be of interest to readers of The Republican.

"The four Garrett county forests are located at an elevation of about 2,500 feet . They consist almost entirely of hardwoods, principally oak, chestnut and maple, with a number of other species in smaller proportion. The Herrington Manor forest contains about three hundred acres of virgin timber, mostly white oak of large size and forming heavy stands. During the past year there have been no fires in the Garrett county forest; in fact the fire danger since these forests were acquired nearly twenty years ago, has been almost negligible except in the small detached Kindness Forest.

"A new telephone line from Herrington Manor to the lookout tower on Snaggy Mountain, some three miles away, has been built, thus giving a direct connection with the main telephone line, taking the place of an old indirect line that has been abandoned and furnishing added protection to the State forests.

"Fire lines have been established, trails opened, campers accommodated and the forests maintained in a productive condition for timber production, watershed protection and recreation. In addition to the 2,737 acres in the four forests, the use of an additional 600 acres at Swallow Falls, belonging to the Grand Lodges of Masons of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, is used by the Department of Forestry under a cooperative agreement and here designated as an auxiliary State forest.

Chestant Blight Destructive

"The chestnut blight, which has destroyed practically all of the chestnut timber in the eastern and southern parts of the State, is now doing its deadly work in the chestnut forests of Garrett county with no hope of abatement. In another five years it does not appear likely that there will be any chestnut left in Maryland free from the attack. The blight is now doing serious damage on the Skipnish and Brier Ridge forests. The scarlet oak in the Garrett county forests has for the past five years suffered from a fungus disease that has killed a large percentage of that species."

* SPARKS FROM AN * OAKLAND PULPIT *

LINDBERGH.

One year ago a heavily loaded monoplane climbed into the air from Roosevelt Field, near New York City. In the cock-pit of the plane was a tall, slender youth, with clean face, serious eyes and a mouth that just irresistibly turned up at the corners. With unerring skill he swung his ship into the northeast, across New England, over Cape Cod, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and out over the Atlantic, while fishermen, in their tiny boats and passengers on palatial liners, gaped with amazement at this "Flying Fool" hazarding his life in a reckless effort to bridge the vast ocean which had only a few days before swallowed up two gallant French aviators who had attempted the hop from east to west.

On and on, with roaring motor.... into the gathering twilight....into the blackness of night....into the thickening fog from which, every now and then, a lurking iceberg would suddenly leap toward him like a stupendous white ghost from its hiding place....on and on, sped this great, great grandson of Lief the Lucky and Eric the Red, this Viking adventurer of the air, this youthful dreamer of dream, this seer of visions, this prophet of the future, with the courage of a giant and the unstained heart of a little child.

At that moment, back in the tired, sorded, snarling city from which he had launched, a crowd of fifty thousand people were gathered in a baseball park to watch a prize fight. What strange impulse it was that moved the "hard-boiled" referee to shout a word through his megaphone to that "hard-boiled" audience, a word which quieted the growling crowd, which brought them to their feet, where they stood with bared heads, in hushed reverence, silently praying that God would bring the lonely flier safely to his goal?

At that same moment, a mother was keeping her sleepless vigil. She was in Detroit but her heart was out over the pitiless ocean wastes, and her prayers were at the throne of grace, pleading that the Heavenly Father would send His winged angels to accompany her winged boy to the journey's end.

Indeed, the anxious thoughts, the wistful hopes, the earnest petitions of two continents, of all humanity, were unitel that night in one spiritual stream as perhaps never before in history.

Meanwhile the solitary object of all these hopes and fears and anxious prayers winged his swift way on and on, the Spirit of Youth, challenging danger, laughing at death, pursuing an ideal.

Surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses urging him on, this modern Sir Galahad of Ameriea whose life is as clean as the sunlight, whose "strength is as the strength of ten because his heart is pure," continued to run with patience the race which was set before him.

His goal was not tthe applause of an admiring world, or the wealth of mammon, but the triumph of his ideal.

His triumph proved to be far more colossal than he had anticipated. It was more the triumph of science over the elements. It was more the triumph of faith over fear. It was also the triumph of international friendship over national rivalries and racial hatreds. And it was the triumph of the old-fashioned virtues of clean living, clean thinking, fair play and sportsmanship, modesty of speech and manner and faith in a mother's prayers over the cynical disbelief, the sordid greed, the vain self-seeking and the maral decay of the present day.

MEMORIES OF MY LAST FISHING TRIP.

I've wandered to the river, Jim,
I've sat beside the brook,
And in the rippling ripples, Jim,
I've dropped a worm and hook.
But the speckled trout have left the stream—
The chubs are all the go,
For I've not had a nibble, Jim,
Since twenty years ago.

We took a trip to Cherry Creek
And I dropped my hook and bob,
But scarcely had I took my seat
'Till the gnats were on the job.
They tangoed all around my ear,
They pierced me high and low;
The sting was just the same, dear Jim,
As 'twas twenty years ago.

Just below where Rock Lodge stands,
You know we started in—
Our baskets strapped upon our back,
In our flask a little gin.
And when the trout refused to bite,
Our lines we'd draw and throw
And take a nip just as we did
Some twenty years ago.

I thought I'd cross to the other side,
And wandered down the stream
To where I found a crossing place—
A large but mossy beam.
But the same old wood was in the beam;
It tootered to and fro,
The dive I took was just the same
As 'twas just twenty years ago.

The bee that buzzed among the flowers
Close by the hemlock tree,
In hunting for the sweetest sweets
Made a head-on dive for me.
My carburator began to work,
I threw her out of low,
The speed I made was just the same
As 'twas twenty years ago.

We passed down by the old mill dam,
Long since gone to decay—
The mill that spanned across the creek
Had all been torn away.
But the same bullfrogs were in the stream,
They neither come nor go,
The song they sang was just the same
As 'twas twenty years ago.

But now the dam, the big dam, Jim,
Has overflown it all,
With millions of those little tinch
Just a little too darned small.
But when the springtime comes, dear Jim,
If angling I would go,
I hope to catch the speckled trout
Of twenty years ago.

—J. W. Kimmell.

Inspection of Summer Camps To Be Made

Operators of summer or tourist camps throughout the State are requested by Dr. John S. Fulton, director of the State department of Health, to file their applications for permits to operate such camps during the coming season, at once, so that the necessary inspections may be made before campers, tourists, and vacationists take to the open road. The applications should be sent to the headquarters of the Department, 16 West Saratoga street, Baltimore.

To be duly certified, each camp must satisfy the requirements of the State Board of Health as to the protection of water supplies from polution; disposal of sewage; protection of food supplies from contamination, and general cleanliness. All premises which accommodate ten or more persons and which are to be used as a camp for tourists, or for vacation outings for a period of six days or longer, or which are to be used as picnic grounds, are subject to these requirements.

A licensed camp may be recognized by a placard bearing the State Seal, and the following notice:

"This camp has been inspected and approved by the State Board of Health."

During the season of 1927, 133 camps were inspected and licenses were granted to 78. Re-inspection of the eamps were made throughout the season by the Deputy State Health Officers. In connection with these inspections 263 analyses of water supplies were made.

Twenty counties and every section of the State were represented by the eamps which met all of the requirements. Of the total, Anne Arundel county had 18; Frederick county, 17, Washington county, 8; Montgomery county, 5; Baltimore county, 4; Cecil county, 3, and the rest had one or two.

Operators or others interested may obtain copies of the regulations governing camp sanitation and hlue print plans of arrangements for the protection of springs from pollution and for the proper disposal of sewage by writing to the State Department of Public Health.

LEGIONAIRES DECORATE GRAVES OF WAR VETERANS

Appropriate Memorial Day Services Observed In Oakland—Rain Interfered in Morning

Memorial Day in Oakland was observed by a parade of veterans of three wars, the decoration of the graves of veterans and an appropriate service at the grave of the "unknown soldier" at the silent city overlooking town.

In the absence of the Rev. George S. Baggett, who was called out of town on business and who was to have delivered the address, Delbert Davis cashier of the First National Bank and past commander of the American Legion post, said a few words in commemoration of the departed comrades and explained that the American Legion as an organization stood for peace as against war.

Due to weather conditions prevailing all during the morning, the parade and services were not held until the afternoon when at 2:30 o'clock the parade, headed by the colors and the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, passed through the downtown section of Oakland and thence to the cemetery.

Twenty-two members of the American Legion, three Marines, who were recently discharged from the service, the local Boy Scout troop, grammar school children, a number of the members of the Knights of Pythias and in a car driven by Mayor Fraley, rode Capt. James A. Hayden and Judge D W. Fraker, Civil War veterans, in company with Simon Meyers, Spanish-American soldier.

Later, at the grave of the "unknown soldier" "taps" was sounded and a firing squad of the Legion discharged three volleys from their rifles, which closed the services at the cemetery.

Graves of the following soldiers were decorated:

Confederate Veterans.

Dr. Edward H. Bartlett, George M. Mason, James W. Leathers, Peter A. Chisholm, James Dailey, D. M. Mason, William A. Dailey, Isaac Tusing.

Cabbage Plants Will Soon Be Ready, Says Canning Company's Manager.

Cabbage seed planted several weeks ago in the H. Weber & Sons Co. greenhouses near Oakland by the Mount Airy Canning Company, Mountain Lake Park, will be ready for distribution in about ten days, according to Howard Reinhardt, manager of the canning company. Cards will be sent to those already having made application for the plants when the proper time comes, Mr. Reinhardt said yesterday. There may be a few plants left for late applicants.

The plants are being given out as a commercial experiment. Specimens of the matured crop will be taken from this section to Mount Airy for comparison with the cabbage grown in that section of the State and if it proves as good or better than the product of that part of Maryland, the probabilities are that large acreages will be planted here under contract between the local farmers and the canning company.

MANY CONTESTANTS ARE ENTERED IN FIELD MEET

Twelfth Annual Event Is Being Held Today at Fair Grounds

Two hundred and nineteen contestants, exclusive of girl entrants, are taking part in the twelfth annual field and track meet of the Garrett county public schools, which began this morning at ten o'clock at the Fair grounds in Oakland.

Accident, Red House, Trap Run, Kitzmiller High, Kitzmiller Grammar, Friendsville, Selbysport, Oakland Grammar, Mill Run, Fairsweep, Sand Spring, Grantsville and Oakland High are represented in the scheduled events of boys' contests and Kempton and Mountain Lake Park added to the foregoing list in the dodgeball, volleyball and other contests.

The meet is being held under the direction of the Public Athletic League of Maryland. Field Day meets have been held at the various high schools of the county in preparation for the meet today and the best talent is expected to be seen today at the Fair grounds. Kitzmiller won last year.

The list of entries, judges and the various events will be found on page 2 of The Republican today.

FISHING SEASON IN DEEP CREEK OPENS TOMORROW

About 100 Persons Have Procured Licenses—Many More Will

The season for all game and fresh water fish, for Deep Creek Lake, Garrett county, for which a special license must be procured, will be ushered in on Friday, June 1, according to the Act of Assembly passed at the last session of the Legislature.

These licenses may be procured by applying at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland. "Approximately one hundred licenses permitting the holders to fish in the lake have been applied for and issued thus far this season," said the license clerk in the office yesterday, "but many more are expected to be applied for within the next few days," he added. "Arrangements have been made to have Elmer Haulenbeek, warden at Rainbow Inn, issue licenses at the Inn, near Thayerville, so that it will not be necessary for the applicants to come to Oakland."

Last year more than 1800 licenses were issued to fish in this body of water.

The lake has been leased to the Conservation Department, and a special license, as required by the Act, is necessary before anyone may lawfully fish in the lake.

All species of trout taken from the waters of the lake must be at least eight inches in length, with a creel limit of ten in one day; all other varieties of fish must be five inches, with a creel limit of 50 in one day. The lake will be closed against fishing on August 15.

BOYS' BAND NOW HAS 30 MEMBERS; MORE WELCOME

Director Gilbert Now Needs Two Boys to Play Mellophones

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band appeared yesterday with the largest membership in its history. Including Mr. R. R. Gilbert director, and Robert Hoffman, drum major, the band numbered thirty-two.

"We still have room for several good boys," Mr. Gilbert said, "preferably some who would play mellophones. There hasn't been a donation for several weeks," Mr. Gilbert said. "Since we have procured the large bass horn, people seem to think that we have no more need of money. But we hope to get several of the old instruments cleaned up and get the boys other material."

The Boys' Band now includes Tom Compton, Frank Lyon and Russell Brown, assistants, and the following members: Robert Brown and Arthur Lawton Jr., bass; Moon, trombone; Lewis Lawton, baritone; Jack Weber, Kenneth Lawton and George Porter, alto; Fred Peddicord Jr., Regis Kerins, Leonard Murphy, and Howard Rathbun, saxophone; John Marshall, George Kerins, Austin McRobie, and Bond Weber, clarinet; Frank Frantz, piccolo; Logan Weber, Moon, Junior Broadwater, James Treacy, E. Iman, Jack Treacy, Dan Houck, cornet; and Morris Treacy, Humbird Offutt, Junior Stemple, and Frank Blake, drums.

"Bells' Studio will be advertised on the drum head during this week," Mr. Gilbert said.

Mr. David Martin, of Willard, O., spent yesterday in Oakland with relatives and friends.

Saxophone Stolen at Crellin.

A silver plated saxophone, valued at $75, was stolen from the automobile of Harry Mickey at Crellin on Sunday night about nine o'clock. The instrument was a borrowed one and was being returned to the owner at Terra Alta, W. Va., when a short stop was made at Mr. Mickey's garage at Crellin. He was absent from the car for about ten minutes and during the time the horn was stolen. Mr. Mickey is offering a reward of $10 for the return of the horn and the apprehension of the thief.

Community Sing Is Largely Attended.

Approximately five hundred school children and quite a large number of grown-ups crowded into the Maryland Theatre last Friday afternoon to take part in the community sing, promoted by the Oakland Civic Club in celebration of the nation-wide Music Week.

"The singing showed a marked advance over last year," Miss Thekla Fundenberg, Civic Club president, stated. F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Schools, acted as the chairman, and Rev. C. A. Shilke offered the invocation. Mrs. James P. Treacy accompanied all songs on the piano.

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland, Oakland High School Glee Club, Parochial school chorus, all aided by special music, and Miss Karin Stenholm and Reeves Blandford sang two duets.

LATE PENSION INCREASES FOR CIVIL WAR WIDOWS

Bills of Congressman Zihlman Are Signed by Pres't Coolidge

Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman has succeeded in securing the passage of several special pension bills which were signed by the President on last Thursday, among them being the following:

Mrs. Mary E. Matheney, Frostburg, formerly of Oakland, pension increase from $30 to $50 per month. Mrs. Matheney is 83 years of age and requires a great deal of care and attention. She is a Civil War widow.

Mrs. Mary Etta Sanders, Civil War widow, Mountain Lake Park, pension granted of $20 per month. She was married too late to be included under the law, but came under the provisions of the Invalid Pension Committee. The committee rules set the date of June 27, 1915. Mrs. Sanders is the widow of the late Judge Henry G. Sanders of Garrett county.

William R. Lewis, Kempton, Garrett county, pension granted of $50 per month. Mr. Lewis served in Captain Bond's Company, West Virginia State Guards during the Civil War, from December 9, 1863, to March 10, 1865.

66 Persons Examined First 3 Days of Health Week.

Sixty-six persons have been examined the first three days of Health Week in Garrett county, Miss Rhesa M. King, Public Health Nurse, said this morning.

Twenty-two of these were children from one of four years old and were examined the first day of the welfare clinic; 16 were from four to seven years old, being examined on the second day, and 28 attended the tuberculosis clinic yesterday.

One hundred and fifty have expressed their intention of being examined today, which is the clinic for children of pre-school age.

Garrett Countian Victim of Mine Disaster.

The funeral services for Lloyd Hetrick, aged 30 years, formerly of Jennings, this county, who was one of the 190 men killed in the Mather mine disaster at Mather, Pa., were held Friday afternoon at the Jennings M. E. church. Rev. J. E. Johnson officiated. The deceased is survived by his wife and several children.

ASSAILANT OF MRS. DAISY WELLING ELECTROCUTED

Negro Is First Victim of Washington's Electric Chair.

The electric chair at Washington, D. C., had its first victim at ten o'clock Tuesday morning in the person of Philip Jackson, 32-year-old Negro, who was executed for assaulting Mrs. Daisy Welling, divorced wife of Carter Welling, formerly of Oakland, the assault having occurred on the Capitol grounds during last summer.

Ten persons witnessed the execution, including officials of the District of Columbia jail and newspapermen. Congress abolished hanging about two years ago, but no death sentences since that time have been carried out.

Defended by a Negro attorney, Jackson put up a valiant fight for his life, but he definitely lost when President Coolidge a few days ago refused to commute the death sentence.

Mrs. Welling, employed as a telephone operator in a Washington hotel, was assaulted and robbed by the Negro while walking through the Capitol grounds to her home. She identified Jackson as her assailant and he was tried and convicted.

SCHOOL TEACHER FOUND NOT GUILTY OF CHARGE

Parent of Child Alleged Unreasonable Punishment

Miss Letta Friend, a teacher in the Rush school, near Friendsville, was found not guilty of the charge of assault upon a child, the hearing of which was held before Justice E. I. West, Oakland, on Saturday. The charge was preferred by David Humberson, father of Mary Elizabeth Humberson, the child said to have been assaulted.

The trial was moved from Justice Jasper Guard, Friendsville, to Oakland. The plaintiff charged unreasonable and immoderate punishment on the child, claiming that the teacher used a stick causing bruises, welts and abrasions and blood to flow from a wound on the arm.

No marks were found on the arm, according to Justice West. In the testimony it was brought out that Miss Friend had requested the girl to take a paper home to her father, one of the school trustees, to sign, and the girl was alleged to have said that she would do it for a quarter.

It was then brought out that the girl was ordered to take the paper home, but that after the doors were closed, she returned to school and slipped it under the door.

The alleged assault followed the next day, but as no marks were found upon the girl, Justice West pronounced a verdict of not guilty.

SIX MORE CATTLE REACT TO T. B. TEST THIS WEEK

Total Is Now Only 16 Reactors In 2,671 Tests Made.

Only six more cattle have reacted to the tuberculin test in the 621 tested during the past week in Garrett county, according to records at the office of the county agent. The total number of cattle having been subjected to this test is now 2,671, with only 16 reactors.

"This record is still the lowest in the entire State of Maryland," said Mr. McGlone, the county agent.

The two veterinarians of the Department of Agriculture who have the work in hand are still engaged in Election District No. 6, in the vicinity of Hoyes and Sang Run.

Milk Production Increased

The State testing of herds for tubercular cattle and the subsequent elimination of poor stock has increased the average production of milk more than fifty per cent on many of the farms, according to estimates made by dairy interests on the Eastern shore.

The increased production has been accomplished in many cases with very much smaller herds than were formerly maintained. At the same time the average butterfat content has been increased about one per cent.

Cost Is Reduced.

It is pointed out in the estimate that the increased production has been accompanied, in many cases, with a lower annual maintenance cost per cow than usually prevails among untested herds. With the increasing activity of the State in testing cattle, many milk stations in Maryland have begun refusing milk from farmers who have been offered an opportunity for testing their herds and have not availed themselves of it.

PROGRAM TOMORROW TO TERMINATE HEALTH WEEK

Three-Reel Film To Be Shown and Addresses Made Concerning Orthopedic Work Here

The program to be carried out at the Maryland Theatre tomorrow afternoon at which time three addresses will be made and a three-reel picture, "An Equal Chance," will be shown, will bring to a close Garrett County Health Week, which began on Monday morning with a welfare clinic for children and continued throughout the other days of the week with a tuberculosis clinic, pre-school clinic and orthopedic clinic today.

The three-reel film was procured for the purpose of showing the work of the Shriners' Hospitals for crippled children and was obtained through the efforts of Mr. Franklin E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Schools in this county.

A number of the best known movie stars of Hollywood cooperated in the production of the picture. The Shriner is played by Chappell Dossett, who depicted the part of the "shanghaied parson" in The Blood Ship. The crippled boy is played by Phillippe DeLacy, one of the best known boy stars who has won success in Beau Geste, The Magic Garden, Don Juan and other plays. Dorothy Cummings is the mother whose characterization of the Madonna in Cecil de Mille's The King of Kings, is one of the great triumphs of the screen.

The little girl sweetheart is played by Joyce Coad, known as the million dollar baby and recently chosen by D. W. Griffith for a leading part in his new film, Drums of Love. Marc MacDermott and Frank Hagney also take part.

Dr. W. E. Gattens, Dr. H. W. McComas and Dr. George Bennett will give short talks at the afternoon meeting, which will be free of charge and everybody is invited to attend, according to Miss King, County Health Nurse. The film will be repated at the evening showing of pictures at the Maryland and will be included in the usual picture program.

DR. ROBERT H. RILEY IS APPOINTED HEALTH HEAD

Former Resident of Cumberland Succeeds Dr. Fulton, Resigned

Governor Ritchie on Saturday last announced the resignation of Dr. John S. Fulton as the director of the State Department of Health, and the appointment of Dr. Robert H. Riley, assistant director, to succeed him.

Dr. Fulton, who has been connected with the department since 1896, will continue to serve in an advisory capacity. A resolution of the State Board recommended the appointment of Dr. Riley.

Seeks to Benefit Counties

Dr. Riley said he seeks to establish full time health offices for every county in the State.

Dr. Riley is well known in Oakland and Garrett county, having been stationed in Cumberland for several years as deputy state health officer for Garrett and Allegany counties. He devoted much of his time to the study of communicable diseases and when going to Baltimore he received the appointment to the Bureau of Communicable Diseases, which he headed, while engaged in this section of the State.

It Wasn't "After You, My Dear Alfonse," In This Case

As a result of a clash over the order of precedence in the formation of a Memorial Day parade at Meyersdale, Pa., yesterday, two Memorial Day services were held in that town.

The Sons of Veterans and the Legion could not agree as to which organization should follow the G. A. R., and as a result the Legionaires had their parade and Memorial Day services in the Union cemetery yesterday morning and the G. A. R. Sons of Veterans and the Spanish-American War veterans had a service and parade yesterday afternoon. It is said that conferences between the contenders were useless.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Mrs. H. C. Fowler, who spent the winter months at a point in West Virginia with friends, has returned to her home on Deer Park Avenue.

Mr. Carl Richards and family, of Cumberland, have also returned to their summer home in the Park.

Miss Octavia Hicks is opening the Deaconess' Rest Home for the summer. The property has been much improved both inside and outside and will afford a comfortable, inviting home for all the deaconesses and others who usually stay in the building during certain periods of the year.

The new book store and refreshment stand, which has been combined into one building, will soon be completed, which will add much to the beauty of the public grounds and especially so with the removal of the old picket fence which enclosed it during the many years the property has been used as a public meeting place.

Several applications have recently been received from parties at a distance who are desirous of coming here for the summer months.

Mrs. Yoder and her family have arrived from their home in Pittsburgh.

A party of botanists from Washington, D. C., is here for a stay of several days. They have been quite busy scouring the woods and hills for new plants native to this section and have been somewhat successful in finding some that have escaped the eye of botanists other than local specialists in that line.

Years of Service in Model T Fords

THE Model T Ford is still a great car. It led the motor industry for twenty years and it is used today by more people than any other automobile. More than eight million Model T Fords are in active service in city, town and country, and many of them can be driven for two, three and five years and even longer at very small up-keep expense.

The cost of Model T parts and of necessary labor is unusually low because of established Ford policies.

New fenders, for instance, cost from $3.50 to $5 each, with a labor charge of $1 to $2.50. Tuning up the motor and replacing commutator case, brush and vibrator points costs only $1, with a small charge for material. Brake shoes can be installed and emergency brakes equalized for a labor charge of only $1.25. A labor charge of $4 to $5 will cover the overhauling of the front axle, rebushing springs and spring perches, and straightening, aligning and adjusting wheels.

The labor charge for overhauling the average rear axle runs from $5.75 to $7. Grinding valves and cleaning carbon can be done for $3 to $4.

A set of four new pistons costs only $7. For a labor charge of $20 to $25 you can have your motor and transmission completely overhauled. Parts are extra.

All of these prices are approximate, of course, because the cost of materials needed will depend on the condition of each car. They show, however, the low cost of putting the Model T Ford in shape for thousands of miles of additional service.

See the nearest Ford dealer, therefore, and have him estimate on the cost of re-conditioning your Model T Ford. He will tell you, in advance, exactly how much the complete job will cost.

IN HER FLUFFY BLUE FROCK

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

SHE took it off the hanger and stood looking at it ruefully. It seemed fresh and if she didn't sit down much would remain so. Once pressed, georgette creases again quickly. It was a fluffy, soft thing of a lovely shade of blue, but it was old—a year old. Not that she minded wearing an old dress; she was not one of those girls who was constantly having new things. She remembered that this blue dress had made mother and her pinch quite dreadfully for a short time, but she had to have something nice enough to wear when Curt Averil asked her to go with him to some one of the many gay affairs of their set.

Curt had shot into Roseville like a meteor. A dozen girls had tried for his attention, but he had singled out Patsy Barber, and Patsy had been glad because she had liked him on the instant. In no time at all they were going together everywhere, and Roseville was gay that winter partly on his account, partly on account of the young Warrens recently married. Then just as everybody was looking for their engagement Curt's employers had transferred him to a near-by city. And there he was thrown with Birdella Wiggins, of whom he had only good-naturedly taken notice while he was in Roseville. Birdella was the richest girl in Roseville, and in the city where money counted more she was a person of some importance. There, too, she had a better chance to show off her wonderful frocks and inherited jewelry.

Patsy had known so well that was going to happen when Birdella wrote that she was seeing Curt nearly every day, and other people had known too. But she acted as if she did not care; she could do that much. But all the time she was caring until her heart was breaking to pieces.

Now Birdella was back in Roseville staying at Jessie Warren's. There was a great deal of secrecy about it, but Patsy knew what it all meant. This dinner and dance Jessie was giving tonight at which Curt was to be present—well, she wished she might die before the time came to go, but as she hadn't died she would have to go. Death was the only thing that could excuse her. Anything short of it would be looked upon as sour grapes.

She put on the blue dress, fastened it and looked at herself in the glass. She was too pale, and though she hated rouge she applied it vigorously until her cheeks glowed like roses.

"My eyes will be bright enough," she thought. "Well! They shan't see what I am going through. I'll fool them all—Jessie and Birdella and—and Curt."

She went down stairs and Mrs. Barber looked at her daughter critically.

"You have an astonishing finish, dear—but it is becoming."

"It came out of the little gilt box, mother," Patsy laughed. Just as well to begin to practice.

Emily Harris came for her and they walked down the street to the Warren house, which blazed with lights.

"I am awfully glad to be in on this," Emily said. "You know Birdella never liked me a lot. And neither does Jessie. But they've raked in everybody."

"Even me," and Patsy gave that crystal tinkle laughter.

They went in and became one with the great festivity. Birdella was in lavender and looked better than she had ever been known to look before. Birdella was a blonde—an aluminum blonde as opposed to the golden type as Jack Franklin had said. Everywhere there were lights, flowers, color and a few strange people, but Patsy only saw one thing. That was Curt Averil. Yes, she saw something more, the triumph that blazed in Birdella's pink cheeks.

Dinner was a marvelous affair, but Patsy was only dimly conscious that she had tasted food, and sipped from her goblet and crumbled her roll. She had Bert Westcott beside her and he was in his most humorous mood; he was warranted to make a frozen face smile, and she was glad, because it made it a little easier for her to laugh. Opposite sat Curt watching her. Yes, he did watch her, wondering how she was taking it, probably. Well, she would show him that she didn't mind at all.

Afterward they danced in the parlor which had been cleared for action. The Warren's house was large. Curt danced first with Jessie, next with Birdella. Then he came to Patsy, but Patsy had seen him in time. Luckily at that instant John Endicott asked her and she moved away with him, laughing back at Curt.

She danced twice with John. Feverishly she saw that she must dance with Curt before she was through or somebody would wonder. And she did. Birdella was dancing with a Mr. Johnston, a quiet man who seemed a little old for that crowd.

"This seems like old times," Curt said as they glided into the next room.

"Yes. Lovely flowers, aren't they?" murmured Patsy.

"Look up at me, Patsy," Curt said in a strange voice. It took all her courage, but she did look up, straight into his steel-colored eyes. She had always thought he had the most wonderful gaze. "Do you care, Patsy?" he whispered.

"I'm glad for you. Money helps such a lot," she answered.

There was silence.

"Of course," Curt said. "It is nice to have money—"

The music stopped. She disengaged herself from his arms and they stood chatting in the face of the whole room. She was afraid, however, that her wildly tying heart made every fiber of her blue dress stir.

It was over at last. Jessie sent her home in the sedan along with others; the car as full as it could be packed of laughing, tired, excited girls.

"Birdella won't say a word," Emily Harris remarked. "And Jess won't either. I don't know who she's going to marry.

"Oh, it's Curt, of course," yawned Elsie Moe. "We'll all know tomorrow—at Helen Hawkin's luncheon. It will be announced then. What do you think, Patsy?"

Patsy smiled. "Haven't an idea."

She didn't sleep until dawn and then her mother left her undisturbed until just time to bathe and dress for the luncheon.

Emily Harris came after her again. "I got up early," she said. "I had to take dad to the station. Curt was there—going away. But he's coming back next week. He wanted me to give you this." She passed a note to Patsy.

Patsy read it, with cheeks coldly white. She crushed the paper in her hand, and flung it away. "Dear Patsy," he had scribbled. "Sorry not to see you again. Fine time last night. I liked you in that blue dress. Take good care of it and of yourself. C. A."

Patsy sat down at the lovely luncheon table as in a dream. Birdella was wearing orchids and on her left hand blazed a great emerald. The centerpiece was of bride roses. There were little crystal baskets full of bonbons and ribbons and tiny enveiopes at each place. Patsy knew what the envelope contained. Her fingers trembled as she opened hers and drew out two visiting cards. One was Birdella's. The other was—Mr. Johnston's.

Out of the whirl of laughter and good wishes Birdella spoke distinctly:

"I suppose Patsy will be the next one. At least that is what I should infer from what I've seen," she said.

As for Patsy she could only sit there wondering—wondering if she could sew up the rent in her fluffy blue frock and press it again so it would be presentable when Curt came!

Simple Dishes Best for Small Children

Parents should give particular attention to the early formation in their children of preferences for simple, wholesome food. Small children will derive lifelong benefits when taught to eat simple foods. Only suitable, wholesome foods should be prepared and they should be served without comment.

Discipline is needed to build up serviceable habits as well as in modifying undesirable ones. The mother must regulate the child's food habits just as she would correct any shortcoming. Most of all the preschool child desires to have attention. Scolding for not eating his vegetables in many cases gives him almost as much pleasure as would praise. Success should be praised, but failure ignored, except, perhaps, by withholding some item which he likes as dessert.

If a child persistently refuses to eat wholesome food, try serving it in disguise in small portions. Be sure that it is tastily prepared and presented so as to appeal to his esthetic sensibilities.—Ethel Somers in Liberty.

Real Ingenuity

Another interesting incident connected with banking, concerns the dispute between Lord Darlington and Jonathan Backhouse. By collecting notes of Messrs. Jonathan Backhouse & Company, with the intention of presenting them for payment at one time, Lord Darlington hoped to cause the bank to suspend payments. Jonathan Backhouse was warned of the possibility and drove post haste to London to obtain supplies of gold. On the return journey one of the wheels of the carriage broke down. To avoid delay he balanced the coach on three wheels by placing all the gold on one side of the vehicle. In this manner he succeeded in reaching Darlington in time to "save the bank."—London Mail.

Autumn Rain

At present, the drops come trickling down the stubble while we lie drenched on a bed of withered wild oats by the side of a bushy hill, and the gathering in of the clouds, and then the regular dripping of twigs and leaves the country over, enhance the sease of inward comfort and sociableness. The birds draw closer and are more familiar under the thick foliage, seemingly composing upon their roosts against the sunshine. What were the amusements of the drawing room and the library in comparison, if we had them here? We should still sing as of old.—Henry D. Thoreau.

"An artist's model arrived."

"Well?"

Had a Taste for Travel

By CYNTHIA BLAIR

(Copyright.)

"IT JUST isn't fair!" Irma Haines cried disgustedly, tossing down the newspaper which she had been reading, and turning to her sister. "Georgia Lawton and her cousin have just everything; they're going to Europe now! And you and I have to stay right here in this poky little old town, and never go anywhere or see anything."

"But Irma—" her sister began, then stopped abruptly. Hildegarde instead of talking, went up to her own room, and took out of her drawer a pile of booklets and folders with bright-colored covers. Europe, British Columbia, India, China, Japan—their names fairly shone forth from the pages.

She sat now, looking them over, picturing just what she would do if she had the money. It was hard to decide between the Canadian Rockies and a trip to New Orleans for the Mardi Gras, between a journey round the world and six months of delightful roaming about Europe. It wasn't wasted time, that day dreaming, for after a few moments of it Hildegarde put on her hat and coat and hurried briskly down to the corner grocery.

She came back laden with packages—brown sugar and nutmeats and cinnamon.

"What did you buy all those things for?" demanded Irma, curiously, following her into the kitchen. "We had them all."

"Yes, I know, but I'm going into business," Hildegarde answered, "and I want to use my own money, what I have of it. I'm going to make some candy and see if I can't sell it."

"Sell candy—with such a lot of regular store candy on sale!" she exclaimed. "Why, who's going to buy what you make?"

"I don't know who's going to buy it," replied Hildegarde serenely as she tied on a big apron. "That's what I'm going to find out."

She made her candy carefully, and two hours later the kitchen table was covered with plates on which it was placed.

When it was quite hard she tied up small packages of it, in different sized boxes made of bright-colored cardboard, and fastened with colored tape. Then she went to the biggest hotel in town, and asked if she might put it on sale there. She opened one box and showed the manager the candy.

"Looks good," he commented. "I've been wishing there was somewhere in this town that I could get fresh home made candy. I'll buy this box for a starter."

He went out to the candy counter with her and introduced her to the girl who was in charge. Hildegarde left the candy and went home, hardly daring to hope that all the candy would sell, hardly able to keep from planning what she would do if she found a regular market for it.

She went to the hotel again two days later. The candy was gone.

Hildegarde built up her market slowly, but surely. She added other kinds of candy to the brown sugar goodies she had made at first, and attempted little novelties.

Irma continued to scoff.

"Five dollars profit," she said, at the end of the first week, when Hildegarde stopped at the bank to open a savings account. "Why, that's hardly anything."

Business wasn't always good; sometimes the candy wasn't sold promptly enough and she had to take back one or two boxes that got stale; one of the big candy companies put out a new brand, and swamped her for awhile. But she had an inspiration and made some popcorn balls that sold so fast that the girl at the hotel candy counter telephoned her and asked if she wouldn't bring in some more at once.

Irma stopped making fun of her, when Hildegarde had been in business for nearly two months.

"You'll be making real money soon," she said. "How'd you happen to think of this, in the first place?"

The manager of the hotel asked Hildegarde that same question the next day. His office was just across the corridor from the candy counter and he almost always happened to stroll out when Hildegarde delivered her wares.

"I wanted to make some money, a lot of money," she told him, "and I just took the first thing I saw. That's everything in life, I guess—seeing what's right before you."

It was not long afterward that one of the business men in town offered to back her if she wanted to have a shop of her own.

"You've built up a remarkably good business," he told her—that was after she had begun selling her candy in a number of places besides the hotel "And I think there's money in this for both of us. We'll advertise in the magazines and sell your candy by mail."

Hildegarde was thrilled at the idea. She and the manager of the hotel had become very good friends by that time, and she went to him for advice.

"Don't do it, Hildegarde," he urged. "I've taken advice from you—I want what's right before me. Hildegarde, won't you marry me instead of going into business?"

Hildegarde said she would. And on the day that they started for Paris on their honeymoon she gave him the steamship booklets that had led to their meeting each other.

GRANTSVILLE.

By Clyde Miller.

Cemetery Improvements.

Through the cooperation of the general public with the efforts of the local cemetery committee, the Grantsville burying ground is in better condition than it has been for many a year. Most of the sunken graves, which have not had attention for a number of years, have been filled and sodded or seeded, rubbish has been collected and disposed of, grass and weeds has been cut and burned, shrubbery planted in advantageous places to enhance the beauty of the grounds generally and this, together with the repairing of the road recently, makes a very marked difference and shows that the silent city on the hill has not been forgotten. The cemetery committee reports splendid cooperation on the part of all, including many persons living in other sections of the country but who have loved ones at rest here, and is deeply grateful for the help rendered to all who so generously gave it.

Preliminary Track Meet.

The preliminary athletic meet was held at the Grantsville school grounds on Friday of last week. Regardless of the very disagreeable weather, the following schools participated in the athletics or exhibits: Mars Hill, Finzel, Caton, Johnson, Long Stretch, Engle, Merrill, Strawberry Hill and the local school, Grantsville.

A very nice exhibit of industrial art was shown. The judges for the exhibition were Miss Eva Falkenstein, Miss Mary Selby and Miss Bannatyne. The schools receiving the highest honors were Engle, first; Mars Hill, second.

The high school girls played the Oldtown volleyball team and won by the score of 18-5.

The events won by the various schools were as follows:

Girls Dodge Ball—Mars Hill, 1; Grantsville, 2.

Mixed Dodge Ball—Mars Hill, 1; Grantsville, 2.

Boys Dodge Ball—Grantsville, 1; Finzel, 2.

Flag Relay—Grantsville, 1; Finzel, 2.

Single Entrant Events—50 yard dash, W. Crowe, 1; W. Clark, 2, of Finzel. 60 yard dash, N. Werner, 1, Finzel; Paul Folk, 2, Grantsville. 70 yard dash, W. Crowe, 1; F. Crowe, 2, Finzel. 80 yard dash, C. Werner, Finzel. Standing broad jump, N. Werner, Finzel, 1; Paul Folk, Grantsville, 2.

Points recorded were, Finzel, 60, Grantsville, 50; Mars Hill, 40.

Prizes were donated for the winners in each contest by the following business places: First State Bank, First National Bank, Motor Service Company, American Restaurant, J. J. Bender, Gilead Broadwater & Son, G. W. Diefenbach, Keller Drug Store, C. C. Nathan, J. E. Ford.

The winners in these contests will participate in the annual track meet to be held in Oakland on Thursday, May 31. A large number of boys and girls are expected to attend from the Grantsville high and grammar school.

Baseball Games.

The Grantsville baseball team went to Shaw Mines on Saturday and won the game by the score of 5-2. Sunday afternoon, Ohio Pyle, Pa., played here and the local team won by 6-3. A very large crowd attended the game on Sunday. The schedule for this week is: May 30, at Confluence; June 3, Friendsville at Grantsville.

Memorial Day Program.

The Earl H. Opel Post, American Legion, of Salisbury, Pa., will meet the various Sunday schools Wednesday morning at the school building. They will be accompanied by the Salisbury band and will march to the cemetery where a memorial service will be held at the graves of the deceased soldiers.

Church Services.

Reformed, Sunday school at 9:30, with church services at 10:30 a. m. Lutheran, Sunday school at 1:15, and worship at 2:30 p. m. Catholic, Mass at 10:00 a. m.; benediction at 7:30 p. m. Methodist, Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.

Personal Mention.

Mr. Gilead Broadwater was in Oakland last Friday consulting his son, Dr. N. I. Broadwater.

Mrs. Tillie Burrow, who has been a patient at the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, returned to her home here one day last week.

Miss Mary Callahan, of Dennison, Ohio, spent several days here last week with Miss Mary Dorsey.

Mrs. Nettie Meyers and grandson Billy, of Cumberland, and Mrs. Gertrude Conner, of Frostburg, spent Sunday with Miss Gertrude Hone in Grantsville.

Mr. Harold Younkin, Akron, Ohio, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Younkin, in Grantsville.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Getty, of Cumberland, are spending this week with friends in Grantsville. They recently returned from a visit to the Pacific Coast.

D. W. Dorsey, J. F. Fahey, Harry Durst, Frank Getty and Charles Stanton motored to Toledo, Ohio, and returned on Friday with several new Whippet automobiles.

County Commissioner and Mrs. Harvey Gortner were in Oakland last Saturday.

It is quite noticeable that traffic over the National Highway is much lighter this year than it has been for some years past. Whether this is due to th epooning of other through routes further north or to some other cause cannot be determined, but there is far less traffic through here.

FAVORITE SONS.

A little late, perhaps, to affect the result at Houston, but standing firmly for personal liberty, states' rights and their favorite son, Maryland Democrats have selected their delegates to the national convention and instructed them to vote as a unit for Governor Albert C. Ritchie.

The action was not unexpected. Governor Ritchie admitted on his appearance before the senate committee that is ascertaining the views of candidates on the Einstein theory and other subjects closely related to preconventions campaign expenditures, that he had understood from his friends that he was a favorite son. That fact is now fully established and means much. It means Ritchie headquarters will be opened at Houston, probably in a parlor of the Rice hotel, and identified by a large and handsome lithograph of the governor (and none will be handsomer, because Mr. Ritchie lithographs exceedingly well) displayed on an easel outside the door. Inside there will be a desk with vases of flowers on it. Behind the desk will be an affable and smiling gentleman wholly unable to restrain a marked manifestation of his pleasure at meeting you. He will shake your hand and tell you so. He will also hand you, from a pile in the corner, a folder with Mr. Ritchie's picture on the outside and considerable printed information about him on the inside.

There will be other gentlemen present wearing a busy air, but with no visible occupation, who will be equally pleased to see you, nor will their pleasure be pretense, because the chances are they will have been longing for something to do and somebody to talk to. There will be ladies present, too, for no headquarters staff can be complete without them, says the Kansas City Star. They will also have literature to dispense, and not the least charming of them will have a box of buttons,and she will pin one of them on your manly chest. You will tell her you do not wear candidates' buttons on your coat as a rule, but this will be an occasion where you will break the rule. You will wear it for her if not for Governor Ritchie.

The busy gentlemen with nothing to do will then unfold to you, confidentially, the Ritchie strategy. It is, they will explain, to work quietly, make no claims, attack no other candidates and rely steadily on the logic of the situation. When the smoke clears and all other candidates have had their trials of strength, the delegates will begin to ask themselves if, after all, the question is not, who can be elected? Who, they will ask themselves, stands most conspicuously for the sound Jeffersonian doctrine of personal liberty and states' rights? Echo can return but one answer, and that answer will be Ritchie.

There will be other favorite son headquarters, completely staffed and lithographed, and with a strategy as convincing. All will be busy and optimistic in the days preceding the balloting. All will continue optimistic until the conclusion of the first ballot. That first ballot will mark their big moment and the emotions of that moment will repay them for all their work and their not inconsiderable expense.

After the initial ballots they will not feel quite so good and may begin to doubt their strategy, but even the final result will not entirely convince them that but for an uncalculated deviation from the logic of the situation here and there they would have made history.

SEASONAL SICKNESS

The first four months of 1928 went down in history in the counties of the State of Maryland, with a less favorable record, so far as the occurrence of communicable diseases was concerned, than the corresponding period for 1927 had, but with a much better record than that of the same months in 1926. The reports of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases of the state department of health show that 7289 cases were reported during January, February, March and April of the current year; 6646 during the corresponding period of 1927 and 12,798 during the first four months of 1926.

Commenting on these figures, Dr. R. H. Riley, assistant director of the State department of health, said: "The increase during the current year and the flare-up in 1926 were due very largely to the prevalence of measles and of pneumonia--which often follows measles. Out of the 7289 cases of communicable diseases reported during the first four months, this year, measles led with 2570 cases; and pneumonia came next with 995 cases, these two diseases being responsible for nearly half of the sickness registered during that time. Scarlet fever was third with 631 cases and tuberculosis fourth with 502 cases. Other diseases were reported as follows: chicken pox 453 cases; influenza 369; mumps 262; diphtheria 196; whooping cough 146; German measles 127; typhoid fever 70; erysipelas 69; septic sore throat 41; smallpox 7; infantile paralysis 6 cases.

"In 1927, during the same period, with a total of 6646 cases of communicable diseases reported, influenza led with 1251 cases; pneumonia came the next with 1176 cases; scarlet fever was third with 797 cases and whooping cough came next with 550 cases. During the first four months of 1926 measles was widely prevalent, 5,273 cases being reported. Influenza came next with 2,731 cases, and pneumonia was third with 1,820 cases.

"Certain months in each season are likely to be more favorable than some others, depending very often on the weather conditions. The most favorable month this season was January with a record of 1,397 cases of communicable sickness reported. The least favorable was March with 2,270 cases. April had the best score in 1927 with 1,304 cases, and March the least favorable with 2,205 cases."

Mr. E. W. Kelso, Touring the West, Continues His Descriptive Articles Written In That Part of the Country for the Readers of The Republican.

To the Editor of The Republican.

I left San Diego after a stay of two weeks for Los Angeles, Cal., on April 19, and on this route orange and olive groves of many acres and hundreds of acres of walnut groves in the vicinity of Eanta Anna, were noticed. The trees ranged in four to ten inches in diameter with the branches about four feet from the ground, and growing out and up similar to an apple tree. Here in Santa Anna there are two large walnut packing houses.

Los Angeles claims a population of more than a million and April 26th was a gala day in Los Angeles when the 28-story city hall, costing $5,000,000 was dedicated. The building is five hundred feet long and 250 feet wide.

The marble entering into its construction was contributed from 29 States of the Union and from 15 foreign countries. Space for 543 automobiles has been provided in the basement of the structure.

According to a newspaper statement there were 32,000 persons in the parade which was viewed by half a million people. At 7:00 p. m., President Coolidge pressed a button in his office at the White House which immediately lighted the beason on top of the City Hall.

Los Angeles has an immense system of electric car lines, leading many miles in every direction and leaving terminals every few minutes. In the stations there are gates arranged similar to those in railway stations with men at the gates to inspect tickets to ascertain if you take the car indicated.

Long Beach, thirty miles distant, is reached in fifty minutes. I was surprised to find Long Beach such a busy hustling city, said to contain 140,000 people. Here many persons bathe in the surf of the Pacific Ocean. The city has a very large park with shade trees and seats sufficient for all; also tennis courts and places for quoits.

May 4th the mercury registered 93 but it was pleasant here in the Park, having the breeze from the Pacific Ocean blowing gently. The weather as a whole has been delightful with no fog or rain.

On the way to Long Beach I noticed an immense number of oil derricks and large oil tanks and upon inquiry I was informed that the depth of the wells averaged six thousand feet and when the oil becomes slack in the wells they are drilled to an average depth of from seven to eight thousand feet, thus obtaining a stronger flow of oil. I have also noted that in other sections of California the oil interests are tremendous.

In my opinion, so far as I can judge, the real estate business takes the lead, especially noting the large number of people thus engaged.

Most anytime when walking along the streets one may see busses with flaming banners announcing free rides to certain sub-divisions with free dinners or lunches at the end of the trip. There are solicitors who present free tickets for the trip and quite a number of women are engaged in soliciting.

One woman solicitor confided in me that she received one dollar from the company for which she worked for each person she interested in going to the suh-divisions, whether they made a purchase or not. Of course I acquiesced in her merited request, and this proved a very interesting trip, as it covered the beautiful San Benardion Valley, which is dotted with orange and apricot groves. The valley is 14 miles wide and our destination was 26 miles distant. Here the land company had 1000 acres planted in 7-year-old orange groves, which had been divided into town lots. It was a very good proposition for those who desired to buy. This grove has two Sunkist packing houses, which also serves other groves.

Further on the north side of the valley are 2000 acres of olive groves with two packing houses for the olives and near the foot of the mountain the government has a two million dollar hospital for crippled soldiers.

I was on a trip to Burbank, a town claiming to have 20,000 population, and located fifteen miles distant from Los Angeles. I was informed that Jeffries, the ex-pugilist, had a ranche on the outskirts of Burbank, and prompted by curiosity I walked to his ranche to learn of his success in farming. I noticed a man near the Jeffries home doing some work and he informed me he was the tenant, but did not know whether Jeffries was in the house or not. He also said that Jeffries was in the dairy business for several years but had given that up and had sub-divided his 107 acres of land into town lots with the exception of seven acres which contained the buildings. He informed me that the ex-champion was 53 years old and was in good health.

I then called at the house and Mrs. Jeffries told me that her husband was away from home. She is a woman of medium size and age with a pleasing appearance and is courteous and sociable. She told me that she and her husband had lived here for sixteen years. They have a nice bungalow and a beautiful yard with shrubbery and verious kinds of lovely flowers.

I have accepted on several occasions the generous offers of the sub-division agents, as I did not wish to be termed an ingrate, and of course it gave me an opportunity to see much of the surrounding country, and on those trips I have seen the immense acreage in various fruit groves.

The apricot trees are very full of fruit and about the size of robins' eggs at this time.

I have tarried very little in the city spending the nights only and until about 9:00 a. m., as a stay in any city has much of the sameness.

Not all my roustabouting over the country has been borne by the generosity of other persons, but I made use of company busses and electric railways to a considerable extent, all of them charging reasonable fares.

In hotels, termed as middle class houses, the rates are more moderate than in small towns.

The electric street car lines afford transportation to the various interesting towns, such as Pasadena, ten miles distant, which is a beautiful city of 80,000 population. In visiting the several towns one will notice at once that they are almost connected with each other by scattered buildings.

Hollywood is a nice town, but the resident section of Beverly Hills, in my opinion, is the most beautiful of all. In Beverly Hills are the homes of most of the film actresses and actors, producers and those standing high (financially) in the business.

About three miles from the postoffice is the temple of Aimee Semple McPherson and Sunday, the 29th of April, I attended both morning and evening service. She spoke without hesitation, in a clear, far-reaching voice. The temple is said to seat five thousand people and it was filled to capacity.

Near the temple is Echo Park, containing eight acres and a beautiful lake. There are seats and tables for those who desire to eat their lunch out in the open. Los Angeles and other towns provide large parks for the use and comfort of visitors.

The Southern California University is a very large, interesting place with several thousand students. The buildings are many in connection with the University. The historical building has many mountings of various animals. Also here is located the agricultural building and the most beautiful is the rose garden, an enclosure of seven acres of various flowers in beds with walks between. The park contains 135 acres, with beautiful walks and shaded with trees and all kinds of shrubbery.

I was much surprised to see so many thousands of acres of level land and the immense acreage not in cultivation, but beckons to the tiller of the soil.

I saw corn from ten inches to three feet high on my way to Long Beach, but the acreage was small.

Compton, a small town 15 miles south of Los Angeles, had a rabbit show this week and it was surprising to see so many different breeds. Some large black, red, blue, white and a few of the gray, similar to the Garrett county rabbits. I judge there were a thousand rabbits on exhibition. The rabbit fur Industry of Los Angeles county is said to be worth $1,000,000 a year.

Large acreages of barley and oats is harvested, but the crop is cut and raked and shocked the same as hay is harvested in Maryland.

So much has come under my observation that I can only give a short sketch.

I have enjoyed California sunshine, but it surely has given me the tan. Will go to Salt Lake City in a few days.

THE MINISTRY OF MEMORY

Deuteronomy 24:18—Thou shalt remember!

Did you ever stop to think that there would be no Christian religion and no Christian Church today but for the faculty of memory?

The Master Himself wrote nothing—except upon the sand. His immediate disciples wrote nothing—at the time—about His life and teachings. It was many years after His death before the written gospels were made.

The Master inscribed His parables and teachings, not upon parchment, but upon the hearts of His disciples. And by means of these living records they were kept perhaps twenty or thirty years before the first written narrative came into existence. During that interval it was only in the memories of men that the Glad Tidings lived.

This was possible because the Hebrew people were trained to remember accurately. Their education was largely the education of the memory.

When the first written records were made, it was not because the Christians themselves needed them, but solely for the purpose of carrying the old, old story to new converts in distant lands.

The early Christians kept their Scriptures in their hearts. We keep them in the bookcase or on the parlor table. It is so much easier to keep them there. But, oh, the pity of it! Never before were there so many printed Bibles as we have today; and never so few Bibles written in the souls of men!

We do not know how our souls are impoverished by this failure to store in our memories the treasures of God's Word.

Of course, our memories may be just as full as were those of the early Christians—only full of a different quality of goods. Our memories are often like disordered old garrets, filled with an incalculable amount of valueless junk, littered with crime sheets and scandal pages. In these garret memories all the old family quarrels are stored away. All the meanness, the bitterness, the ugliness of the past are carefully preserved to be brought forward whenever the occasion may demand. And all things are shrouded in the cobwebs of selfishness and unbrotherliness.

A thorough house-cleaning is needed. We must clear away all this contemptible rubbish. We must reform our memories, lest, instead of upholding us in our struggles with temptation, they prove to be millstones about our necks.

We need to store our memories with whatsoever things are true, whatsover things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report.

In a word, we need to store our memories with the treasures of the Scriptures.

The presentation was made at an open session of the lodge at which Mr. Walter W. Dawson presided as toastmaster. Messrs. Markley, Conneway and Sincell were presented,after which Mr. Julius C. Renninger, past Chancellor Commander of the Maryland Grand Lodge, presented the medals in a masterful address and concluded by congratulating the recipients. Rev. Mr. Workman made the response in n very happy manner.

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band rendered several selection in a most commendable way and refreshments were served.

The weekly award, a ham, donated by Miller's Meat Market, was presented to Judson Loar.

Mrs. William Landon, of Mountain Lake Park, was seriously injured on Tuesday afternoon when she slipped and fell upon a cement step, cutting her knee quite badly.

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL STUDENTS VISIT U. OF MD.

Trip Made in Automobiles to the Seat of Learning.

A group of fifty-seven people, composed of thirty-four boys from the Oakland high school department of agriculture, accompanied by Mr. T. C. Bittinger, their instructor, Mr. O. T. Graser, and Mr. Spoerlein and Mr. Welch, each of whom drove a truck; five boys from the Accident school, four from the Friendsville school, accompanied by their instructor, Mr. Carter, and eight boys from the school at Grantsville, accompanied by their instructor, Mr. Bishoff, left Garrett county last Thursday morning, May 24th, for a trip to College Park and the University of Maryland.

With the exception of those from Grantsville, who went directly to College Park, the group traveled via Cumberland, Bedford and the Lincoln Highway to Gettysburg, where they spent nearly two hours in viewing parts of the battlefield. From Gettysburg they turned southward through Emmittsburg, Thurmont, Frederick and Washington, to arrive late that night at College Park. Most of the boys were tired enough to sleep in quarters provided for them in the university gymnasium.

Friday was spent in a sight-seeing tour through parts of the District of Columbia. A guide showed the boys through the Capitol and pointed out interesting parts of that magnificent structure. They visited the chambers occupied by the Congress and saw the Senate in session. They were greatly thrilled when they visited the Washington Monument and viewed the city and its surroundings from the top of that structure. They also visited the Smithsonian Institute, Lincoln Memorial, White House and spent two hours in the zoo at Rock Creek Park.

The University of Maryland set aside Saturday, May 26, as Farmers' Day and had arranged a fitting program consisting of exhibits and demonstrations in the various departments of the college and in addition planned a student livestock show, meeting for the purpose of giving proper recognition to outstanding farmers of the State, inspection of the University grounds, poultry judging contest for boys in vocational agriculture and public speaking contests for boys in vocational agriculture. The last named two events were of special interest to the Garrett county boys, who were spending most of Saturday on the University grounds because the departments of agriculture of Grantsville, Friendsville and Oakland were represented in the poultry judging contest and Oakland and Grantsville were reperesented in the public speaking contest.

In the poultry judging contest, two boys from a school made up a team and were required to judge five birds of the following classes: Rhode Island hens, Rhode Island males. White Leghorn hens, Plymouth Rock hens. The contest resulted as follows: Mt. Airy first. The team was awarded a standard of perfection. Lisbon, Charles and Carroll tied for second place. Individual placing: Gaithersburg boy, who received $10 in gold for first place; second place went to Warren MacMillan with $7.50 in gold, and C. Cissel, of West Friendship was third, receiving $5 in gold. Twenty-six entered the individual contests. Bruce Jenkins, of Friendsville, gained recognition for Garrett county by winning seventh place in the contest.

Professor C. S. Richardson, of the Department of Public Speaking of the University, presided at the public speaking contest for vocational pupils held in connection with the vocational field day. In all, ten boys entered the final contest and spoke for eight minutes on "The Opportunities in the Vocation of Farming." Several exceptionally fine presentations were made and the judges' work was difficult. Awards: David Trundle, Poolesville high school, 1;C. H. Stier, Lisbon high school, 2; J. D. Gardenhour, Smithsburg high school, 3. The prizes were $10, $7.50 and $5 in gold.

Even though both contests were novel experiences, there was much interest manifested in them. It is the unanimous opinion of students and teachers that the public speaking and poultry judging contests are a very important addition to the University field day program.

The group left the University on Sunday morning to begin their journey homeward, each individual feeling that he was the wiser for having gone and that, too, he had enjoyed a pleasant visit to the University of Maryland.

Lesson for June 3

JESUS FACING BETRAYAL AND DEATH

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:1-42.

GOLDEN TEXT—Not what I will, but what Thou wilt.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Last Supper With His Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Last Supper With His Disciples.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty in Times of Testing.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—"The Fellowship of His Sufferings."

I. Judas' Bargain With the Chief Priests (vv. 10, 11).

This black crime was committed immediately following the beautiful act of devotion by Mary (John 12:1). The motive actuating Judas was avarice.

II. The Last Passover (vv. 12-25).

1. The preparation (vv. 12-16).

In reply to the disciples' inquiry as to where they should prepare the Passover for Him, Jesus told them to go into the city where they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water, whom they should follow. In the house to which they were thus led would be found a guest chamber, a large upper room where they could make ready the Passover.

2. The betrayal announced (vv. 17-21).

The betrayal was to be by one of the disciples who was eating with Jesus. This betrayal had been predicted.

3. The sacrament of the bread and cup.

These were symbols of His broken body and shed blood by which He had made atonement for man's sins.

III. The Cowardice of the Disciples Foretold (vv. 26-31).

In spite of their cowardly turning from the Savior, He assured them that after His resurrection He would go before them into Galilee. Peter protested against such an act of disloyalty by the disciples and assured the Lord that though all the rest would forsake Him, yet he would not. The Lord showed him how little he knew, even about his best resolve, telling him that on that very night he would deny Him thrice.

IV. The Agony in Gethsemane (vv. 32-42).

1. Jesus Christ's suffering (vv. 32-34).

(1) The place (v. 32).

The Garden of Gethsemane, an enclosure containing olive and fig trees, beyond Kidron, about three-fourths of a mile from Jerusalem. Gethsemane means olive trees. Edersheim says, "It is an emblem of trial, distress and agony."

(2) His companions (v. 33).

He took with Him the eleven disciples that they might share, so far as possible, His sorrow with Him.

(3) His great sorrow (v. 34).

This is the same as the "cup" in verse 36. It was not primarily the prospect of physical suffering that was crushing him; it was His suffering as the shbearer—the sensations of His pure soul coming into contact with the awful sin and guilt of the world.

2. Jesus Christ praying (vv. 35-42).

(1) The first prayer (vv. 35-38).

a. His posture (v. 35).

He fell on His face to the ground.

b. His petition (v. 36).

"Take away this cup from me." By the cup is meant His death on the cross. It was most grievous to Him to face this shame, but He pressed on, knowing that for this cause He had come into the world (John 12:27, 28, cf. Heb. 2:14). He prayed that the hour might pass from Him. The burden was so great that it seemed His life would be crushed out. His prayer was heard (Heb. 5:7).

c. His resignation (v. 36).

He knew that His death on the cross was the will of God, the Father, for He was the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.

d. The disciples rebuked (v. 37).

He singled out Peter, since he had been the most conspicuous in proclaiming his loyalty (John 13:38).

e. Exhortation to the disciples (v. 38).

Watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation.

(2) The second prayer (vv. 39, 40).

He withdrew the second time from His disciples and uttered the same words in prayer. This was not vain repetition, but repeated request.

(3) The third prayer (vv. 41, 42).

He uttered the same words in his third prayer (Matt. 26:44). He told the disciples to sleep on and take their rest as the hour had now come for His betrayal.

Jesus Talking With You

There are times when a strange warmth takes possession of our hearts as we pore over the pages of the Bible. What does it mean? Simply this: Jesus is talking with you. And oftentimes He does it "by the way." —R. A. Torrey.

Great Peace

A compromise—half obedience, half rebellion—is never found to be the way of peace. "Great peace have they who love Thy law."—J. H. Jowett.

The Wires Were Crossed

By JOHN SAUNDERS

(Copyright.)

LILLIAN JAFFREYS came out of the gates which gave entrance to the grounds surrounding her father's country house and waved her hand at Tom Collingwood as he went by in his flivver. Lillian was dressed as became the daughter of a "magnate." She smiled a bewitching, careless smile at Tom as she waved her little hand in his direction. But her whole expression changed when the flivver had passed. A perplexed look wrinkled her brow and her eyes took on a pensive gaze.

The young man to whom she had waved had answered her greeting with a polite, but formal, bow. And withal there had been something like defiance in his look and manner as if he said: "No, I thank you; once bitten, twice shy. All your pretty ways cannot lure me back again. I am quite satisfied to have learned my lesson." And Lillian felt it; felt it as distinctly as if she had heard him say it in so many words.

For there was no denying that Lillian had given every encouragement to Tom—and had then thrown him over. Yes, Lillian had done all this and now she was sorry for it. She tried to tell herself that there was no use crying over spilt milk; but even the venerable saying did not seem to fill the bill. What she wanted out of the past was not a proverb but Tom.

It was not because her parents had objected to her marrying Tom that Lillian had rejected him. He was not wealthy, to be sure, but he came of a good family, was an exemplary and rising young man holding down a responsible job. Mr. and Mrs. Jaffreys desired only that their daughter should be happy in her marriage and considered that Tom was the very one to make her happy. But when they found that Lillian had rejected him they took it for granted that she knew best, and let it go at that.

If there had been a little opposition to their marrying, had their love-making not run along in such quiet lines, so much of taking everything for granted, it is likely that Lillian would have uttered a "Yes" as emphatic as her "No" when Tom asked her to be his wife. It is always the things around the corner that interest us most, the things which are constantly in our sight lose their interest after a while.

And so it had been with Lillian as regarded Tom. But now that he was decidedly "around the corner," as far as she was concerned, she found that she wanted him back more than anything else in all this world.

When she first realized this she had thought: "Oh, well; he is in love with me and all I have got to do is just to show him that I really did not mean it when I said 'No.' I can whistle him back all right." But now she was beginning to realize that Tom could not be whistled back as easily as she had thought. Her heart sank as the thought occurred to her that perhaps he could not be whistled back at all."

That day when she had strolled out of her father's gates to see Tom pass, and had seen her sweetest smile answered by him in that unresponsive manner, Lillian, after a fit of deep despondency, resolved upon drastic measures. She would write a letter to Tom in which she would acknowledge her mistake, tell him how much she really loved him, beg his pardon for her flighty conduct and offer him a "Yes" if he would take it. Of course, if it were true that he had ceased to love her, this would place her in a most humiliating position and expose her to a rebuff which would break her heart. But she didn't care; she could not stand things going on in this way any longer. So she went home, wrote a letter upon the lines indicated, and sent it to the post office.

Tom would not get it until the next morning, she thought—she knew he seldom went to the post office in the little neighboring village for the evening mail. And she passed a most miserable night. Then the thought occurred to her that perhaps Tom would go for his evening mail and get her letter.

Right after breakfast next morning she was in her little roadster, motoring down to the village post office. As she entered the door she and Tom almost collided.

"Did—did you get my letter?" she faltered with a blush.

"No," replied Tom, "did you get mine?"

"Why, no! Did you write?" she cried—and hastened to her letter box. Tom rushed around to his. In a couple of minutes they had another narrow escape from collision in front of the delivery window.

"Oh, Tom, I am so glad," said Lillian.

And "Oh, Lillian, what a jewel of a girl you are," said Tom.

You know what Lillian had written. Tom had written that he could stand it no longer; that he had tried to be indifferent and couldn't manage it. Would not Lillian reconsider?"

There is not much more to tell. You know from your own experience, gentle reader, how happy lovers are when they have made up after an estrangement. Tom and Lillian each keeps the letter the other had written and, now that they are married, whenever there is a hint of the approach of a family misunderstanding those letters are read over again—and all is at once serene.

Trying to Plant a Jonah's Gourd

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright.)

"SAY! What d ye know of that girl?" exclaimed Thornton Gilberry to his daughter—"dressed in faded calico, yet acting as though she felt herself quite as good as we are. I won't have it I tell you. That's the word with the bark on it."

"Rough enough, patience knows," Rachel, daughter and heiress of Thornton Gilberry, Esq., flung back at her outraged father: "I like putting on airs as little as you can," she went on. "But let me tell you she has got what we'll need badly to swing this deal—"

"Don't believe it," Gilberry broke in—to which Rachel answered: "You hate truth—always. Now listen to it. The Lanes have got standing here—so much so that their word can make or break us. Leslie spoke real neighborly, until you started in to patronize her—patronize everything. She listened politely while you spun your yarn—but spoke her 'No' like a thousand of brick. No mortgage on Long Lane—her father wouldn't have it, no more would she herself—rather sell outright—"

"She hasn't the say so about that, you'll find," Gilberry snorted. Rachel returned him a sniff, with: "You'll find that she has—land's trusteed, and she the remainderman—I had sense enough to find that out at the courthouse yesterday, while you were gassing with the old judge."

"Sharp of you, I must say—but you ought to have told me before she came. I don't want to see her again till I have my day in court. That won't be for some little time yet. Big things mustn't grow too fast."

"Some of them can't," Rachel admitted. "But you're trying to plant a Jonah's gourd. To do that—folks must believe in you—as they would if the Lanes backed you. Yesterday I ran across an old woman in a store—she pounced on me, seeing I was new and strange, and cross-examined me till I was nearly dead. She doesn't cotton to the Lanes overmuch because they're so plzen honest that all the rest took their word for gospel. She said that Major Lane might a-got out of payin' the security debt that come nigh ruinin' him by lettin' his lawyer lie—as if that wasn't what lawyers were paid for."

Because sulphur springs broke out here and there along the depths of Rush creek, there was a widespread but nebulous belief that deeper down there was oil. This belief was the soil wherein Gilberry hoped to nurture his Jonah's Gourd.

Skillfully as become such fowlers, father and daughter spread their snare. They had rented a fine house ready furnished, added to it many servants, several cars, a private secretary, a privater wire—only Gilberry himself or the secretary ever spoke over it. Things went with a rush—rigs were brought in—engineers came to snoop and smell, measure with queer instruments and mutter in pretended asides.

Gilberry had come to hate the Lane girl and almost as murderously to desire her. She knew intuitively his spiritual estate. If she had not known—the event might have been tragedy indeed. She had put steadfastly away a man's love and strength that her dear burden might not hinder him from reaching the heights he was meant to scale. But she had promised faithfully to recall him if ever she felt herself in deadly need of him.

The need loomed black. Passions were fluid as lava—Gilberry was saying darkly in pretended confidence, the Lanes held the key to fortunes for all. Their lands lay in exactly the key position—unless they were in the pool Jonah's Gourd was bound to wither. Too bad for a whole community to be balked by one woman's obstinacy—the poor old major was a puppet in her hands—she must have a great spite, real grouch against the old folks that had been always kind to her. Get her out of the way for even two days, the major would sign—capital would flow like water—and oil—well, just like oil.

Ten days since she had written Roy Lindsay: "Come to me at once." Yet so far he had made no sign. Gilberry's scheme she knew was to kidnap her—declare the major incompetent, take over the land, then sell the bonds—half a million in wait—and disappear. What her own fate might be she did not let herself think, not even when she sat heavy-eyed but vigilant in the hall outside her father's door.

Muffled footsteps made her start—two masked men were creeping in from the back. But five feet from her a bullet stopped one of them—the other wheeled and would have run away but found himself blocked. If Roy Lindsay came late to the rescue it was with force and the strong hand. Sturdy state troopers and secret service men, who had been looking into the prospectus of Jonah's Gourd came with him.

The bullet had found its right billet in Gilberry—Rachel got away between midnight and dawn. The bonds were only waste paper—but a year later real oil proved that a big pool underlay half the Lane land—which meant of course a very merry wedding.

That Andrew Snyder (Snider), late of Garrett County, Md., deceased, was in his lifetime and at the time of his death seized and possessed of a parcel of land situate,lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, the same being a part of a tract of land called "The Gleanings of Negro Mountain," comprising Military Lots Nos. twenty three hundred and forty-three (2343), twenty-three hundred and forty-four (2344), and containing the quantity of one hundred acres, being the same which was conveyed unto the said Andrew Snyder (Snider) by deed from Mary Snyder bearing date June 28th, 1897, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 42, folio 573, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, a certified copy of which said deed is herewith filed and marked "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1," and prayed to be taken and considered a part of this bill of complaint. That while so seized and possessed of said real estate the said Andrew Snyder (Snider) departed this life, intestate, at his home in Garrett County, Maryland, on or about the year 1907, leaving surviving him as his next of kin and heirs at law the following, to-wit: Adam Snyder, a son, who intermarried with Ada Snyder; Kate Stanton, a daughter, who intermarried with Thomas Stanton, said Thomas Stanton being non-compos mentis; Maggie Lohr, a widowed daughter; August Snyder a son, who intermarried with Mary E. That by deed dated April 10th, 1912, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 95, folio 222, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, the said August Snyder and Mary E. Snyder, his wife, conveyed to Lizzie Snyder, now deceased, all the interest of said August Snyder in said property except the minerals thereunder, a certified copy of said deed being filed as "Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 2."

That the improvements on the above land are not of great value but there is a valuable growth of timber on the same and it is also underlaid with a good vein of coal; that the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interest therein, and in order to make a division of the same it will be necessary that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof distributed according to law; that it would be for the benefit and advantage of all of said parties that said real estate be sold under the decree of this Court and the proceeds thereof distributed to those entitled to the same; that the said Adam Snyder, Henry Engle, Henrietta Hase, Richard Hase, Anna Flury, Frank Flury, Marie Morris, William Morris, Charles Engle, Dorcas Engle, Laura E. Foy and Henry Patton are non-residents of the State of Maryland, said Adam Snyder residing at Listonburg, Pennsylvania, the residence of Harry Patton being to your orators unknown, and the rest of the above named defendants residing in the State of Ohio; that the defendants Ada Snyder, Kate Stanton, Maggie Lohr, August Snyder and Mary E Snyder reside in Garrett County, Maryland; Thomas Stanton, non-compos mentis defendant, is confined in the Springfield State Hospital for the Insane at Sykesville, in Carroll County, Maryland.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of the real estate and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom and for general relief.

It is thereupon, this 21st day of May, 1928, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland once in each of four successive weeks before the 22nd day of June, 1928, giving notice to the said absent defendants, Adam Snyder, Henry Engle, Henrietta Hase, Richard Hase, Anna Flury, Frank Flury, Marie Morris, William Morris, Charles Engle, Dorcas Engle, Laura E. Foy and Harry Patton, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 9th day of July, 1928, to show cause if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

RURAL WOMEN LOOK FROM FARM HOMES TO COLLEGE CAMPUS

Short Courses In Home Economics at University of Maryland Attracting State Wide Attention

June 13 to 23 Dates of Classes This Year

"From the home to the classroom is no longer a novel or unusual step for the rural women of Maryland," says Miss Venia M. Keller, of the University of Maryland Extension Service. "The 518 rural women attending the annual Short Course offered last year by the University proved themselves well able to make the change from housekeeper to student at short notice, and with greater ease than the average girl who must reverse the order in returning from her student life to the home."

The Short Course work this year will be given from June 13 to 23. Arrangements are being made for many prominent lecturers, and the popularity of the work among the women of the state insures a capacity attendance.

If the Short Course for rural women has demonstrated anything in the five years since its inauguration, it is that the rural woman has the knack of adapting herself readily to new and untried conditions. The increasing attendance has left no doubt about the ability of the rural woman to step gracefully from the door of her home one day and to be perfectly at ease the next in the environment of the classroom and laboratory.

It is not difficult to understand what a week at the University of Maryland means to the rural woman who is able to take advantage of it. First of all comes the instruction, provided on a generous scale among practical lines. They acquire knowledge of foods and nutriton, discover new ways of cooking and serving meals, gather hints here and there on appetizing salads and tempting desserts, and gain a better understanding of the processes of canning and preserving.

To understand how eagerly the rural woman grasps the opportunity provided by the course in clothing and millinery, it is only necessary to observe the close interest of the class in these subjects. The essentials of costume planning, the selection of textiles, the choice of suitable millinery and the construction of attractive and inexpensive hats are ever popular and absorbing subjects.

The convenience, comfort and attractiveness of her home are other matters of appealing interest to the average rural woman. From the lectures and demonstrations in household management and house furnishing, many new and practical ideas in the renovation of furniture, the proper choice of color combinations, in the use of correct drapery materials and in the selection of suitable furniture are carried back home from the Short Course to be put into use. Equally valuable suggestions for the exterior improvement of the home are obtained from the course in landscape gardening.

And so it is with the other courses; with dairying, with poultry, health, parliamentary law, and citizenship. From all of them the rural woman is able to secure help and increased inspiration.

The instruction provided during the Short Course, however, is but one of the appealing features of the week at the University of Maryland. The relief from routine of household duties, opportunities to meet new people, to make new friendships and exchange ideas are of value in giving the rural woman a real week of relaxation and profit.

JONES' QUICK ACTION SAVES $3,000 SCHOOL

Telephone Repairman Uses Fire Extinguisher On Blaze

Jesse E. Jones, telephone repairman of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of West Virginia at Clarksburg recently saved the Simpson school district of Harrison County $3,000 for a new school house. Repairman Jones, while returning home from work one night noticed a strange light in the Oral School building and on investigation found the interior in flames.

Realizing instantly that the building would be destroyed unless help was secured promptly he yelled "fire, fire," until people living in the neighborhood were attracted to the scene. He then climbed in a window with a fire extinguisher, which is maintained as a part of the automobile equipment of all repairmen of the telephone company, and proceeded to put out the fire.

People living nearby, attracted by Jones' alarm, carried water from the school-house well and extinguished the flames in the lower part of the structure. Repairman Jones, with his extinguisher in hand, succeeded in putting out the flames which were eating away the rafters in the attic. The damage, which amounted to several hundred dollars, was said to have been caused by an overheated stove. Jones was highly commended by the citizens of the district for his prompt action, which undoubtedly saved the structure. The school building was valued at $3,000.

JANUARY OUTSTANDING IN TELEPHONE HISTORY

The opening of transatlantic radio telephone service and also the opening of a new transcontinental telephone line both taking place in January, 1927, calls attention again to the important part played by the month of January in telephone history. For it was in January, 1915, on the 25th of the month, that the first transcontinental telephone line was opened, and it was in January, 1923, on the 14th, that transoceanic radio telephony was first demonstrated by Bell System engineers who talked to England for two hours on that occasion. Also, it was in January that the first commercial telephone exchange in the world was placed in service. This was at New Haven, Conn., on January 28, 1878.

"TELEPHONE BARK"

The impersonal, cold, aggressive way in which some people answer the telephone is termed by a store in the South as "telephone bark." This store, which is an extensive advertiser and, as a result, does a large share of its business over the telephone, requires its employees to use a courteous inviting voice over the telephone and has succeeded completely in banning the "bark."

Facts About the Telephone

New York City now has considerably more telephones than there were in the whole United States in 1900.

At the beginning of 1927 London, England, had about 500,000 telephones, while Chicago had over 800,000 on the same date.

The telephone service recently established between London, England and Copenhagen is reported to be giving satisfaction. It is expected that, in the near future, through telephone calls may be made from Copenhagen to New York.

Switzerland has long been known as an international center for the legal and political activities of Europe. The new direct telephone cable connections between that country and Cologne, Hamburg and London may some day make Switzerland an international telephone center as well.

At the beginning of 1927 there were about 1,500,000 telephones in Great Britain and Northern Ireland. On the same date the five biggest cities in the United States—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and Detroit together—had considerably more than twice this number of telephones.

"Skunk Fur Stronger at New York Fur Auction," reads a headline. They have nothing on those raised in Garrett county.

At Last!

A sensation in photography is sure to result from the following picture which Col. Bell has been working upon for more than four weeks. This should have really appeared long ago, but the Col. has been loafing for some time and wouldn't move his hand in work.

It was stated last week that the Col. had refused to take any more pictures for Scoop, but this was only to disguise the real reason. The Col. asked for a week off so that he could devote his entire time to the following picture, and everyone can see what a mess he made of it.

The picture is that of Henry Lauer, with an extra wide grin, as he greeted his son "Bill", now his right-hand man in the Oakland Model Bakery, upon his return from the Chinese Coolies. According to the Col. the smile was so wide that he couldn't get it all in one exposure and consequently had to make two. The difficulty he has had in the photographic art can easily be seen, but the result speaks for itself.

The Final Result

Archibaldson, the pressman in the back room, said that "Quite a few of the circus performers here last week kept their 'tights' in a bottle."

He Likes It!

Last week-end, the Rev. P. P. Snyder, good friend of The Republican's office force, made a social call just to find out where we made our type, and how; and where we made the cuts for this column.

We didn't tell him, but Col. Bell was right on the spot at the time, and followed him home in order to get an action picture of one of Oakland's real truck gardeners. He was successful as he always is and caught Rev. Snyder at his usual task.

Hard At It

After Rev. Snyder's favorable comment on Scoop's column, it was decided to run a contest. Fifteen of the leading generals on the subject from Oakland, including "Bill" Gibson, were blindfolded, had copies of ten columnist writers placed before them, and all picked Scoop's column from among the number.

Suit Is Started

This week's portrait of people in the public eye, is Grover "Monk" Stemple, re-elected recently to serve as a member of the City Council. Since his re-election, it has been rumored that he is preparing to sue the city for building the sidewalks too close to his hat. "It has been that way for so long that people are beginning to believe that I am short," he is quoted as saying.

There is also some talk of him putting a motion before the members at the next meeting, which will raise plumbers' fees within the City limits.

18 Miles to a Gallon

Miss Benthien is now walking proof of the fact that one just can't get from Accident to Oakland on a gallon of gas. The distance is only 20 miles, but if you ask her how far a gallon will carry one, she will tell you about 18.

The Drum Major Next Week

Scoop and the Col. have a treat in store for the readers next week. It would have been presented this week but the inclement weather and poor light made it necessary to take the exposure on time. If the negative is O. K., next week will show none other than Robert Hoffman, postman in his leisure hours, and drum major when he is hard at work. This will be his first photo as a musical director.

In the background of the picture Judson Loar will appear, walking in his 976th parade.

SEVENTEEN LICENSES ARE ISSUED IN WEEK'S TIME

Record For Month of May Almost Certain to be Broken

Seventeen marriage licenses were issued from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit court during the past week, ending Tuesday at noon, stated A. G. Ross, deputy clerk, bringing the total to within one of last year's record. With two and one-half days before the end of May, it is almost certain that the record will be broken, according to Mr. Ross. One license issued was marked "don't publish," and two applicants were refused licenses because under the law they were too young.

Eight of the seventeen issued were granted on Saturday, again proving it to be the most popular day in which to procure these necessary documents.

TELEPHONE SUBSCRIBERS ONCE KEPT TOWN DIRECTORY

New Names Added to List by Each Subscriber as Directed

Oakland telephone subscribers, if they should be told that in future they must make their own directories, would be greatly surprised. Yet in the early days of the industry, telephone subscribers had to do that very thing. It is true that there were not many telephones connected with the switchboards then, but as each instrument was placed in position the operators called the other subscribers and instructed them to add the name of the new subscriber to their lists. Today with thousands of telephones in service the issuing of a new telephone directory is considerable of an undertaking and requires the services of many people to see that it is accurately and efficiently compiled, say officials of the company.

People who use the telephone, and that includes almost everyone, according to officials of the company, find the directory one of the most necessary factors to good telephone service. Not only does the directory here contain the listings of local subscribers' telephone numbers, but it also includes the listings and numbers of nearby cities and towns. In the spring issue telephone directory of this district, which has just recently been published, will be found such points as Cumberland, Frostburg, Lonaconing, Mt. Savage, Kitzmiller, McCoole and Westernport, Md., and Ridgeley, Blaine, Keyser and Piedmont, W. Va., and connecting company exchanges at Bedford Valley, Hyndman, Meyersdale, Salisbury, Somerset, State Line and Wellersburg, Pa.

How They Serve.

Pointing out the distinction between bedside nursing and public health nursing, in a radio talk recently, Mrs. Ethel Monroe Troy, Advisory Nurse of the State Department of Health, said that the "private duty nurse," as the nurse who takes care of the sick, is called, deals with the patient as a separate individual, while the public health nurse "sees the patient as a member of a family and the family as a unit in the community."

The activities of the rural public health nurse, Mrs. Troy said, are carried on under the direction of the health officer; the private duty nurse works under the direction of the patient's physician. When the public health nurse visits those who are sick she does so with the consent of the attending physician.

For the benefit of people who are ill but who do not need continuous nursing care or who may not be able to afford a full-time nurse, a movement is under way, Mrs. Troy said, in cities and towns and closely settled communities to provide hourly or group nursing for which a regular fee is charged.

The rural public health nurse, Mrs. Troy said, carries on a general nursing program in which special emphasis is laid "on the control of communicable diseases—tuberculosis, typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever—and which includes maternity, infant and child welfare work, school nursing, instruction in home care of the sick and many other activities tending to lessen the anguish of illness and to promote positive health.

"The nurse must enter into the community life, since she usually lives in the county in which she is employed, and she must be capable of ministering to the wealthiest and the poorest with equal grace. Officially, the most desirable public health nurse is the one who has graduated from an accredited nurses' training school, is registered in the State in which she is employed and who has had special training in public health nursing.

"There are about 250 nurses engaged in public health work in Maryland, 46 of whom are working in the counties, one or more in each county. Of the remainder, 131 are connected with the Department of Health of Baltimore City and the rest are identified with the Babies' Milk Fund, the Instructive Visiting Nurse Association and the various industries."

JUDGE FILES OPINION IN BRYDON HOME SUIT

Declares Void Two Deeds Executed by Brydon Brothers

Associate Judge Albert A. Doub filed an opinion in the Circuit court for Garrett county, declaring void two deeds executed by Louis B. Brydon and his brothers to the Advance Development company. The deeds were made in 1926, and conveyed to the Advance Development company the Brydon home at Bloomington.

These deeds were attached in a suit filed by the First National Bank, Cumberland, on the ground that they hindered and delayed the bank in collection of a note against Louis B. Brydon.

Judge Doub, in a lengthy opinion, sustains this contention, and holds that the deeds were made to the corporation without consideration and had the effect of delaying and hindering Brydon's creditors and should be set aside.

E. R. Jones, Oakland, and Walter C. Capper, Cumberland, represented the First National Bank of Cumberland, and Messrs. J. C. Renninger and W. R. Offutt, of Oakland, represented the Brydons.

COUNTY CLUBWOMEN HAVE A TEA AND PROGRAM

Food Demonstration and Dress Parade Feature Meeting.

The county-wide annual program and tea for the Garrett county clubwomen was held yesterday afternoon at the Parish House in Oakland with a food demonstration in the morning and a dress review in the afternoon.

Miss Margaret McPheeters, nutrition specialist, was judge in the morning and viewed the work of the demonstration teams. Mt. Lake-Loch Lynn entered two teams of two members each, composed of Mrs. J. S. Elliott and Mrs. E. O. Fouch; Mrs. C. E Hardesty and Miss Dessie Rodeheaver; the Oakland Homemakers' Club, one team: Mrs. Margaret Casteel and Mrs. S. D. Whipkey. The final decision will be made the first of the week.

In the afternoon following a program of songs and the roll call of clubs, a dress review was held with Miss McPheeters and Miss Brown as judges. The winners were: Group I: Mrs. Frances Boucher, Grantsville, 1st; Miss Dessie Rodeheaver, Mt. Lake Park, 2nd; Mrs. Margaret Casteel, Oakland, 3d.

Group II: Mrs. Fred. Livengood. Grantsville, 1st; Mrs. O'Brien, Oakland, 2nd; Mrs. H. G. Meyers, Oakland, 3d. Group III: Mrs. C. A. Shilke, Oakland, 1st; Mrs. E. O. Fouch, Mt. Lake Park, 2nd; Mrs. Frazee, Oakland, 3d.

About thirty-five were present at the afternoon meeting. At the conclusion of the review, tea was served.

West Penn Rejects All Slogans In Contest

Deeming that no slogan entered in the contest recently conducted to secure a new slogan adequately met the requirements of the original announcement, the Monongahela West Penn Public Service company has announced it will not at this time adopt a new slogan or accept any of those entered in the contest.

There were 3,010 slogans entered in the contest and the rejection of these, it was stated by an official of the company, does not mean that many good ones were not submitted. He said, however, because of the diversity of service rendered by the company which include electricity, electric railway and bus transportation, gas, water, ice and merchandising, no slogan was entered which would adequately exxpress the company's sentiment briefly.

Boys' Band Wants Music of Former Band Members.

"The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band is now ready to begin with more difficult music," R. R. Gilbert, director, said yesterday. With this end in view Mr. Gilbert has been collecting all the old sheets of music of former Oakland band organizations and hopes to start his boys soon on new marches and serenades.

"Some of the men in former bands should have their music, because it was not left behind in the band hall," he said, "and I wish they would find it and turn it over to the new organization. By doing this it will save from $15 to $20.

"All the boys are eager for something more difficult. Last Tuesday everybody was at the band hall at 7 o'clock waiting to get in."

Licenses may be procured this year both from the office of the Circuit Court clerk and from Elmer Haulenbeek, at Rainbow Inn. Many of those holding licenses have considered the money well spent, while others are desirous of selling theirs for thirty cents or less as Dame Fortune has not been with them in their efforts to lure any of the finny tribe from their natural habitat.

James Reed, Formerly of Morgantown, Killed Tuesday.

James Reed, aged 35 years, a farmer, who came to this section from the vicinity of Morgantown a number of years ago, was found with his life crushed out beneath a tractor Tuesday morning at a point near the Boy Scouts' camp along Deep Creek Lake. ## SLAUGHTERING OF CATTLE SHOWS TEST IS ACCURATE

All Reactors Killed Showed Tubercular Lesions — Twenty Diseased Cattle In 2705

With an addition of four reactors in 34 cattle given the test for tuberculosis during the past week, the total number of cattle having been subjected to the test is now 2,705, with only twenty reactors, according to records on file at the office of the county agent in Oakland.

Nine of these reactors were slaughtered on Monday and the examination conducted by the veterinarians, Drs. Poe and Trout, and County Agent McGlone, showed that all the reactors had tuberculin lesions. This fact proves that the tests made were accurate.

"Some interesting facts have been brought out by these tests," Mr. McGlone said. "One of the reactors was traced and it was learned that she at one time had been the property of two farmers who also had reactors. This was also duplicated by a bull that had been transferred to two different farms where reactors have been located."

Twelve of the reactors found in the county were located in an area of three miles. The other eight were in other sections of the county.

In order to correst some misleading stories which have been told as to the regulations that must be complied with when reactors are located, Mr. McGlone said that the tuberculosis board allows purebred animals to be appraised as high as $150; grades, $75, and the farmer is paid two-thirds the value of the animal that is condemned and slaughtered. He also said that barns do not have to be burned where reactors are located, but that they do have to be disinfected and thoroughly cleaned. The board requires this to protect the farmer to prevent the infection from spreading.

Former Garrett County Man Plans Trip To Newfoundland To Search For The Lost Fliers Nungesser and Coli

COLI AND NUNGES SER

GULF OF ST. LAWRENCE

DR. JAMES A NYDEGGER

Though it is more than a year since the French airmen, Cauts. Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, vanished after taking off from La Bourget, France, for America, in their plane, the White Bird, and though the most persistent searchs by sea, air and land have failed to find traces of them, Dr. James A. Nydegger, of Baltimore, plans to explore the Newfoundland tablelands in the hope that he will succeed where so many others have failed. Dr. Nydegger says he and his guides will comb every mile of unexplored territory on the island and that while he has no hope the dauntless airmen are alive, he believes he will discover some trace of their plane. —Balto. News.

DR. NYDEGGER, NATIVE OF COUNTY, TO SEEK PLANE

An exploration trip into the "table lands" of Newfoundland in search of traces of the ill-fated plane of Nungesser and Coli, intrepid French airmen, who were lost while attempting the first westward flight of the Atlantic, is planned by Dr. James A. Nydegger, Baltimore physician. He is a native of Garrett county.

Dr. Nydegger has been connected with the Public Health Service for 30 years and it is said he has done much exploring in Newfoundland.

Confident that Nungesser's plane, the "White Bird," spanned the Atlantic only to meet disastrous headwinds and be forced off her course as was the "Bremen," Dr. Nydegger says he will explore every mile of the interior of the island. He said:

"My impression is that they crashed against tall trees or a mountain, while lost in fog. There were a dozen reports that persons had heard their motor along the coast. The Guggenheim foundation spent thousands of dollars searching from the air for traces of their plane, but if they were lost in the 'table lands' the wreckage could not be seen from the air.

"The 'White Bird' would disappear from sight like a basebell in grass three feet high. I am leaving Baltimore June 1 for St. George's Bay, Newfoundland. With two or three trusted guides I will follow the Grand Codary river into the dense woods of the island.

"I will send the guides back and forth across the island, crossing and recrossing until every mile of unexplored territory is covered. I am confident I will find traces of them.

"While I hold out no hope that they are alive I believe we will find their wrecked plane. It is hut little over a year since their brave attempt to fly from France to America failed, and it is not too late to make a final search.

"Nungesser's mother has always maintained that somebody will find the 'White Bird.' I hope I will he the fortunate man.

Dr. Nydegger says he will use neither plane nor boat during his trip and believes that if the plane is somewhere along the tall table lands that it will be possible to see it from a high point in the air. Rivers are too rough in June to travel by canoe so he and his guides will cover the netire island on foot, he declared.

Left Last Year.

Captains Nungesser and Coli took off from Le Bourget flying field on their great trans-Atlantic adventure May 8 last year. This was not many days before Lindbergh made his epochal flight in the other direction.

The French fliers plunged into ohlivion. Nothing definite was heard of them after that, although the day following their start there came a report that their plane had been seen off the Maine coast. It was subsequently established that this plane was not the "White Bird."

Plane Overdue.

As the hours that Nungesser and Coli were overdue in America lengthened to days, a search was started by three nations—the United States, England (on both sides of the Atlantic) and France.

Ships and aircraft were called into service and the lonely regions of Newfoundland, Labrador and Quebec were scanned from the air and penetrated by land parties.

Most tantalizing of the later reports were those of "flares" that had been seen in the Canadian north woods and that were believed distress signals from Nungasser and Coli. Every few weeks there would come a report that new flares had been seen, but nothing more definite resulted.

A Report of the Work of the Oakland Civic Club for the Past Year.

At a recent meeting of the Oakland Civic Club, Miss Thekla C. Fundenburg, president of the organization, submitted a report in which the activities of the club were reviewed for the past year. Miss Fundenburg's report follows:

In April, the club entertained the northern federation of clubs. An informal evening meeting for out-of-town guests was held at the home of the retiring president, Mrs. Milton Sincell.

The business session was held in the Maryland Theatre, with a well arranged program. Luncheon was served at the Manhattan Hotel. Over ninety gathered at the luncheon. A pleasant feature of the occasion was the display of flags throughout the town, giving a welcome to the visitors.

The club had decided early in the year to assist with an orthopedic clinic. Miss Anne Sloan came May 17 to address the club and any persons interested. She told of the work at a meeting held in the Court House. Plans were then made for the clinic. Mrs. Milton Sincell was appointed chairman of public welfare and with the assistance of Miss Rhesa King, County Health Nurse, Mr. Frank E. Rathbun and others of his staff of teachers, the names of persons needing orthopedic care were secured and arrangements made for them to come to the clinic, which was held May 29. The late Mr. Olin Rice and Ulysses Hanna, representing the Elks, visited Oakland on that day, making a contribution to this work.

Dr. George Bennett and Dr. Edwin Weinberg of Baltimore, were the surgeons in charge,being assisted by several nurses from Baltimore. Luncheon was served by the ladies of the club with Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, chairman. Sixty cases were examined and 23 have had treatment.

The editors of The Republican and The Democrat gave much space to articles about this work, thus creating public interest.

A community sing was held on May 19, Miss Lottie Loar, chairman, and $10 was donated for the Health Day parade.

The cluh earned $170 in August by giving a benefit picture, everyone working with Mrs. Bernard Gonder, chairman entertainment committee, and Mrs. W. W. Grant, chairman public welfare committee. Candy and flowers, all donated by members of the club, were on sale.

In September, Miss Church asked the civic cluh to sponsor a meeting to organize a Garrett County Chapter of the Maryland League for Crippled Children, which was done, the meeting heing held in the high school auditorium, with pictures shown by Dr. Weinberg. Dr. W. E. Gattens was made chairman. Through solicitation the county commissioners agreed to furnish braces and crutches for any needy cases. We also had permission to use the ladies' room at the court house for meetings.

At nearly every meeting since June a talk of some kind has been given of general interest to the members of the club, for which its members are appreciative.

In October, the work of the club was turned over to Mrs. Arthur Naylor, the first vice-president.

The November and December work centered in the annual sale of tuberculosis seals. Mrs. Milton Sincell, chairman, attended a special meeting in Baltimore to increase interest over the State. Returns, $342.

In January, a home talent musical comedy was presented, over fifty of the young people taking part. The money cleared, $50, was for public welfare work.

In February, $25 was subscribed to make it possible for Miss King to attend a meeting of the international society for crippled children, other organizations and individuals making up $100 toward her expenses; $5 was subscribed for the campaign fund for Mrs. Sippel, candidate for president of General Federation of clubs.

The attention of club members is called to the new club magazine, The Maryland Clubwoman. Mrs. H. A. Loraditch will send in subscriptions at 50 cents per year. Every State in the Union has a magazine of this kind except two. Maryland was one of these, so in order to be in line, we must support one.

We have added several new members during the year, active and honorary, and will be pleased to have others who are interested to come into the club.

Greater gas mileage

It may surprise motorists and mechanics who know most about oil to read this proof of how a different oil

"STANDARD" MOTOR OIL

"Standard" Greases, Transmission Oil and Gear Compound are made with the same care as "Standard" motor fuels and motor oils.

ACTUALLY INCREASES GASOLINE MILEAGE

Tests were made by a motor car manufacturer by driving cars for two thousand miles cross country, comparing "Standard" Motor Oil with other well-known brands. The same gasoline was used in all cars. The use of "Standard" Motor Oil showed increases of from 7 to 11% in the number of miles per gallon of gasoline.

This is because "Standard" Motor Oil forms the best seal between piston and cylinder wall, thus insuring a more perfect combustion and a more powerful piston stroke. More power means more miles per gallon of gasoline.

Lesson for June 10

THE ARREST AND TRIAL

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:43-15:15.
GOLDEN TEXT—He was despised, and rejected of men (Isa. 53:3).
PRIMARY TOPIC—How Wicked Men Treated Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Trial of Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Trial of Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Facing His Enemies.

I. The Betrayal and Arrest (vv. 43-52).

1. The sign to the mob (vv. 43-47).

With the basest hypocrisy Judas pointed out Jesus to the mob by a kiss, the sign of love.

2. Jesus forsaken by all (vv. 48-52).

At the sight of His betrayal, one of Jesus' disciples attempted to defend Him by resorting to the sword, but seeing that He made no attempt at resistance they all fled. Their courage failed them in the hour of trial. How little man knows of his own weakness until the crucial hour comes.

II. Jesus Before the Sanhedrin (vv. 53-65).

1. Contradictory testimony of false witnesses (vv. 53-59).

The chief priests and all the council sought for witnesses against Jesus to put Him to death, but they found none because there was no unity of testimony. They accused Him of having declared that within three days He would build again the temple if it were destroyed.

2. The high priest's questions (vv. 60-65).

(1) "What is it that these witness against Thee?"

To this Jesus was silent, showing that no evidence had yet been given worthy of an answer.

(2) "Art thou the Christ?"

To this He definitely replied, "I am," and quoted a Scripture passage which they recognized as referring to the Messiah. This claim they answered with buffeting and the most shameful treatment.

III. Peter Denies His Lord (vv. 66-72).

Though Peter loved Jesus, yet in the hour of supreme trial he failed. Grevious as his sin was, it was not like that of Judas. His failure was due to:

1. Boasting self-confidence (vv. 29-31).
2. Lack of watchfulness (v. 37).
3. Neglect of prayer (v. 38).
4. Service in the energy of the flesh (v. 47).
5. Following Jesus afar off (v. 54).
6. Seeking comfort among the Lord's enemies (v. 67, cf. Luke 22:55).
7. Open denial (vv. 68-72). His backsliding really began when he shrank from the cross.

IV. Jesus Arraigned Before Pilate (15:1-15)

In the early morning after the trial before the high priest they bound Jesus and delivered Him to Pilate. They acted freely in this according to the evil desires of their own hearts, yet He was delivered up by the determined counsel and foreknowledge of God (Acts 2:23). The Jews would gladly have killed Him, but they had not the authority to do so. They delivered Him to the Gentile governor, thus involving the Jews and the Gentiles in the crowning act of the world's sin. Pilate questioned Him without delay for they accused Him of pretending to be a king. "Thou sayest," was His only reply. To the slanderous accusations of the chief priests and elders He made no reply, to the utter astonishment of Pilate. Pilate sought to release Him because he was convinced of His innocence. After several unsuccessful efforts to escape responsibility, the expedient of letting the people choose between Barabbas and Jesus was resorted to. He no doubt thought that Jesus would be chosen rather than the notorious Barabbas.

Cast Thyself at His Feet

The fever of worldliness that burns in the blood, the ill-temper, the unkindness, the impatience, the dreadful malady of avarice that turns the heart to stone, the dim vision of Himself, the fretting fear, the foolish envy—how loathsome in His sight is that of which we make so little! Cast thyself at His feet until He make thee clean!—Mark Guy Pearse.

Our Obedience

God wants work of us. He offers His power to us if we will work with Him. Greater deeds than have ever been done do not wait upon His willingness but upon our obedience.—Robert E. Speer.

Joy

"Joy is there if we will set ourselves to find it—joy in labor, joy in love, joy in the beauty of earth around us, joy that waits like a hidden well to bubble up in hearts that are open to it."

No Sorrow Too Great

No sorrow is too great to endure if it reveals to us some new beauty in Christ, or brings out in us some new feature of Christlikeness.—J. R. Miller.

HEALTH COURSE FOR WOMEN PROVES BENEFICIAL TO 2,000

Telephone Employees Find That It Is Easier to Keep Well Than to Get Well. Vice-President Koons Recently Presented Certificates to 607 Graduates.

Young women who have graduated in the telephone health course know that "health is wealth." Realizing that exercise is essential to good health, these graduates practice it in their daily living.

Two thousand young women employees of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company and Associated Companies know "it is easier to keep well than to get well." In Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia 607 graduates of the general health course for women of the telephone company have just recently been presented certificates by John C. Koons, vice-president. With the graduation of this class the number of women in the company who have been instructed in health work since the course was inaugurated about two years ago has been increased to 2,920.

These last classes included 271 graduates in Maryland, 221 in Washington, 54 in Virginia, and 61 in West Virginia. Miss Elizabeth R. Cuff was in charge of the health course work in Maryland, Miss Margaret L. Harbin, Washington; Mrs. Lillian E. Swift, in Virginia, and Mrs. Mabel E. Carpenter and Mrs. Jessie A. Arnold, in West Virginia.

When telephone officials announced that health courses would be available, the young women of the company were immediately enthusiastic and as new classes are formed they continue to show their interest by participating in them.

The health course for women was inaugurated by the telephone company in 1926. The course includes a better knowledge and understanding of the human body and its nourishment, the formation of good habits of living, the prevention of disease, care of the sick, the use of medicines and other remedies, how to prepare sick room beds and bedding, bathing and first aid in accidents.

In studying the normal human body these young women learned something of the structure of the body and its method of functioning. The human body, in that it houses a living, thinking personality, is different from any machine which at its best is still an inanimate object and must therefore have human control, they were told by their instructors. Since the body is more perfect than any other machine it should be properly reverenced and given exceptionally good care. This sums up in a general way the principal features of the health course.

Good care of the body is reflected in one's personal habits. This is well illustrated by the fact that the person who lives in a wholesome way reflects care, whereas the person who has lived a careless, intemperate life usually shows it in his or her appearance.

Food and drink are matters of vital importance which are not only absolutely essential to life itself but their intelligent use is a great aid to one's general health and well being. Food and its various classifications were one of the subjects covered at great length in the telephone company's health course. The students learned what to eat, what is injurious to health and that certain things which may be good for one person are undesirable for another. Overweight, they were told, is just as detrimental to some people as underweight is to others.

Under the formation of good habits of living, those taking the telephone health course learn that one of the secrets of good health is a proper frame of mind. Just as the mind controls one's voluntary actions such as walking and talking, so it has a most important influence on the more voluntary body functions. The young women were taught that an improper mental attitude soon shows itself in physical condition which detracts from a person's appearance and may seriously endanger their health. A sunny disposition is one of nature's most appealing accomplishments. It is decidedly an aid to success. A pleasing disposition is a thing which people remember longest, the health course instructors state. It is something to think about and, according to the instructors, many of the graduates do.

COMMUNICATION PROVIDES MOTIVE POWER THAT SPEEDS UP BUSINESS

Needs of Nation and World Dependent On Development of Telephone Service. United States Telephone Users Now Make 75,000,000 Calls Daily

Communication provides the motive power that speeds up America's business mechanism. Nowhere else in the world is there greater need for adequate communication facilities—for means of getting business done without delay. On no other nation does the world make heavier business demands than it does on the United States.

This country produces 85 per cent of the world's motor vehicles; 70 per cent of its petroleum; 63 per cent of its raw cotton; 59 per cent of its corn; 54 per cent of its smelter copper and 52 per cent of its steel.

The needs of a nation—and of a world—lie behind the development of telephone service. The recent extensions of telephone service to continental Europe have made it possible to connect approximately 23,000,000 of the world's estimated 31,000,000 telephones.

There are now 18,700,000 telephones in service in the United States which is equivalent to one station for every six of the total population. These telephones are served from 19,950 central offices located in every section of the country. Each of the switchboards in these offices is a symbol of co-ordination of human effort and mechanism which makes possible America's far-reaching telephone service.

Webs of cords on switchboards are plugged in numbered holes; hands poised in readiness answer signals that flash in and out; minds alert for the prompt and accurate performance of a vital service; devotion to duty inspired by a sense of the public's reliance on that service, makes the effort of the employees who serve them. The switchboard cords with which 75,000,000 connections are established daily are but part of a vast network of facilities for linking in the bonds of speech those who are separated even by continent or ocean. The guardian operators are but a part of the army of telephone men and women, each vigilant to meet America's need for direct and personal communication.

E. E. Campbell, the residing pastor. Congratulations and best wishes are extended to the happy couple.

OUR NEW GRADUATES—

Each year we have the pleasure of welcoming into business and social life a new group of young folks who have just completed their high school education. Garrett county offers 89 of these young folks this year.

These graduates bring into active being an added impetus, a new life force that carries onward with vigor that none can deny the business and the social activities of the community.

Each line of endeavor into which this new energy is injected feels the onward urge and in the strides of progress made, shows the great value to the community at large which this vital force brings.

Youth-power, as examplified by the new graduates from our schools, is the basic hope of this community's future growth and prosperity.

FOR ANOTHER!

It would seem that Governor Smith of New York, has beaten James A. Reed in the West Virginia Democratic Presidential primaries by a small margin, while Senator Goff has nosed out Hoover in the Republican primaries.

If Goff has won, the victory is not for him, but another. Admitting his statement that he is not a stalking horse for anyone, it is still a foregone conclusion that he has no chance for the nomination, and that the delegates accredited to him must be delivered to some one else in the end.

Senator Goff has accomplished nothing but to assist the anti-Hoover politicians in their campaign.

Whether he is for Dawes, which he says he is not, he will eventually line up for some candidate who is put forward for no other purpose than to beat the Secretary of Commerce.

Like California's, West Virginia's vote suggests that the relative strength of the two parties has not changed materially since the last election. With equally interesting contests, the Republicans appear to have polled nearly twice as many votes as the Democrats.

Thus far primary votes have not shown any considerable drift from one party to the other. If they are to be taken as anything like an accurate index the Republicans are holding their strength. In spite of all the noise and dissension which have characterized several Republican campaigns, there is nothing to indicate a wide defection of votes. Even the farm revolt has gone no farther than to propose a march on Kansas City.

SOMETHING ABOUT ROUTE 40, NATIONAL HIGHWAY

3,205 Miles Long, Passing Thru Fourteen States, Was Recently Completed

The Federal Bureau of Roads has announced the completion of the national highway across the United States, known officially as Route 40.

It is 3,205 miles long and passes thru 14 states. Of the roadway in Bedford the Bureau report states "Crossing the Pennsylvania state line a short distance west of Keyser's ridge, Garrett county, the traveler passes over that portion of Rt. 40 made famous by Maj. George Washington, who was defeated by the French in the early Colonial days at Fort Necessity, a short distance south of Farmington. Just west of there, also, the grave of General Braddock, who was sent to retrieve Washington's defeat, and was mortally wounded in battle. It was upon the Old National Pike between Cumberland, Md., and Wheeling, then in Virginia, that the first extensive program in road improvement at the expense of the Federal government was begun in 1806. The completed road as far as Wheeling was thrown open to travel in 1818, and in that year U. S. mail coaches began operating between the national capital and the Ohio river at Wheeling.

The freight over the road in the early days was carried in Conestoga wagons. The drivers wanted a cheaper smoke, and in order to satisfy the demand George Black, an enterprising tobacconist of Washington, Pa., is said to have produced an elongated cigar which the drivers carried in the tops of their boots and which came to be known as a conestoga or stoga. The same kind of cigar as is now known as a Pittsburgh stogie. After the government completed the construction of the road it was maintained by turnpike companies and financed by collection of tolls. This method of highway finance, however, was never a success and the road gradually fell into disuse with the rise of the steam railway. The old inns and toll houses—the remnants of early travel—may still be seen in their modern form of automobile rest stations and hotels. The entire 81 miles of the route in Pennsylvania is paved.

NORTH GLADE.

Mrs. Max Ridder is ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fulk.

GARRETT COUNTIAN'S SON NOW RAPID FIRE ARTIST

Illinois Newspaper Tells of Work of A. L. Browning

The Sunday Pantagraph, a newspaper of Bloomington, Illinois, recently carried a story of A. L. Browning, a rapid-fire artist, and an industry in himself, who for 42 years has been creating nature's scenes with great rapidity.

The story is brought closer home when it is known that this A. L. Browning is the son of Allen Browning, who left Garrett county many years ago for the west. This same A. L. Browning is also the grandson of Meshac Browning, pioneer hunter. Following is the story:

A. L. Browning isn't an artist, he's an industry. Ten or 15 minutes in his studio, a down-town store window, will convince you of that for this man, who has been drawing pictures for 42 years, creates them with the speed of a modern factory and not with the painstaking meticulousness of an artist. Just while we stood and talked to him he painted three pictures in oils and was well started on his fourth one when we bid him goodbye.

For 42 years Browning has been creating nature's scenes with just such rapidity. Within a few days he will leave Bloomington for Colorado Springs where he will paint and sell his creations to the one million tourists who visit there each summer. Preceding him to Colorado Springs will be 3,750 picture frames that he will require for his art work this summer.

Lived Near Bloomington

An average af 30 pictures a day is what Browning estimates his art output since he began drawing 42 years ago. That was when he resided some 20 or 25 miles south of Bloomington on a farm and after a few years spent in drawing there he moved to the west. Since then he has been a traveler making stops for various lengths of time at summer and winter resorts. Of late years he has made his residence at Colorado Springs, Colo., Long Beach, Calif., and Mineral Wells, Texas. The summer he spends in Colorado and his winters he divides between California and Texas.

But always he continues to draw and his output as a result is tremendous. All of the scenes he reproduces are outdoor effects, mainly views he has seen in the west of mountains, waterfalls, valleys and winding roads. He says that he has memorized these scenes and reproduces them as accurately as a camera with the additional picturesqueness of color which he applies to the canvas liberally.

Never Took Lessons

Browning never took a lesson, he says. As a youth he was interested in drawing pictures and that mania has followed him through life. He drew naturally, just as some persons play musical instruments by instinct. Especially did outdoor scenes catch his eye and challenge his brush. To accurately draw outdoor scenes he spent months in the open, studying, remembering and analyzing the scenes that opened up before him in the west. He was helped in his wrok by what he calls "a photographic eye," he remembered every scene he studied, remembered it in every minute detail, its color, formation and appearance. That faculty enables him now to reproduce scenes almost automatically and with amazing speed.

He's an industry all right, this artist of 42 years experience. More than that he will be master of a twin industry soon as his son, Robert, has shown a decided inclination toward art work, even though he is only 12 years of age. In a few years, his father says, Robert will be painting as well as his father and then, states Mr. Browning, "we'll really start turning out pictures."

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. L. M'GLONE,
Resident County Agent,
Office, Court House.

Maryland Farmers Honored by University of Maryland.

Outstanding accomplishments of three Maryland farmers were recognized at the University of Maryland on Farmers' Day, May 26, when certificates of merit were presented to them by Dr. R. A. Pearson, president of the University. Those who received honors were Josiah W. Jones, Olney, Montgomery County; Humphrey D. Wolfe, Glenwood, Howard county, and M. Frank Holter, Middletown, Frederick county.

The honor was conferred on Mr. Jones because of his achievements in the field of rural leadership and organization, his ability as a practical livestock and grain farmer and particularly because of his public service in the cause of agriculture in his county and state. Mr. Jones has been president of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau for many years and has been the managing head of the Farm Bureau Cooperative Association which has been a most successful cooperative buying and selling agency for the farmers of Montgomery county.

The tribute to Mr. Wolfe was in recogniton of his accomplishments as a livestock husbandman, his unselfish efforts in the promotion of agriculture and his service in legislation. Mr. Wolfe was the State senator from Howard county for a number of years and was president of the Maryland Sheep Growers' Association for several years. In the latter capacity he took an active interest in promoting the sheep industry in the State and was particularly active in the auction sales held by the organization during his term of office

Recognition of Mr. Holter came as a result of his progressive and public spirited leadership, his achievements as a practical farmer and his interest and support of farm organization activities. Mr. Holter has been president of the Frederick County Farm Bureau since its organization and has been identified with practically every forward farm movement in the county.

Our Responsibility and Our Obligation

"The American Telephone and Telegraph Company accepts its responsibility for a nation-wide telephone service as a public trust. Its duty is to provide the American public with adequate, dependable and satisfactory telephone service at a reasonable cost."

WALTER S. GIFFORD,
(Bell System)

¶ This expresses the policy which has guided the Bell System from its beginning. By a strict adherence to it there has been created a great, nation-wide system of communication which has placed every city, town and hamlet in the United States within reach of every other city, town and hamlet.

¶ Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor, more than fifty years ago when the telephone was in its infancy, made the prophecy that such a nation-wide system would some day become a reality. It has become a reality, because from the very beginning of the industry down to the present time the management has continuously worked with this objective ever in mind.

¶ The very nature of the telephone business necessitates a single interconnected system. It is, therefore, without competition in the usual sense. This in itself imposes an exceptional responsibility and obligation, amounting to a public trust. Speculative profits have had no place in its development. Always the management has had before it the ideal of rendering a service as nearly perfect as possible, at rates as low as would be consistent with financial safety—thus to encourage the most wide-spread use of the service throughout the nation.

¶ The result is that today the United States, with only 6 per cent of the population of the world, has 60 per cent of the world's telephones. And at no time in the history of the industry has greater progress been made in the development of the telephone art than is being made at the present time.

Coast Call Benefits Representative Kahn

Talks to California While Her Opponent Argues in House

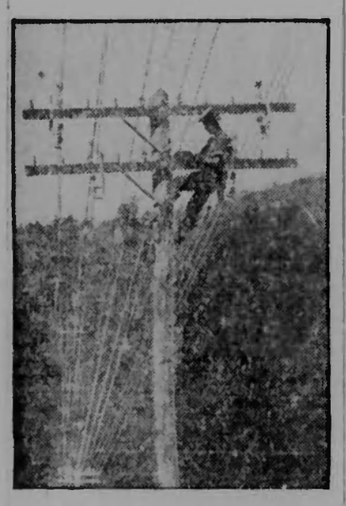
The speed with which transcontinental telephone calls are now being completed was emphasized just recently when Representative Florence Kahn at Washington used the long distance telephone to good advantage in defeating an amendment to the shipping bill then under consideration in Congress.



Mrs. Kahn, according to the Associated Press, learned during the consideration of the White shipping bill by the House that an amendment was to be offered to force the employment of Americans in the steward departments of Pacific liners. Less than 15 minutes later while Representative LaGuardia, of New York, was offering the amendment she was seeking the opinion of her constituents on the Pacific Coast over long distance.

"It would drive American commerce off the Pacific," they told her. "Americans cannot withstand the climatic conditions of the tropics."

When Mr. LaGuardia took his seat after discussing his amendment for 10 minutes, Mrs. Kahn presented California's contentions. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 44 to 51.

Transcontinental telephone calls are now being made over any one of three frontes and quick service is obtained by the recent establishment of direct transcontinental circuits extending from coast to coast.

TELEPHONES INCREASE 8000 SINCE DECEMBER 31

Telephones in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia are increasing steadily. Since January 1, 8,000 stations have been added to the system of The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company and Associated Companies, officials state. There are now about 570,000 telephones served from the 287 central offices in this area.

To provide circuits for connecting additional telephone stations and toll trunk lines between central offices, the Company plans to place about 100,000 miles of additional aerial wire in the plant during 1928.

TELEPHONE BRIEFS

Telephone users in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, territory served by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company and associated companies now average more than 3,000,000 local and toll calls each day. Telephone calls during the past year have increased 25 per cent over the number of telephones installed.

A new direct long distance telephone circuit recently placed in operation between Washington, D. C., and St. Louis is routed through practically storm-proof cable. Previous to the installation of this circuit telephone calls were switched at Chicago.

Maryland telephone users now make more than 46,000 out-of-town calls each twenty-four hours.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate owned by Andrew Snyder, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom.

The Bill states:—

That Andrew Snyder (Snider), late of Garrett County, Md., deceased, was in his lifetime and at the time of his death seized and possessed of a parcel of land situate,lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, the same being a part of a tract of land called "The Gleanings of Negro Mountain," comprising Military Lots Nos. twenty three hundred and forty-three (2343), twenty-three hundred and forty-four (2344), and containing the quantity of one hundred acres, being the same which was conveyed unto the said Andrew Snyder (Snider) by deed from Mary Snyder bearing date June 28th, 1897, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 42, folio 573, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, a certified copy of which said deed is herewith filed and marked "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1," and prayed to be taken and considered a part of this bill of complaint. That while so seized and possessed of said real estate the said Andrew Snyder (Snider) departed this life, intestate, at his home in Garrett County, Maryland, on or about the year 1907, leaving surviving him as his next of kin and heirs at law the following, to-wit: Adam Snyder, a son, who intermarried with Ada Snyder; Kate Stanton, a daughter, who intermarried with Thomas Stanton, said Thomas Stanton being non-compos mentis; Maggie Lohr, a widowed daughter; August Snyder a son, who intermarried with Mary E. Snyder, a son, who departed this life intestate in the year 1926, leaving surviving him as his only heirs at law the said Marshall C. Snyder, a son; Caroline Engle, a daughter, who intermarried with Henry Engle, and has since departed this life intestate, and leaving surviving her as her only heirs at law her said husband, Henry Engle, and the following children, to wit: Henrietta Hase, a daughter, who intermarried with Richard Hase; Anna Flury, a daughter, who intermarried with Frank Flury; Marie Morris, a daughter, who intermarried with William Morris; Charles Engle, a son, who intermarried with Dorcas Engle; and Laura E. Foy, a widowed daughter, all the above heirs being of full age.

That by deed dated April 10th, 1912, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 95, folio 222, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, the said August Snyder and Mary E. Snyder, his wife, conveyed to Lizzie Snyder, now deceased, all the interest of said August Snyder in said property except the minerals thereunder, a certified copy of said deed being filed as "Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 2."

That the improvements on the above land are not of great value but there is a valuable growth of timber on the same and it is also underlaid with a good vein of coal; that the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interest therein, and in order to make a division of the same it will be necessary that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof distributed according to law; that it would be for the benefit and advantage of all of said parties that said real estate be sold under the decree of this Court and the proceeds thereof distributed to those entitled to the same; that the said Adam Snyder, Henry Engle, Henrietta Hase, Richard Hase, Anna Flury, Frank Flury, Marie Morris, William Morris, Charles Engle, Dorcas Engle, Laura E. Foy and Henry Patton are non-residents of the State of Maryland, said Adam Snyder residing at Listonburg, Pennsylvania, the residence of Harry Patton being to your orators unknown, and the rest of the above named defendants residing in the State of Ohio; that the defendants Ada Snyder, Kate Stanton, Maggie Lohr, August Snyder and Mary E Snyder reside in Garrett County, Maryland; Thomas Stanton, non-compos mentis defendant, is confined in the Springfield State Hospital for the Insane at Sykesville, in Carroll County, Maryland.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of the real estate and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom and for general relief.

It is thereupon, this 21st day of May, 1928, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland once in each of four successive weeks before the 22nd day of June, 1928, giving notice to the said absent defendants, Adam Snyder, Henry Engle, Henrietta Hase, Richard Hase, Anna Flury, Frank Flury, Marie Morris, William Morris, Charles Engle, Dorcas Engle, Laura E. Foy and Harry Patton, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 9th day of July, 1928, to show cause if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

Not So Good

Scoop and the Col. are keeping their promise to give the readers a treat by showing drum major Hoffman as he appeared in the Memorial Day parade last week, but the exposure is not as good as they would have liked it. Bobbie, of course, was robed entirely in white but due to the dark day the white turned up black, if at all. They also realize that a profile view would have showed the drum major to better advantage, but they had to content themselves with what they got.

Needless to say, the Col. has been falling down on his photographic technique as witness this picture and the one last week of Henry Lauer.

On The March With Baton

Judson Loar was left clear out of the picture by the Col. He promises, however, to come to Bells' studio for a special sitting if he is assured that the cut will appear in print. The poze will be just as he appeared last week in his 976th parade.

Mystery Brought to Light

Wilbur Davis, another gas man, who also takes photography as a hobby, has exposed Col. Bell, and explains some of the pictures which have appeared heretofore.

Experimenting has brought Wilbur a number of interesting snaps of elephants at work, double exposures of himself as he argued with himself across the table, and others, and he has just confessed to being responsible for some of the pictures appearing in this column.

Scoop unsuccessfully tried to get one of these, but the Col., not to be outdone by any amateur, caught Wilbur at an opportune moment, at one of his favorite tasks, working on a glass filled with coco-cola, and presented Scoop with a masterpiece.

The large head is not because of any of the common causes of "swell head," but is the result of too much bromo seltzer and coco-cola.

"Bill" Sturgiss, Joseph Harned and Thomas Gonder, druggists, have been quoted as saying that bromo will do that little thing.

Another Councilman

In continuing the program of acquainting the townspeople with our councilmen, either the Col. or Wilbur (they both claim it) followed Delbert Davis around for three days in an effort to "take" the council's president. They had to use tact, as he wouldn't be "took" during working hours at the First National Bank. So one of the photographers, whichever one you choose, caught him last Wednesday morning about 2:30 a. m. as he was practicing his Memorial Day address with all the tombstones as audiences. He wanted practice on familiar stomping ground, so that he could get used to talking to the dead.

Delbert usually takes up the time at council meeting with trying to figure out just how he and the rest of the Legionaires are going to get that gun up on the Court house lawn. He has been trying to pass a motion to severely censure anybody who attempts to carry the gun away.

SHIRKERS AND WORKERS.

Galatians 6:5: Every man shall bear his own burden.

Down in old Virginia, on the farm where I used to spend the summer vacations as a boy, was a four-horse team which interested that boy very much. When they were drawing a heavy load of wood, up a stiff grade, this animal, every now and then, would craftily ease up on his traces and allow the other three to pull the entire load.

However, there was a watchful driver with the team; and when the brute's conscience did not lash him on sufficiently, there was a heavy whip that did.

You have seen horses like that one. And you have seen human being with the same trait of character—men and women—whose aim in life seems to be to shirk as much as possible of their share of the labor and drudgery of life.

Evidently human nature has always been pretty much the same. We gather from his writing that St. Paul was acquainted with just such people in his day. Christian churches then seem to thave been very much Christian churches today—a few faithful souls shouldering the entire burden of work and sacrifice while the majority of the congregation enjoy the benefits and blessings of the church without paying their share of the cost in labor and service.

St. Paul had to speak rather sharply in some of his letters to his churches. For instance, in his Epistle to the Galatians, he said, "Every man shall bear his own burden."

This is the law of simple, elementary justice—every man shall bear his own burden. And no law is more flagrantly violated. Not only in the church, but in every human organization, it seems to be the too common ambition to shift our burden to the other man's shoulders.

Perhaps the most pathetic instances are found in family life. It may be a faithful husband working himself into an early grave in a futile effort to satisfy the insatiable appetite for luxury of a butterfly wife. More often it is the faithful and unappreciated wife, the Cinderella mother of a joyriding family, rubbing the skin from her knuckles, rubbing the bloom from her cheeks, while her children flit gaily from one pleasure to another.

TRIAL OF RANDALL JONES RESULTED IN ACQUITTAL

Terra Alta Youth. Charged with Statutory Offense, Cleared By Jury Yesterday Afternoon

The criminal docket in the Circuit Court for Garrett County was called Monday morning with Judge Albert A. Doub presading and at the time of The Republican going to press Court was still in session and engaged in hearing and determining cases on that docket.

The most important, or at least, the case that attracted the most attention, to be tried at the present term was that of the State vs. Randall Jones, a 21-year old youth of Terra Alta, indicted for a statutory offense committed about two weeks ago at a point on the State highway between Oakland and Crellin, the prosecuting witness in the case being Miss Dorothy Dent, aged 19, at the time employed a sa nurse at the West Virginia State Sanatorium near Terra Alta. The court room was filled to capacity during the trial, with women predominating. Four witnesses were examined by the State while there were ten for the defense. Miss Dent related in a clear voice the events leading up to the alleged assault but claimed that she was unconscious at moment it occurred. She is an attractive blonde but failed to impress the jury with her story and after half an hour's deliberation that body rendered a verdict of not guilty.

The case was called Tuesday at noon but it was well along toward evening before a jury had been secured, more than fifty talismen having been summoned by the sheriff. Court remained in session until 10:15 Tuesday night and yesterday morning the case was resumed, the arguments being closed at noon.

Other matters appearing on the criminal docket and disposed of by the Court were as follows:

State vs. Wm. Shaffer, sale of liquor; two cases; stet by order of the State's Attorney.

State vs. Porter Wilson, indicted on the charge of malicious destruction or injury to a dwelling house located near Bloomington. It was shown in the trial of the case that a window pane had been broken in the building but by whom it was not made clear, whereupon the Court rendered a verdict of not guilty and took occasion to say that such petty matters should be disposed of by Justices of the Peace and not sent up to the Court thus involving considerable expense to the taxpayers.

Glenn Tasker and Harry Kimmell charged with Bernard Nally with the larceny of automobile tires from the power station,was heard by the Court. The cases against Tasker and Kimmell were stetted by order of the State's Attorney. Nally confessed to the theft and was paroled by the Court. Another case against Nally, that of burglary, was also disposed of when he entered a like plea of guilty and was paroled.

James Bray, indicted for the larceny of certain goods, confessed his guilt and was sentenced to the Maryland Penitentiary for the term of five years.

Theodore Stephens, of Oakland, entered a plea of guilty when he was arraigned upon an indictment charging him with burglarizing the store of Lewis Gortner in Oakland from which he carried a large lot of merchandise and hid it in an adjoining building, and later the same night entering the store of Harry Miller where he was captured by officers. He will serve eighteen months in the Maryland House of Correction.

Willis Shimminger entered a plea of guilty when his case was called. He was charged with the larceny of goods from a store building on the Western Maryland Railway. He will also serve eighteen months in the House of Correction.

Jake Bonner, whose mysterious disappearance from the jail at Thomas remains veiled, and who was wanted for various infractions of the law, especially that of larceny and burglary, was sentenced to three years in the Maryland Penitentiary. Bonner was first captured by a Western Maryland Railway officer and put in the jail at Thomas from which he escaped rather mysteriously. Later he was picked up by a local officer and has since been held in the Garrett County Jail.

Claude Keyser, indicted for the theft of automobile accessories belonging to Van Deems, prayed a jury trial and was found guilty. He will serve one year in the House of Correction.

Everett C. Friend will pay $7 a month for 14 years for the support of a child born out of lawful wedlock.

Elbert and Ellis Groves, manufacture of liquor, were tried before the Court and a verdict of guilty was rendered. They were fined $150 each and costs.

Peter Hoye, manufacture of intoxicants, fined $325 and costs after he had entered a plea of guilty to the indictment.

Andrew G. McKenzie, near Frostburg, also entered a plea of guilty when arraigned upon an indictment for a like offense and was given a like fine of $325 and costs.

Julius Jordan, near Oakland, manufacture of liquor, appeared as his own attorney tried his case before the Court and was found guilty. He was fined $250 and costs

Virginia May Coulter, sale of liquor, entered a plea of guilty to the indictment charging her with the offense and was fined $150 and costs.

Maude Beeman was indicted, plead guilty to the charge of making liquor and was paroled by the Court.

The trial of criminal cases will in all probability occupy the attention of the Court until Saturday. The trial of civil cases will be resumed on next Monday.

PROGRAM OF LORD'S DAY ALLIANCE IS OUTLINED

Will Be In Session at Mountain Lake Park, August 10, 11, 12

Plans for the program of the annual Lord's Day Alliance field day to be held at Mountain Lake Park, August 10, 11 and 12, were discussed at a meeting of 25 pastors, church officials and Sunday school superintendents in St. Paul's M. E. church, Oakland, Monday evening, at which Dr. W. W. Davis, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of Maryland, was present.

The program as arranged now includes the showing of a four-reel picture of the Fair of the Iron Horse on the 10th and 11th. On Sunday morning Dr. Davis will speak; Frank L. Bowman, Congressman, of Morgantown, W. Va., will speak in the afternoon of that day and U. S. Senator Neely of West Virginia will be the speaker on Sunday evening, giving the same address that he made before the U. S. Senate on Mother's Day which caused nation-wide comment.

The entire plans of the Alliance for this year were also discussed at the meeting and a county committee composed of H. V. Leighton, representing the laymen; Rev. C. A. Shilke, the ministers, and Rev. E. E. Campbell, the Sunday schools, was chosen.

Two Traffic Lights Now In Position

Two traffic lights have been erected on two busy corners of Oakland's downtown section and will hereafter be permanent fixtures, according to Mayor L. M. Fraley. The third light will be placed in position at an early date.

The lights have been placed at the intersection of Second and Liberty streets and Third and Oak streets. The third light will be suspended at the corner of Third and Alder streets.

The interval between the red and green lights is thirty seconds, Mayor Fraley said, and the lights will be in operation from seven in the morning until ten o'clock in the evening.

Persons motoring have had their attention directed to the lights the first two or three days of their operation by traffic officers, but after the public has become accustomed to the use of the lights the officers will be withdrawn from duty and the motorists and others will be considered as violating a city ordinance if they disobey the "red and green," the Mayor intimated.

Brookside Inn To Open Sunday.

Brookside Inn and Cottages, owned by Senator A. L. Allen, Morgantown, West Va., has been leased by the Tower-Boreland Operating Company, it has been announced, and will open for the reception of guests on Sunday, June 17.

The formal opening of this once very famous resort will occur on July 1. There will be catering to bridge and dance parties and all social functions, according to the manager. Music, moving pictures and other entertainment will be provided. A lake is being built also, it has been stated, and this when completed will afford ample space for boating and bathing, and the grounds surrounding the Inn will be illuminated by electric lights.

Mr. and Mrs. James Willison spent the week-end in Cumberland with relatives and friends.

FIRE FIGHTERS RECEIVE DONATION FROM CRELLIN

Third Contribution Follows Response to Alarm on Friday

Oakland Fire Department was in receipt of a check for $50 from the Stanley Coal Company at Crellin yesterday, the third contribution made by the same company to the volunteer company of firemen. This donation came after an answer to an alarm Friday morning of last week when a freight house at Crellin had caught fire from oil which had boiled over in a tank nearby and which was being utilized for road repair or improvement work.

The department responded promptly, arriving at Crellin within ten minutes following the call. The distance is four miles. The fire had been extinguished, however, before the local firemen had arrived.

"The Stanley Coal Company under the presidency of Mr. Charles W Ream, has always cooperated with the Oakland fire department," Walter W. Dawson, treasurer of the fire company said yesterday morning, "and we are only too glad to be of assistance whenever necessary. The Oakland fire department was organized for the purpose of reducing fire hazard and controlling the deadly menace, and will answer all calls at any time."

To Firemen's Convention.

Fire Chief George Kerns, Emroy Bolden, Fred Peddicord and Alva G. Gortner left here yesterday morning for Elkton, on the Eastern Shore, to attend the State Firemen's convention, which will be in session until tomorrow.

Boys' Band Needs Chairs in Practice Room

Having a full turnout of the members of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band and not having sufficient places for them to sit down is the problem of R. R. Gilbert, director, who claims that they could do much better if the band room was properly equipped.

"Anyone having a chair that they would like to donate for use in the band hall can get in touch with me," Mr. Gilbert said, "and we shall all be very grateful. The boys are working very hard now and it is a shame that some of them have to stand up every time they come to practice."

Cars In Collision Sunday; Occupants Noe Seriously Hurt.

A Studebaker touring car, owned by A. W. Helbig and driven by his son Richard, collided with a Ford, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Liller, Gormania, W. Va., at the intersection of the Oakland-Thomas highway and the Northwestern Turnpike, seven miles south of Oakland on Sunday afternoon.

Besides the driver the Studebaker was occupied by Billy Hinebaugh, Guy (Casey) Simmons, Harley Hersman, Clifford Brook and Charles Rexroad, all of whom escaped serious injury. The occupants of the Ford also escaped with only minor cuts and a few bruises.

It is said that the Ford car pulled in front of the Oakland car and the collision was unavoidable. The Ford was only slightly damaged, but the Studebaker had three of its wheels taken off and was otherwise badly wrecked.

Mrs. James Thompson, of Holiday's Cove, W. Va., arrived in Oakland on Saturday to visit her mother, Mrs. Anna Smouse, for some time. Mrs. Thompson was accompanied here by her sister, Miss Irene Smouse, who had been at Holiday's Cove for a few days.

RURAL WOMEN WILL GET SHORT COURSE HONORS

Eleven From The County To Attend Annual Session.

Eleven Garrett county women will attend the Rural Women's Short Course, which will open at the University of Maryland on June 18, according to Miss Elsie Benthien, home demonstration agent, at which time three of those making the trip and attending the sessions will be presented with certificates for attendance during the past four years.

Those who will attend the Short Course are Mrs. E. O. Fouch, Miss Dessie Rodeheaver and Miss Nellie Bittinger, Mt. Lake Park; Mrs. Wm. Frazee and Mrs. Susan Sellers, of Friendsville; Mrs. Merrill Henneberger, Oakland; Mrs. C. C. Beachy, Mrs. Cora Opel, Mrs. J. C. Stanton, Miss Christena Winterberg, Grantsville, and Miss Benthien. The party will leave Oakland on train No. 2, Monday, June 18.

"Master Farm Homemaker" will be the title conferred on two rural women of Maryland at special exercises to be held on June 21 in connection with the short course.

The plan for honoring the rural women for their achievements in home management is a national one, sponsored by the Farmer's Wife, a farm woman's magazine, in cooperation with the home demonstration department of the State agricultural extension service. The Maryland women who receive the honor this year will be the first in the State to be granted this recognition.

Other features of the Short Course will include the presentation of certificates to fifty-nine rural women who have attended the sessions during four years. Those from Garrett county to whom Dr R. A. Pearson, president of Maryland University, will present certificates are Mrs. E. O. Fouch, Mrs. James Urban Stanton and Miss Christine Winterberg.

ALL SHOULD TAKE PART IN CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

Mayor Fraley Urges Every Citizen to Participate In Work

The importance of every citizen of Oakland taking part in Clean-Up Week cannot be over-emphasized," Mayor L. M. Fraley said yesterday. "The proclamation which was printed in The Republican last week and is appearing again this week, if followed, would make this one of the cleanest towns in the State and it can be done. But everybody must have a part in the work."

The week of June 18 to 23 has been proclaimed as Clean-Up and Beautify Campaign Week, and in cooperation with the proclamation the City Council has provided trucks free of charge to property owners in which to haul all rubbish away after it has been raked up and placed conveniently for the truckmen to load it. Trucks will be at the disposal of residents on Friday, June 22.

The support of many public spirited citizens is back of the Mayor's proclamation and it is hoped that everyone in Oakland will fall in line.

Special Evangelistic Services at McHenry U. B. Church.

Rev. F. G. Radabaugh, district superintendent, will preach each night this week, and also Sunday morning and Sunday night in the U. B. church at McHenry. He will preach at Swanton U. B. church Sunday, June 17, at 3:00 p. m. All are invited to come and worship in these services.

ONE OF OAKLAND'S FIRST HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES WILL WITNESS HER SON'S GRADUATION ON JUNE 20

Mrs. Grover Stemple Was One of Three Who Received Diploma at First Commencement

The twenty-first annual commencement of Oakland High School, which will take place on Wednesday, June 20, will mark an era in the history of local commencements, for among the boys and girls to receive their diplomas will be a son of one of the first graduates of Oakland High School, namely, Robert Stemple.

From the files of The Republican of April 2, 1908, the following is obtained:

Invitations to the commencement exercises of Oakland High School, to be held in the opera house on Thursday evening, have been issued by the graduating class, which is composed of Misses Mahel Florence Porter, Ethel Mae Willt and Nelle Workman.

The young ladies, composing the class have the distinction of being the first to graduate from the high school, its establishment as such dating back six years.

For the occasion a very nicely arranged program has been provided, which will include addresses, vocal and instrumental music and the conferring of the diplomas

Two are still living of the first class of graduates, Mrs. Mahel Porter-Sollars and Mrs. Nelle Workman-Stemple. Miss Willt was accidentally killed several years ago.

Twenty years after the date of the first commencement exercises, one of the members of the first class will sit in the Maryland Theatre and witness the delivery to her son of a diploma, which is quite a distinction. It will be a thrill for the mother that can only be equalled in a lesser degree by the son.

Aged Grantsville Pair Will be Wedded This Week.

A marriage license was issued on Tuesday at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland, to Christian M. Lichty, aged 90 years, and Annie Elizabeth Wegman-Murphy, aged 74 years, both of Grantsville.

Both parties are well known in the Grantsville community. Mr. Lichty is the only Civil War veteran left in that immediate section and is still able to get around without much difficulty. Mrs. Murphy is also quite active, having taken care of her garden and premises for many years.

The exact date of the wedding has not been announced, but it is thought that it will occur at Grantsville on Sunday.

TWENTY-FOUR LICENSES ISSUED DURING THE WEEK

Fifteen of These Were Obtained On Last Saturday.

Twenty-four marriage licenses were issued during the week ending at noon at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, according to A. G. Ross, deputy clerk. Fifteen of the twenty-four issued this week were obtained on Saturday.

Five of the licenses granted were marked "don't publish," and two applicants were refused because of the applicants not having attained the proper age and the absence of the consent of their parents or guardians.

Lesson for June 17

THE CRUCIFIXION

LESSON TEXT—Mark 15:16-47.
GOLDEN TEXT—God commendeth His own love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Died for Us.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Christ Died for Our Sins.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Jesus Chose the Cross.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of the Cross.

I. Jesus Crowned With Thorns (vv. 16-20).

After Pilate had scourged Jesus he delivered Him to be crucified.

1. The crown of thorns (vv. 16, 17).

Knowing that Jesus had been condemned for claiming to be Israel's king they clothed Him with purple and crowned Him with a wreath of thorns. The crown of thorns typified the curse which He bore for man's sin (Gen. 3:17, 18).

2. Their salutation (v. 18).

They said, "Hail, King of the Jews." This they did in derision.

3. Their mock worship (vv. 19, 20).

They smote Him on the head with a reed, taunted Him and went through a performance of mock worship.

II. Jesus Crucified (vv. 21-41).

1. They led Him away to the place of crucifixion (vv. 21-23).

At first they compelled Him to bear His own cross, but when physical weakness made this impossible, they compelled Simon, the Cyrenian, to bear it for Him. It is beautiful to note that the son of this Cyrenian came to believe on Jesus (cf. Rom. 16:13). In all probability his being compelled to bear the cross was the means of his own salvation.

Christ's face was so marked by the thorns and cruel blows that "there was no form or comeliness" (Isa. 53:2). All this He endured for us. He drank this bitter cup to its very dregs, but refused to drink "the wine mingled with myrrh," which would have deadened His pain.

2. Gambling for the clothing of the Lord (vv. 24, 25).

Having nailed Him to the cross they gambled for the seamless robe under the very cross on which He was dying and in their heartless cruelty they sat down to watch Him die (Matt. 27:36).

3. The superscription (v. 26).

It was customary to place over the victim on the cross the name and crime of the offender. Though Pilate did this in mockery to vex the Jews, the title was absolutely true. He was indeed their king.

4. Between two thieves (vv. 27, 28).

This added to His shame. His identification with the two robbers was the fulfillment of the Scripture "and he was numbered with the transgressors" (Isa. 53:12).

5. The dying Savior reviled (vv. 29-32).

This reviling was engaged in by the passers-by, the chief priests and the thieves who were crucified with Him. In this nameless agony and shame they taunted Him by bidding Him come down from the cross, derisively saying, "He saved others, Himself he cannot save." He could not save Himself and others, so He chose to die to save others.

6. Darkness upon the land (v. 33).

This was at noonday. So shocking was this crime that nature threw around the Son of God a shroud to hide Him from the gaze of a godless company.

7. The cry from the cross (vv. 34-36).

When God laid upon Christ, His Beloved Son, the world's sin and turned His face from Him, there went out the awful cry of anguish, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

8. He dismissed His spirit (v. 37).

When the price of our redemption was fully paid, Jesus dismissed His spirit. No one took His life away from Him. He gave it up.

9. The rent veil (v. 38).

10. The Centurion's confession (v. 39).

He said, "Truly this man was the Son of God."

11. The lingering group of women (vv. 40, 41).

They who had lovingly ministered to Him in life were waiting to see where they could bury His precious body.

12. Jesus' burial (vv. 42-47).

Loving hands now took the precious body and laid it in Joseph's new tomb. This man, who did not consent to the foul treatment of the Lord, now risked his reputation and by his action makes a bold confession of the Lord.

Fear God

If we fear God we need never fear the devil, for he is a conquered foe. Into Christ's victory let us enter by faith, and in the boldness of the Lion of the tribe of Judah we shall be as bold as a lion.—Marsh.

Saintliness

No Christian man has any right to attempt to create saintliness of character by hiding himself from the activities of every-day life.—G. Campbell Morgan.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

O. H. S. Wonders.

All the students of Oakland High school are wondering why the senior play, which is being directed by one of the faculty members, should not be entitled "That's One on Ed," instead of "That's One on Bill."

Matchmaker Discovered.

Garrett county's champion matchmaker (not the lucifer type) has been discovered by Col. Bell, who widened his search during the past week for people who are being honored by having their pictures placed in this column, and it has been felt by the Colonel and Scoop that such a person should certainly be worthy of having his likeness appear herein. The Colonel brings the news that this particular matchmaker has ten to his credit during the past winter.

In his travels this week, the Colonel happened to be going in the direction of Gortner and from a reliable source it has been found that Shorty Gortner in his spare moments when trade was dull put thoughts of Dan Cupid into the minds of many an innocent youth.

This Is Shorty

Following the taking of the picture Shorty confided in the Colonel that he now regretted having given so much free advice because he never had anybody to loaf in his store anymore since he had persuaded them all to take the choice of a lifetime.

If Curiosity Killed

There would be a lot of Garrett county people placed in a six foot hole if the old saying were true about curiosity killing a cat, as witness the crowded court room during the trial of a case involving an alleged criminal assault upon a girl which occurred a short time ago with the trial of the case occupying the attention of the court during the present week.

Everybody is more than anxious to condemn people who are charged with committing crimes of this nature, yet if they were not committed there would be a lot of people disappointed when court convenes. And the more brutal the crimes are the larger the crowd and the more "kick" the crowd gets out of listening to the revolting testimony.

Collision Is Reported

An unknown party mounted on a rubber tired vehicle mysteriously crept upon Street Commissioner Michael Maroney one day last week as he was engaged in painting the curb stones at various corners with a brilliant red hue, and it is not known which was the most serious—the impact with the seat of the Commissioner's trousers or the thought that he had been struck by an automobile.

It is difficult to imagine what the thoughts of Michael must have been after dodging cars all the afternoon and just at the conclusion of his labors to step out in front of this two wheeled affair and get bumped.

Scoop and Col. Bell were called to the scene and had the principals in the affair go through the matter again so that the Colonel would be sure of getting a good "close-up."

Mike is out again following the accident and a few red marks are all

A True Picture of The Accident

that remain. The other party in the collision departed on his wheel, not realizing how near he had come to learning of Mike's efficiency as a landscape artist in decorating curb stones with a four inch paint brush and other odd jobs about town, such as laying sewer pipe, firing a furnace, cleaning ditches, building streets, cutting away brush and grass that will grow and accumulate in certain portions of the town, drive a cart, lay brick, boss his crew of fellow workmen and a thousand or perhaps ten thousand other things that go in the day's work as a public employe.

Another Councilor.

This week's view of Oakland's efficient City Council includes the last member of the body in its proper status, J. W. "Bill" Whorton. Contrary to the other members of the Council, Bill is one of the kind who sits and thinks on most occasions; on other occasions he just sits. But let Scoop say this, when Bill has anything to say about public matters he is not backward and he usually has good grounds for his argument.

When asked one time why he never said much during the sessions, Bill said he didn't know whether to sit still and let people think he was crazy or to get up and talk and prove it to them.

Bill's greatest feat is his attempt to put through a resolution to raise the wages of contractors within the city limits.

OBEY THE RED AND GREEN

There's an old proverbial saying and story about locking the born door after the horse is stolen.

Bringing the thought closer home, there is the story of the sewer line strung across the Youghiogheny in town which the mayor and council ordered closed to foot traffic—but not until after a little boy had fallen into the water from it and was drowned.

Bringing the same though just as close home but a little closer to the present time, we have the traffic lights erected on two of Oakland's busiest corners—this time, before any fatal or even serious accidents have occurred.

There has always been grave danger at these three intersections and had anyone been injured loud would have been the complaints of the citizens about the laxity of the council.

The lights have been placed there to prevent any such accidents. People may think they are being inconvenienced and may scoff at the uselessness of such signals, but they are placed in their respective positions for the safeguarding of life and limb and should be implicitly obeyed. At the most one can be delayed only thirty seconds and what is thirty seconds in the life of an automobilist? The thirty-second delay may be the means of preserving for many years the life of some little tot or of some one of mature years. So obey the green and red and there will be nothing to regret, except possibly the loss of a half minute in filling an engagement or arriving at your home for your lunch or dinner.

VOLUNTEERS—

Cooperation, an old word and a very trite one, nevertheless is expressive of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department and the Stanley Coal Company, Crellin, in their relations one with the other.

Within the past few months Crellin and other properties owned and controlled by the Stanley Coal Company has been visited by several fires the Oakland fire department being called and promptly responding in each instance, the runs being made in almost record-breaking time. The department answered the calls with no thought of reward, but with the lone thought of rendering aid to those whose properties were endangered. That's cooperation on the part of the fire company.

Tuesday, Walter W. Dawson, treasurer of the Oakland fire company, received a check from the Stanley Coal Company for $50, the third contribution from the same source within a short period of time. That shows real appreciation for what has been done and incidentally proves that not only the fire department is cooperative but also the people of Crellin and those who are in charge of the industrial activities at that town.

That's the proper spirit and is appreciated by every person in Oakland.

SIGN YOUR NAME.

The Republican was in receipt on Tuesday of a notice of a picnic to be held on July 4th, with the request that it be printed on the front page of the current issue. We were pleased to receive the notice but will be compelled to refrain from publishing it because there was no name signed to the notice nor other means that would lead to the identity of the person sending the notice in.

It seems like an endless task in educating the people to sign their names to all letters and communications sought to be published in the columns of The Republican. The author's name will not be published but it must appear on the letter or notice as an indication of good faith on the part of the writer.

This particular notice will be published next Thursday provided the writer will make himself known. If not, it must go the way of all anonymous publicity—into the wastebasket.

CLEAN UP OAKLAND—

June 18 to 23 has been designated by Mayor L. M. Fraley as clean-up week when rubbish piles, tin cans, ashes and other accumulations of rubbish may be removed from one's premises and the paint brush wielded over the buildings needing it.

Great advancement has taken place in the matter of bodily cleanliness since the first bathtub was put in operation on Christmas day, 1842, in the United States. Civic cleanliness dates back further than that, and it is rather a tradition that certain days of each year be set aside in which one's property may be cleaned up and made beautiful.

Oakland needs cleaning up, and Clean-Up Week will be a good time in which to do it. There will be something for every one to do, and as Mayor Fraley says, "Let us all strive to make our community the cleanest town in our State in 1928."

Leesburg, Florida, the Watermelon Capital of Central Florida, Says Mr. Burt Wilson in a Letter to The Republican.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Leesburg is the watermelon capital of Central Florida. Shipments this week will total about 4000 carloads. The growers have had a hard fight for a crop with so much cold weather during March and April and the insect pests following. They have earned the million or more dollars this week's shipments will bring.

All kinds of farm products are plentiful this time of the year, but the long, hot summer has begun and a few more weeks will find good fruits and vegetables scarce here and just when everything is most plentiful in Maryland, it is the "tin can season" in Florida, because the best kind of vegetables will not produce in the hot sand sof Florida during the summer months.

Next week we will be moving back to our home in Garrett county, and although we may wander and spend most of our time in other parts of the country we hope Maryland will be home to us for many years yet to come. BURT WILSON.

Leesburg, June 5, 1928.

The club has under construction across the Youghiogheny River from Crellin a 200-yard rifle range. A huge backstop will be constructed and it won't be long before one may hear the guns cracking. Our Responsibility and Our Obligation

"The American Telephone and Telegraph Company accepts its responsibility for a nation-wide telephone service as a public trust. Its duty is to provide the American public with adequate, dependable and satisfactory telephone service at a reasonable cost."

WALTER S. GIFFORD,
(Bell System)

¶ This expresses the policy which has guided the Bell System from its beginning. By a strict adherence to it there has been created a great, nation-wide system of communication which has placed every city, town and hamlet in the United States within reach of every other city, town and hamlet.

¶ Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor, more than fifty years ago when the telephone was in its infancy, made the prophecy that such a nation-wide system would some day become a reality. It has become a reality, because from the very beginning of the industry down to the present time the management has continuously worked with this objective ever in mind.

¶ The very nature of the telephone business necessitates a single interconnected system. It is, therefore, without competition in the usual sense. This in itself imposes an exceptional responsibility and obligation, amounting to a public trust. Speculative profits have had no place in its development. Always the management has had before it the ideal of rendering a service as nearly perfect as possible, at rates as low as would be consistent with financial safety—thus to encourage the most wide-spread use of the service throughout the nation.

¶ The result is that today the United States, with only 6 per cent of the population of the world, has 60 per cent of the world's telephones. And at no time in the history of the industry has greater progress been made in the development of the telephone art than is being made at the present time.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad but loving memory of my dear little boy, Russell Harbert Wilt, who departed this life June 18, 1922:

Today recalls sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And the one who thinks of him today
Is the one who loved him best.

Rest in peace, dear Russell—
Six long years have passed away;
You are gone but not forgotten,
As I think of you each day.

What happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still;
But they have left me an aching heart
The world can never fill.

But again we hope to meet thee
When the day of life is fled
And in heaven with joy to greet thee
Where no farewell tears are shed.

Oh how sweet it will be in that beautiful land
So free from all sorrow and pain,
With songs on our lips and harps in our hands
When we meet one another again.

HIS MOTHER.

WHY MISSIONS?

Matthews 28:18-9. All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations baptizing them in the name of the Father and the Son and of the Holy Ghost.

Let us suppose that the Master did not utter these words. Suppose He did not lay this great commission so emphatically upon the consciences of His followers. Suppose He merely said to them, "All that you need to do is to be honest, and love your neighbor and let charity begin at home, and end there. That is all that is required of a Christian."

Suppose that St. Peter and St. John and the members of the early church had said, "We don't believe in foreign missions; there is enough work for us to do here in Jerusalem."

Suppose that St. Paul, seeing in a vision a man beseeching him to "come over into Macedonia and help us," had replied, "No; there are thousands still to be converted in Asia; I cannot cross the sea to Europe to take the message there."

Suppose that nobody had ever believed in foreign missions. Christianity would have remained a Jewish sect, a cult of Palestine. We today should still be worshipping the gods of our remote Nordic ancestors of the European forests. We should be sacrificing our sons and daughters upon the altars of Odin and Thor. Our only comfort and hope would be the grim Valhalla of the dead.

But, thank God! we have the Christian Church; we have the Christian Bible; we have the Christian home; we have at least the basis of a Christian civilization and we have Jesus Christ.

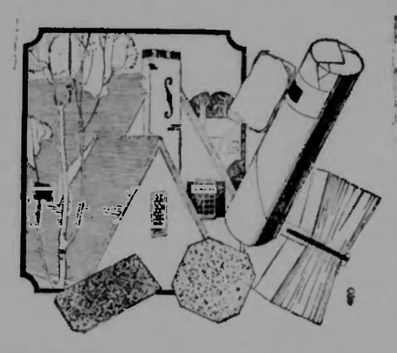
Why? Because of foreign missions.

We enjoy the blessings of the Christian religion today because Paul went from Jerusalem to Rome, and Augustine from Rome to England, and the Pilgrims from England to America.

"And now shall we, who are the children of foreign missions, turn against our mother and hinder her in her ministry to other children? This would be ingratitude and selfishness comparable with that of attempting to shut the air and rain and sunshine off from every part of the globe except our own."

The only way that we can attempt to pay back the immeasureable debt which we owe to the great religious pioneers of the past is by ourselves making our effort and our sacrifice to carry the light which has brightened our lives and gladdened our hearts to the millions who still sit in darkness and the shadow of death.

If a man says that he doesn't believe in foreign missions, what he is really saying is that he doesn't believe in Jesus Christ, who loved and died for all mankind, and whose last command to each and all of His disciples is, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."



Miss Dorothy Teets, of Newark, N. J., is spending a few days here with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Teets.

No. 2816 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate owned by Andrew Snyder, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom.

The Bill states:—

That Andrew Snyder (Snider), late of Garrett County, Md., deceased, was in his lifetime and at the time of his death seized and possessed of a parcel of land situate, lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, the same being a part of a tract of land called "The Gleanings of Negro Mountain," comprising Military Lots Nos. twenty-three hundred and forty-three (2343), twenty-three hundred and forty-four (2344), and containing the quantity of one hundred acres, being the same which was conveyed unto the said Andrew Snyder (Snider) by deed from Mary Snyder bearing date June 28th, 1897, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 42, folio 573, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, a certified copy of which said deed is herewith filed and marked "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1," and prayed to be taken and considered a part of this bill of complaint. That while so seized and possessed of said real estate the said Andrew Snyder (Snider) departed this life, intestate, at his home in Garrett County, Maryland, on or about the year 1907, leaving surviving him as his next of kin and heirs at law the following, to-wit: Adam Snyder, a son, who intermarried with Ada Snyder; Kate Stanton, a daughter, who intermarried with Thomas Stanton, said Thomas Stanton being non-compos mentis; Maggie Lohr, a widowed daughter; August Snyder a son, who intermarried with Mary E. Snyder, Lizzie Snyder, a daughter, who intermarried with a certain Harry Patton, and has since died intestate, and leaving surviving her as heirs at law, Lulu Belle Finks, a daughter, who intermarried with I. B. Finks, and her said husband, Harry Patton, whose present place of residence is unknown; Frederick L. Snyder, a son, who departed this life intestate in the year 1926, leaving surviving him as his only heirs at law the said Marshall C. Snyder, a son; Caroline Engle, a daughter, who intermarried with Henry Engle, and has since departed this life intestate, and leaving surviving her as her only heirs at law her said husband, Henry Engle, and the following children, to wit: Henrietta Hase, a daughter, who intermarried with Richard Hase; Anna Flury, a daughter, who intermarried with Frank Flury; Marie Morris, a daughter, who intermarried with William Morris; Charles Engle, a son, who intermarried with Dorcas Engle; and Laura E. Foy, a widowed daughter, all the above heirs being of full age.

That by deed dated April 10th, 1912, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 95, folio 222, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, the said August Snyder and Mary E. Snyder, his wife, conveyed to Lizzie Snyder, now deceased, all the interest of said August Snyder in said property except the minerals thereunder, a certified copy of said deed being filed as "Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 2."

That the improvements on the above land are not of great value but there is a valuable growth of timber on the same and it is also underlaid with a good vein of coal; that the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interest therein, and in order to make a division of the same it will be necessary that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof distributed according to law; that it would be for the benefit and advantage of all of said parties that said real estate be sold under the decree of this Court and the proceeds thereof distributed to those entitled to the same; that the said Adam Snyder, Henry Engle, Henrietta Hase, Richard Hase, Anna Flury, Frank Flury, Marie Morris, William Morris, Charles Engle, Dorcas Engle, Laura E. Foy and Henry Patton are non-residents of the State of Maryland, said Adam Snyder residing at Listonburg, Pennsylvania, the residence of Harry Patton being to your orators unknown, and the rest of the above named defendants residing in the State of Ohio; that the defendants Ada Snyder, Kate Stanton, Maggie Lohr, August Snyder and Mary E. Snyder reside in Garrett County, Maryland; Thomas Stanton, non-compos mentis defendant, is confined in the Springfield State Hospital for the Insane at Sykesville, in Carroll County, Maryland.

BREAKS ALL RECORDS FOR THE PAST FIVE YEARS

In May, Durant Plants shipped 18,125 cars, exceeding April by 15.4% and the best previous record since 1923 by over 29%.

This is no chance occurrence—it is a result of consistent gains begun last Fall, when the main plant at Elizabeth, New Jersey, broke all records for September, October and November.

March, April and May have exceeded the best previous three months' total for all time at the Elizabeth Plant by 57%.

At the close of business of each of these months there have been more unfilled orders on hand than ever before in the company's history. Even with this record-breaking May production the same condition holds true.

THIS BRILLIANT SUCCESS IS UNIVERSAL

In California*

One of the world's most critical buying markets, the Durant line was FIRST or tied for first place in 72 cities and towns in the month of April; SECOND or tied for second place in 47 cities and towns.

In New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Detroit*

Key cities of the Industry, Durant showed a gain of 44.9% in registrations for the first three months of 1928 over the corresponding period of 1927.

In All States*

Durant showed a gain of 19% for the first three months of 1928 over the corresponding period of 1927 in spite of the lost time due to getting new models into dealer's hands after January 1st.

In Foreign Countries

April broke all previous export sales records, and shipments for the first four months of 1928 showed an increase of 30% over the same four months period of any other year.

Now, May 1928, has surpassed May 1927 by 360%.

April state registrations are the latest available.*

There certainly must be a reason for this continued expression of universal public confidence and approval for Durant Products—Fours, Sixes and Trucks—$595 to $1550, f. o. b. Lansing, Mich.

There is an eager purchaser waiting for every Durant car. Have you driven one?

Western Maryland Forests.

Garrett county, with 274,483 acres of timberland, is the greatest forested area in the State of Maryland. Allegany county has 128,322 acres of timberland on its mountains, hills, and ridges, comprising sixty-two per cent of all the land in that county.

This and other interesting data, especially forest fire protection, has been compiled by District Forester C. Cyril Klein, with headquarters in Cumberland, in his report to the State Forester and the Allegany County Commissioners. Mr. Klein is being transferred June 15 to College Park, to take charge of the State tree nursery.

Wardens Guard Wooded Areas.

The Western Maryland forestry district comprises Garrett, Allegany, Washington and Frederick counties, with a total of 574,758 acres of timberland.

Over 200 fire wardens, of which 52 are in Allegany county with eight look-out towers and "smoke chasers" are constantly on watch to combat destructive fire losses in the woods.

In former years, little attention was paid to the annual devastation and loss by forest fires, but with the disappearance by cutting in lumber operations, of tremendous stands of timber, the need of organized work against fire losses and reforestation has become a necessity.

With the assignment of Mr. Klein as District Forester, in Western Maryland, twenty-three additional fire wardens were appointed, and two "smoke chasers," one in eastern and one in Western Allegany county, were assigned to look-out duty. From 1922 Mr. Klein has been in charge of forestry work east of Prince George county line in central Maryland.

Railroad Fire Hazard Act

The work of forest fire protection has been greatly aided by the passage of the "Railroad Fire Hazard Act in 1924." This law requires the railroads to clear up for a distance of 100 feet measured horizontally from the outer rail, when such tracks that go through any wood or forest land within the State.

Through co-operation of the railroads, the location and inspection of these strips or "hazards" has required the travel by speeder or motor car of over 1,000 miles over various railroads in the district. The strips were located, mapped and permission secured from the owner to clear it by the Forestry Department. The rail lines have done the actual cleaning.

Ninety-six per cent of the strips that have been located were cleared this spring. It is interesting to note the success of this law, since 85 per cent of the railroad fires reported in Western Maryland this spring, were on the remaining five per cent of "hazards" that were not properly cleared of all inflamable material.

Reforestation A Major Work

Reforestation has been one of the major activities in the district. A total of 20,000 trees have been planted this spring. 7500 were planted on Shriver hill, Cumberland, by the Boy Scouts under the auspices of the Cumberland Monarch Club. A recent inspection of the trees planted shows a survival of 98 per cent at this time. Many of the trees have made a growth of four inches since planted. It is planned to continue this work this fall.

County Forest Fire Loss

There have been reported in Allegany county during the spring fire season up to the present time, seventy fires, which burned over 2936 acres and cost the county $1,068.40 to bring them under control. One half of this amount will be refunded to the county by the State. While the fires this year were larger than last year, 1927 was a very damp season and there was practically no fire danger as far as climatic conditions are concerned. The spring of 1928 was about equal to the spring of 1926, when 14,235 acres of land were burned over as compared to 2936 acres in 1928. The size of the average fire in 1926 was 182.5 acres compared to 42 acres in 1928. (The size of the average fire is the best way to judge the success of a fire organization, and these comparisons show the improvement since 1926.) The cost of the suppressing the fire in Allegany county was $2,638.07 in 1926 as compared to $1,061.49 in the spring of 1928 up to the present time.

To carry out this work, secure co-operation from hunters, picnic parties and land owners, in the Western Maryland district, sign posts have been erected every two miles over 300 miles of State Road. These signs are 16 x 26 inches and are made by the towermen during damp and rainy weather and erected by the District Forester in the summer months.

It has been found that the building of fires and cast away "stumps" of cagarets by automobilists and picnic parties who go away leaving live sparks In the woods, contribute materially each year to forest fires. In many states, the smoking In heavily wooded stretches along public roads is forbidden, and State Hlghway patrolemen ride along and enforce the "no smoking" ukas.

Judging from the number of people gathering dandelions, the Department of Agriculture must have predicted a failure of the grape crop this year.

Harry Friend, from Evans' garage, says the 1929 Fords will have square wheels so that they will be able to climb steps. We suppose this is so they can he put to bed.

It's a funny thing about dandelions. We used to cuss them; now they are our most popular flower.

William Frazee tells us he gets better than thirty miles from a gallon of AMOCO-GAS. Everyone speaks well of this gas and if they have not already tried it they are missing a treat that is coming to them.

SCENES OF CHILDHOOD DAYS.

You may sing the song of Rosa Lee
And talk of Daisy Dean,
Or Burns' lads and lassies gay
Who sported on the green,

But sing to me of old crossroads
At the foot of Walbert's Hill
Where Bear Creek rushed her tireless waves
To turn the Weller Mill.

You may sing of Sweet Alice Ben Bolt
And the Shade of the Old Apple Tree,
Or where the River Shannon flows
Beyond the dark blue sea.

But sing to me of the old Flatwoods
And the song of the whipporwill
Where the bob-white whistles down the lane
And the sheep bells on the hill.

O, take me back to the old crossroads,
To the scene of my childhood days
Where I watched the sun descending
In the evening's purple haze.

Yes, take me back to the friends of yore,
Though few yet remain,
Each Sunday at the village church
Their worship still retain.

And there within its sacred walls
May I hear their songs of praise
And from the Walbert hilltop view
The scenes of childhood days.

—J. W. Kimmell.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 52. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, JUNE 21, 1928. NUMBER 18.

HOOVER AND CURTIS ARE REUBLICAN NOMINEES

Secretary of Commerce and Missouri Senator to Bear Party Standards in November

Herbert Hoover, of California, wartime food administrator and for the past Seven years Secretary of Commerce under Presidents Harding and Coolidge, was nominated for the presidency of the United States on the Republican ticket on the first ballot last Thursday night at the Republican National Convention held in Kansas City, Mo.

Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, was chosen as the vice-presidential candidate on Friday by a unanimous vote.

Although the selection of Mr. Hoover to head the ticket had been forecast for days in advance, the proportions of his victory did not become apparent until the call of the roll was actually under way. It was in the presence of an impressive and colorful outpouring of political enthusiasm that the Secretary was entrusted with the standard of his party.

Mr. Hoover, a native of Iowa, was born at West Branch, the son of a blacksmith, on August 10, 1874. Mr. Curtis, born in Kansas, lived his early boyhood years among the Kaw Indians.

America's Most Useful Man

Hoover has been called the most useful man of the age. His broad experience gained in the technique of engineering is supplemented by the varied experiences of peace and war, political and economical. He is said to be responsible for the saving of many thousands of lives when famine was threatening war-torn Europe, by his wise administration of the food supply.

Herbert Hoover lifted the office of Secretary of Commerce to a position of vital importance and inaugurated an administrative regime that is unequaled by that of any other government. His plan of procedure is the presentation of all the facts, fortified by technical information and an inspired vision of results. He has demonstrated in a remarkable way the power of personal service. No task was too toilsome, no difficulty too great, no discouragement too overwhelming. He believes in the omnipotence of that which is right. His creed is the golden rule of truth, justice and mercy and he practices his belief.

Boys' Band To Play Soon on Four Occasions.

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band has been engaged to play on three occasions within the next month or two, and will also give a concert at Rainbow Inn on Sunday, June 24, R. R. Gilbert, director, announced yesterday.

The band will play at a lot sale on Deep Creek Lake and for a Fourth of July picnic at Rowlesburg, W. Va, and will entertain in the Maryland Theatre during one doy of the State Grange meeting, Wednesday, August 15th.

The members of the band were presented with white duck trousers last Saturday evening by G. A. Fraley & Sons, Oakland merchants.

"Three chairs have been donated during the week," Mr. Gilbert said. "No more music has been forthcoming, however, but it is hoped that both music and furniture will be in evidence at the next meeting of the band."

REV. W. B. BROCK MAKES BACCALAUREATE ADDRESS

Points Out Cost of Education and Calls on Students to be Builders of New America

A realization of what education has cost each individual pupil and each teacher was pointed out Sunday night by Rev. W. B. Brock, pastor of Garrett Memorial Presbyterian Church, in the baccalaureate sermon to the graduates of Garrett County High schools, at the Maryland theatre.

His address in part follows:

Did you ever stop to wonder what the purpose might be of the long years which you have spent in school? Your education has been very costly. It has cost you something. It has cost you much painful effort. It has cost you hundreds of hours that might have been more pleasantly spent in the woods or on the lake.

You know what it cost you; do you realize what it has cost others? Do you appreciate the immense amount of consecrated toil and intelligence that your teachers have put into your education? Do you appreciate the sacrifice of your parents, yes and the sacrifice of every tax-payer of the community who has denied himself to furnish the large sums of money necessary for the upkeep of our schools? The people of America spend more than a billion dollars every year for their public school system.

What is the purpose of this tremen-

THREE CHARGES AGAINST HERSMAN AFTER CRASH

Fines Total $106 With Costs of Trial Following Collision Sunday Night on Oak Street.

Following a collision Sunday night about eleven o'clock between a Chevrolet coupe and an Oldsmobile coupe at the corner of Sixth and Oak streets in Oakland, Earl Hersman, of near Deer Park, a youth of about nineteen, driver of the Chevrolet, was arrested and placed in jail on three charges, namely, reckless driving, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and of carrying concealed weapons. The arrest was made by Deputy Thomas Seymour.

Monday morning Hersman was given a hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder and was fined $1 and costs on the first charge, $100 and costs on the second and $5 and costs on the third. In default of payment of the fine and costs he was remanded to jail but later in the day the fines were paid and he was released.

Ross Shaffer, Rowlesburg, W. Va., driver of the Oldsmobile car, testified that he was returning to his home from Keyser and at the point on Oak street where the collision occurred, the Chevrolet car, which had been parked on the same street, suddenly turned out into the street from the curb and being so near a collision was unavoidable.

Hersman was seen to take a sack from the rear of the car he was driving and disappeared up Sixth street toward an alley. Deputy Sheriff Seymour arrived about the same time and the youth, it is said, attempted to use steel knuckles on the officer to avoid being arrested. He was captured, however, and taken to jail. Upon the return of Officer Seymour he found two bottles of what was alleged to have been home brew and which Hersman had failed to destroy. These bottles and their contents were used as evidence at the trial on Monday.

The car driven by Hersman is said to have been the property of John Browning, of near Thayerville.

The occupants of the Oldsmobile, Mr. and Mrs. Shaffer, of Rowlesburg, and Miss Melissa Shultz, of Keyser, W. Va., were unhurt.

Only 21 Reactors in 3,057 Cattle Tested

Only 21 reactors in 3,057 cattle subjected to the tuberculin test in Garrett county are the latest figures available from the office of J. L. McGlone, county agent. This percentage is still by far the best in the state, Mr. McGlone said.

Dr. D. E. Poe and Dr. M. H. Trout, veterinarians of the Department of Agriculture, have been making the tests during the past ten or eleven weeks and are still engaged in the various parts of the county.

Lutheran Day to be Held This Year on July 31.

Lutheran Day at Mountain Lake Park will be observed this year on the afternoon of July 31, and it is said that an unusually fine program is being arranged for the event.

Cline, Jr., of Fairmont, will be present and bring greetings from the Synod of West Virginia. The Loysville band will furnish the music.

The local committee on arrangements is composed of Rev. C. A. Shilke and Benj. H. Sincell, of Oakland, and Dr. Vorberg, of Keyser.

No Serious Injuries Result In Two Collisions

Two automobile collisions, with no serious results occurred during the past week, one taking place Sunday afternoon at Deep Creek Lake, when Rev. I. M. Middaugh of Mt. Lake crashed into the Dodge sedan owned by Edward C. Lawrence, which was parked along the side of the highway. Rev. Middaugh's car was damaged quite badly and the Lawrence car had the rear fenders bent and one tire torn off. The occupants of the Middaugh car were badly shaken up but no one was seriously hurt.

The second wreck occurred Sunday night near the Casteel farm, a mile north of Oakland, when a Nash coupe owned by a telegraph operator named Clatterbuck, of Deer Park, collided with a Durant car driven by M. McRobie. Both cars were damaged considerably but the occupants were not badly hurt.

JONAS CROWE DIES FROM FRACTURE OF HIS SKULL

Was Caught Beneath a Falling Tree In Storm—Herd of Cattle Killed by Lightning

Struck by the limb of a falling tree during the windstorm which passed over this section on Tuesday afternoon, Jonas Crowe, of Gortner, 31-year-old farmer of that section of Garrett county, died yesterday afternoon at the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, from a fracture of his skull.

Killing thirteen head of two-year old steers, a part of a herd of cattle belonging to George W. Harvey, of the Ryan's Glade section, valued at $100 each, uprooting sixty of his sugar maple trees, partially destroying the Gortner school house and doing other property damage to barns, silos, orchards and timber, a wind and rain storm of small tornado proportions swept through portions of Garrett county Tuesday afternoon. In addition to the above wire communication was interrupted and roads in every direction were blocked by fallen trees.

Mr. Crowe, who has been residing in the Gortner section of the county for several years past, having purchased the Thomas Sanders farm in that locality, was attending the closing exercises of the Swan Meadow or Gortner school with his family. His seven-year old son was a participant in the program, when the storm struck that section. A community dinner had been prepared and the children of the school with their parents and several invited guests from Oakland were just in the act of partaking of the dinner. Mr. Crowe, fearing that a horse attached to his buggy in which he had driven to the school building would become frightened and run away, hurried from the building to hitch the horse to a tree when he was caught beneath a heavy limb torn loose from the trunk by the terrific wind. He was brought to Oakland by Mayor Fraley who with Mrs. Fraley, were guests at the community dinner, and was later taken to the Cumberland hospital by Dr. N. I. Broadwater where an operation was performed by Dr. Gracie. Besides his widow, Mr. Crowe is survived by three children: Ross, aged seven; George, five, and Blanche, two years old. The body was brought to Oakland last night and funeral arrangements will be completed today.

A portion of the roof of the school building was torn away when one of the two giant oaks standing within the school lot fell upon it. A large number of children were in the building at the time but none were injured. Miss Virginia Casteel, of Oakland, is teacher.

In Oakland a large tree standing on Second street between Oak and Water streets, was uprooted and in falling carried down many electric and telephone wires.

Lightning Strikes.

Thirteen of a herd of cattle on the Alex. Kitzmiller farm, in the Ryan's Glade section, had taken shelter beneath a tree when lightning struck the tree, killing them all. The cattle were two-year olds and were owned by Mr. George W. Harvey, a live stock farmer of that section. Mr. Harvey also lost the greater portion of his sugar maple grove when the wind blew sixty of his best trees down.

Trees Block Roads

On the Oakland-Thomas road and the Northwestern Turnpike fifty massive trees were reported as having been blown over and blocked traffic, while in the orchards of farmers a large number of trees were uprooted.

The silo of Ellsworth Moon was also blown down and several barns were more or less damaged.

Heavy rains and strong wind was reported from the Accident section, but with no serious damage resulting

Rain was much heavier hut the wind less strong in the section of Thomas, W. Va. The cinder streets in that city were almost entirely washed away by the force of the water.

Telephone service was cut off between Crellin and Oakland, and a falling tree broke one of the main gas lines near Kingwood, W. Va., one of the roots having been underneath the pipe.

The heaviest rainstorm in sixteen years caused heavy damage in the Cumberland Valley, near Hagerstown, where bridges, railway tracks and telephone poles were washed away. Farm crops suffered somewhat from the rain and wind which seemed to center in these sections.

COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM RENDERED LAST EVENING

Forty Seniors Receive Diplomas —Rev. C. E. Wehler Gives Commencement Address

With the Maryland Theatre jammed to its very doors with parents and friends, the forty seniors of Oakland High school received their diplomas at the twenty-first commencement exercises held last night, and heard Rev. C. E. Wehler, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Frederick, and formerly dean of Hood college, ably deliver the commencement address.

Rev. Wehler centered his talk around the four strings of a violin, what they stood for, and amplified each one of them. "G" was for God, "A" for achievement, "E" for education, and "D" for devotion.

The presentation of diplomas and awards was made by H. A. Loraditch, president of the Board of Education. Miss Dorothy Stevenson was given an award for winning first place in the Fraley Declamation contest, and Thomas Gonder was awarded a prize for having won second place in the Davis Declamation contest. Quite a few were given certificates for having been neither absent nor tardy during the year. Miss Lola King, graduate in 1927, was given special mention as having gone four years without missing one day.

An inspection of the records of the forty graduates shows that seventeen are from places other than Oakland. Following the presentation of diplomas, F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, made a plea to the parents to allow their boys to continue their high school education as the graduating class was not evenly divided on that score.

A group picture of the seniors was taken after Rev. G. L. Baggett had pronounced the benediction.

Class Night Exexrcises Held.

The class night program on last Friday evening consisted of the class song and the presentation of the play "That's One on Bill," a youthful 3-act comedy given under the direction of Miss Karin Stenholm.

Those in the cast included Denver Sanders, Kenneth Stahl, Jams Dodge, Elwood Hauser, Robert Stemple, Lavona Blamble, Evelyn Bosley, Erva Ashby, Mary Grace Shirer and Marie Zimmerman. Other members of the senior class made up the choruses which presented several novelties between the acts.

The Oakland Orchestra played for both entertainments.

dously costly process? Surely its purpose is to train you for more effective eitizenship, to fit you to carry toward completion the great unfinished task of democracy. Your school is a forge in which you have been fashioning the tools with which you may help to build a more perfect nation.

O beautiful for patriot dream
That sees beyond the years,
Thine alabaster cities gleam
Undimmed by human tears.
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea!

Whether or not the patriot dream shall become a reality depends upon you. May your soul thrill with the meaning of this hour! May you here dedicate yourselves to the purpose of it all! May you from this time forth be builders of the New America—a land of reverence for law, human and divine; a land of justice where none shall prey upon others; a land of plenty, where vice and poverty shall cease to fester; a land of brotherhood where honor and success shall be given only to genuine service and achievement; a land of peace, in a world of peace, where order shall rest, not upon force, but upon faith and fellowship and good will between all the nations of the world.

Preceding the sermon was the processional march of the graduates, the invocation by Rev. Paul Linaweaver, and a song by all those present.

Following the sermon, another song was sung and the benediction pronounced by Rev. W. J. McVeigh.

Lesson for June 24

REVIEW—JESUS THE SAVIOR

GOLDEN TEXT—Choose you this day whom ye will serve.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches How to Listen.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning to Listen.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus our Lord and Savior.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Son of God With Power.

For senior and adult classes a good method of review will be to study the principal facts and give the leading teaching of each lesson. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for April 1.

Before going to the cross Jesus endeavored to make clear to the disciples the reality of His divine personality and the meaning of His suffering and resurrection. Correct knowledge of Christ's person and work is essential to give poise to the disciples in the tragic hours of life.

Lesson for April 8.

The resurrection of Jesus Christ was announced by an angel and He was afterwards seen by many witnesses. Conviction concerning Christ's resurrection is absolutely necessary to effectively witness for Him.

Lesson for April 15.

In order to revive the drooping spirits of the disciples Jesus was transfigured before them. Two men from the upper world were sent to converse with Jesus about His approaching death at Jerusalem, the very thing about which the disciples refused to talk. In this transfiguration is given a foregleam of the coming kingdom.

Lesson for April 22.

Jesus as a son was faithful to His parents. He had a high regard for the true home. In this lesson He sets forth the truth concerning marriage which is the foundation of the home. Those who are actuated by His spirit will recognize marriage as the ideal law of life.

Lesson for April 29.

Jesus' answer to the question of the rich young ruler concerning what he should do in order to inherit eternal life shows that the one thing absolutely necessary is supreme love to God and that we should be willing to part with everything for His sake.

Lesson for May 6.

While Jesus was resting in the shadow of the cross, the disciples were disputing as to who should be greatest. The leading lesson is that true greatness is expressed in willingness to give oneself in service to others.

Lesson for May 13.

Jesus entered Jerusalem and officially presented Himself to the Jewish nation according to prophecy. Jesus exercised His kingly authority in cursing the fig tree and driving out the money changers from the temple.

Lesson for May 20.

Under the parable of the husbandmen who betrayed their trust, Jesus shows the Jews to be guilty of persecuting the prophets and of murdering the Son of God. Man's whole duty is summed up in one word—supreme and undivided love of God.

Lesson for May 27.

Jesus is coming in glory and will enter into judgment with those who have been unfaithful. It is incumbent upon all to watch so as to be ready when He comes.

Lesson for June 3.

Though Jesus was the very Son of God, possessing all power, He was at the same time a real man and craved human sympathy, therefore He took with Him His disciples to the garden of Gethsemane.

Lesson for June 10.

Because Jesus took the place of the sinner, He was despised and rejected of men. The treatment of Jesus reveals the awful wickedness of the human heart. They chose Barabbas instead of Christ.

Lesson for June 17.

On the cross Jesus made the supreme sacrifice for the sins of the world. When the price of redemption was fully paid Jesus dismissed His spirit, thus showing that He had all power.

Being Christians

"Daniel purposed in his heart." That's the trouble with a great many many people; they purpose to do right, but they only purpose in their heads, and that doesn't amount to much. If you are going to be Christians, you must purpose to serve God away down in your hearts. "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness."—D. L. Moody.

Arrows of the Holy Ghost

Deep convictions of sin will not spring from rational consideration. No man can work them in his own soul; they are the arrows of the Holy Ghost. And when He sends them they stick fast.—Berridge.

The Way

If you ask the way to the crown—'tis by the cross; to the mountain—'tis by the valley; to exaltation—'tis he that humbleth himself.—J. H. Evans.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

The Play Is Ended, But the Plot Lingers On.

Those who attended the Senior class play last Friday night are wondering when the cast is going to finish the last scene. The curtain came just a bit previous and Battling Bennie Bozo, alias James Dodge, wants it distinctly understood that he didn't marry Pansy Gloria. Whom did she marry? Well, the answer to that is causing much loss of sleep. Perhaps the seniors will finish their little play sometime.

* * *

After the Brawl Was Over

The Senior-Alumni dance was sure some hot affair in more ways than one. Fifty-nine couples were dancing and 59 males wished that Emily Poste (Dame Etiquet) had decreed vestless suits for summer wrestling matches.

Etiquet notwithstanding, Col. Jim Mutt Bell was on the scene and after it was all over and the couples were leaving he snapped a typical example of how the party ended, patrons and patronesses and members of the faculty excepted. The following is a very close-up of Reeves Blandford, in his spare moments assistant to the assistant of the cashier's assistant in the First National Bank, Oakland, showing the after-effects of the midnight frolic.

How It Affects a Banker.

A Wink in the Dark.

Archibaldson, the pressman in the back room, says that the business man who doesn't advertise is like the fellow who winks at his girl in the dark. He knows what he is doing, but no one else does.

* * *

Out For Blood.

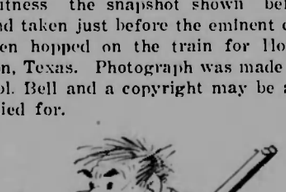
Knowing the long weary days it took four years ago to settle all the arguments at the Democratic convention, an Oakland citizen is preparing to take measures to insure that a repetition of events of four years ago will not occur this year. He is out to get the thing over in a hurry as witness the snapshot shown below and taken just before the eminent citizen hopped on the train for Houston, Texas. Photograph was made by Col. Bell and a copyright may be applied for.

"Bill" Browning On His Way to the Democratic Convention.

NOTE—Silver Bill Miller also went to Houston but he ducked up the train steps at such a pace that Col. Bell failed to get his picture.



* * *

Scoop is calling for volunteers to show Thomas E. Currie, of the State police, how to open a bottle of home brew. When he (the officer, not Scoop), endeavored to open some "evidence" during a recent trial before Justice Gonder, he thoughtlessly jarred the explosive matter a little too severely. Order was restored in the course of about fifteen minutes.

* * *

Right Past the Red.

In Deep Thought

Gilbert to task for his misbehavior. As Col. Bell did not have a machine large enough to take Policeman Nethkin all at one time, the length of his legs was shortened very considerably.

* * *

If the Seniors had explicitly followed the wording of the program at the baccalaureate exercises in the Maryland Theatre on Sunday night, they would have had to back in, for it read, "Recessional, by the graduates."

* * *

Other public officials connected with the City Council whose portraits have not been shown in public print in this column, will appear shortly. These are City Attorney W. R. Offutt and City Clerk A. G. Ross. The Colonel says that special exposing is necessary to get them good.

JOHN BARLEYCORN, MY JO JOHN

John Barley Corn, my Jo John,
When I was but sixteen
I met you on July the Fourth
Down at the Narrows Green;
'Twas then my cheeks were rosy red,
My eyes were sparkling bright;
You had a tingling tingle John,
That filled me with delight.

Since then I've met you often, John,
In crowds with merry glee;
I've met you in the palace home
'Mid folks of high degree;
But now my eyes are dim, John,
My locks are white as snow—
I'm drifting down the stream of time,
John Barley Corn, my Jo.

John Barley Corn, my Jo John,
You've had the best of me—
You had me on my back, John,
You had me on my knee;
You've led me to the poker joint,
You have thrown me in the ditch;
You made me spend my money free,
And feel that I was rich.

John Barley Corn, my Jo John,
They say you are here to stay,
Though many a stumbling block
They have thrown across your way.
But now they've twenty million, John,
And that's a lot of dough—
They are sure to set you back a notch,
John Barley Corn, my Jo.

John Barley Corn, my Jo John,
We've gone down the hill together,
And many a jolly spree, John,
We've had with one another.
The tingling tingle you once had
Has left me long ago,
So I've said farewell to you,
John Barley Corn, my Jo.

"YE SHALL KNOW THEM BY THEIR FRUITS"

"He Has Stamped 'Made in Maryland' on the Parcel Post"

"The Sixth District has become famous through his (Lewis's) constructive work—he is an American who conferred a great practical benefit on other Americans. The parcel post carries Lewis's name . . . to millions of . . . homes throughout the United States. This Congressman has something to show the people as the result of his being sent to Washington. He does not come back with empty hands simply stained with politics—as many Congressmen do."—Sun.

$217,511,317 Saved to Parcel Post Shippers in 1926

The Postoffice Department states that it carried 770,360,696 parcels in 1926. They cost the shippers, including insurance 20 (20.26 cents per parcel which averaged 5 pounds and moved 497 miles. The express rate would have been 48 1-2 cents. This means that $217,511,317 was saved to the Country, and $470,000 as its part of the Sixth Congressional District in 1926 alone.

"He is as sincere as sunshine—call him dreamer . . . * what you will his dreams come true . ."—Senator Smith of Maryland.

"If you want to find out where the people will be tomorrow, find out where Lewis is today."—Bryan—Secretary of State.

"I have been in these halls for thirty-six years. In all that time I have not known a man to go as fast or go as far as David. If I were to talk a week, I could hardly say more of one of the most remarkable men Maryland has ever produced."—Congresman Talbott.

DAVID J. LEWIS

A seat in Congress is an exalted opportunity for service. It should not be sought as a "Political Job"

Such an honor should be sought only to lighten the burdens of troubled men and women.

"Public office still demands personal honesty."

"The farming and coal industries—and none in the world are so efficient per man employed—call for treatment in the interest of owners, workers, and consumers, given in the constructive spirit of the Federal Reserve System."

"The World Court is being neglected now just as the Parcel Post was for generations, and so prodigious preparations and taxation for war must go on. I do hear a call. The path of duty stands out clear before me."

IT'S HERE AT LAST—

Nine out of every ten have it and it isn't pyorrhea, halitosis, or dandruff. It is as inevitable as the fact that Hoover will be our next president, and as Shakespeare said, "Futile as regret."

It doesn't come once and leave one immune for life like smallpox. It comes oftener than the measles, but unlike measles, it affects more than the eyes; it influences every muscle and organ of the body.

It makes one want to go swimming when he knows that the water is about 40 degrees above. It makes him discard his hat and coat when he knows well enough it isn't safe.

It makes one take an "I-don't-give a-continental attitude" when he knows full well that work goes on just the same.

No matter how many years you live you get it once a year, and there is no inoculation or vaccination that can be used as a preventative.

Yes, although it is late in arriving, it is spring fever, and the editor, associates, Scoop and the rest of the force have it. So do most of the people of Garrett county. If the saying were not so old and trite, he might add, "So does your old man."

"A MAN WITH A STEAM SHOVEL."

"Herbert Hoover," said a critic, "is just a man with a steam shovel."

The remark was intended as a criticism. But is it? A man with a steam shovel; a builder, a man with constructive business imagination, who is ready to build, to get things done.

Wouldn't it be well at this time to put a man with a steam shovel in charge of the business of the United States?

Hoover's record is the record of the man with a steam shovel. After the war, with huge farm surpluses piled up, with Europe threatening to break the market, what did Hoover do? He went abroad at his onw charges to persuade the European governments to live up to their contract and to open the closed German market to American food. In that country and in other liberated nations he obtained a market for more than 18 millon tons of foodstuffs and saved the American farmers from ruin.

As a side issue he raised 80 million dollars for child relief and took care of 10 million children; then organized the drive that brought 33 million more for the children of Germany, Austria and Poland.

He came home and headed the obscure department of commerce, lifted it out of the ruck and made it a great force in the nation's economic life. It was Hoover's conference on unemployment that pointed the way to concerted action on the part of American industry to 200 million dollars a year.

The steam shovel was at work.

He charted the channels of foreign trade and made his department so useful that it received 10,000 inquiries a day on trade subjects, on which invaluable information is furnished to American business.

A steam shovel job.

He revived the war finance corporation to finance the distressed farmer in the agricultural crisis. He organized the Mississippi Valley flood relief. He put over the inland waterways program to reduce transportation charges to and from the inland farm empire.

Yes, the Hoover steam shovel has been busy the last ten years.

Isn't the man with the steam shovel the man to put in charge of the big problems confronting the country? The problems of the farm, of manufacture, of trade in general?

Who else than Hoover fits the situation of general manager of the U. S. A. at this time?

CIVIL WAR VETERAN, 91, MARRIES WOMAN AGED 71

Grantsville Couple Figure in Unusual Romance Last Saturday

Even a bachelor at the age of 91 years finds romance an interesting experience and this was proven when Christian Liehty married Mrs. Annie Wegman-Murphy, aged 74, Saturday afternoon at three o'clock at the latter's home in Grantsville, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. W. Johnson, pastor of the Grantsville Methodist Epicopal church.

The aged couple was attended by Mrs. J. W. Stanton and son, Harry Stanton, both of Grantsville. Mrs. Mollie McCaw, Oswego, N. Y., and Mr. Charles Wegman, of Frostburg, a former sheriff of Garrett county, sister and brother of the bride, were both present as was also Harry Leatham, of Salisbury, Pa., a close friend of the bridegroom.

Born in Bridal Home.

The bride was born March 23, 1853, in the same house in which she became a bride on Saturday. She is a daughter of the late John H. Wegman, who was a well known farmer of his day. The bridegroom was born in Somerset, Pa., October 24, 1837, and during the early days of his life farmed and mined coal. He enlisted as a volunteer in the Twenty-second Pennsylvania Cavalry at the outbreak of the Civil War and served until the close of hostilities.

There will be no honeymoon trip for the couple except that which they may have on the front porch of their little log cabin situated on the National Highway just on the east outskirts of Grantsville. The building is probably the oldest in the town.

The bride, when questioned about her honeymoon trip, said it would be in the back yard feeding the pigs and chickens followed by the chopping of wood for the morning fire in the cook stove.

Marshall C. Snyder, Lulu Belle Finks and I. B. Finks, her husband, plaintiffs, vs. Adam Snyder and Ada Snyder, his wife; Kate Stanton and Thomas Stanton, her husband; Maggie Lohr, August Snyder and Mary E. Snyder, his wife; Henry Engle, Henrietta Hase and Richard Hase, her husband; Anna Flury and Frank Flury, her husband; Marie Morris and William Morris, her husband; Charles Engle and Dorcas Engle, his wife; Laura E. Foy and Harry Patton, defendants.

No. 2816 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate owned by Andrew Snyder, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom.

The Bill states:—

That Andrew Snyder (Snider), late of Garrett County, Md., deceased, was in his lifetime and at the time of his death seized and possessed of a parcel of land situate,lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, the same being a part of a tract of land called "The Gleanings of Negro Mountain," comprising Military Lots Nos. twenty-three hundred and forty-three (2343), twenty-three hundred and forty-four (2344), and containing the quantity of one hundred acres, being the same which was conveyed unto the said Andrew Snyder (Snider) by deed from Mary Snyder bearing date June 28th, 1897, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 42, folio 573, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, a certified copy of which said deed is herewith filed and marked "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1," and prayed to be taken and considered a part of this bill of complaint. That while so seized and possessed of said real estate the said Andrew Snyder (Snider) departed this life, intestate, at his home in Garrett County, Maryland, on or about the year 1907, leaving surviving him as his next of kin and heirs at law the following, to-wit: Adam Snyder, a son, who intermarried with Ada Snyder; Kate Stanton, a daughter, who intermarried with Thomas Stanton, said Thomas Stanton being non-compos mentis; Maggie Lohr, a widowed daughter; August Snyder a son, who intermarried with Mary E. Snyder, Lizzie Snyder, a daughter, who intermarried with a certain Harry Patton, and has since died intestate, and leaving surviving her as heirs at law, Lulu Belle Finks, a daughter, who intermarried with I. B. Finks, and her said husband, Harry Patton, whose present place of residence is unknown; Frederick L. Snyder, a son, who departed this life intestate in the year 1926, leaving surviving him as his only heirs at law the said Marshall C. Snyder, a son; Caroline Engle, a daughter, who intermarried with Henry Engle, and has since departed this life intestate, and leaving surviving her as her only heirs at law her said husband, Henry Engle, and the following children, to wit: Henrietta Hase, a daughter, who intermarried with Richard Hase; Anna Flury, a daughter, who intermarried with Frank Flury; Marie Morris, a daughter, who intermarried with William Morris; Charles Engle, a son, who intermarried with Dorcas Engle; and Laura E. Foy, a widowed daughter, all the above heirs being of full age.

That by deed dated April 10th, 1912, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 95, folio 222, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, the said August Snyder and Mary E. Snyder, his wife, conveyed to Lizzie Snyder, now deceased, all the interest of said August Snyder in said property except the minerals thereunder, a certified copy of said deed being filed as "Plaintiffs' Exhibit No. 2."

That the improvements on the above land are not of great value but there is a valuable growth of timber on the same and it is also underlaid with a good vein of coal; that the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interest therein, and in order to make a division of the same it will be necessary that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof distributed according to law; that it would be for the benefit and advantage of all of said parties that said real estate be sold under the decree of this Court and the proceeds thereof distributed to those entitled to the same; that the said Adam Snyder, Henry Engle, Henrietta Hase, Richard Hase, Anna Flury, Frank Flury, Marie Morris, William Morris, Charles Engle, Dorcas Engle, Laura E. Foy and Henry Patton are non-residents of the State of Maryland, said Adam Snyder residing at Listonburg, Pennsylvania, the residence of Harry Patton being to your orators unknown, and the rest of the above named defendants residing in the State of Ohio; that the defendants Ada Snyder, Kate Stanton, Maggie Lohr, August Snyder and Mary E. Snyder reside in Garrett County, Maryland; Thomas Stanton, non-compos mentis defendant, is confined in the Springfield State Hospital for the Insane at Sykesville, in Carroll County, Maryland.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of the real estate and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom and for general relief.

It is thereupon, this 21st day of May, 1928, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland once in each of four successive weeks before the 22nd day of June, 1928, giving notice to the said absent defendants, Adam Snyder, Henry Engle, Henrietta Hase, Richard Hase, Anna Flury, Frank Flury, Marie Morris, William Morris, Charles Engle, Dorcas Engle, Laura E. Foy and Harry Patton, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 9th day of July, 1928, to show cause if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Funeral services were held from his home on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, officiating, assisted by Rev. D. M. Funk, of Morgantown, W. Va., a former pastor. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Bush was born September 18, 1851, at Eglon, W. Va. ## BOYS' BAND TAKING PART IN SEVERAL ENGAGEMENTS

Will Go To Rowlesburg on July Fourth For All-Day Picnic

When the members of Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band go to Rowlesburg on July 4th, they will be filling their first engagement for holiday picnics and celebrations since the organization of the band in April, 1927.

This is the culmination of the efforts of R. R. Gilbert, director, and his assistant, Russell Brown, to have a real boys' band for Oakland, and the boys have been exceptionally apt in learning to play their instruments, according to the consensus of opinion of all who have heard them.

The band also played last Friday night at eleven o'clock when the B. & O. special train carrying Governor Albert C. Ritchie and the Maryland delegation to Houston, Texas, made a stop of a few minutes at the local railway station. A substantial donation was received by the band for its services.

A concert was rendered Sunday afternoon at Rainbow Inn and the boys played yesterday for a lot sale at Deep Creek Lake.

Things Still Needed.

The band still needs chairs, music and money, Mr. Gilbert said, and there is still room for boys who want to play the trombones, altos and baritone horns. One day last week a donation of $5.00 was received by the band, and it is hoped that this will not be the last one. "Although one may not realize it, repairing instruments, buying music, etc., costs a lot of money," Mr. Gilbert said.

Anyone who will volunteer to take the boys to Rowlesburg should notify Mr. Gilbert as early as possible.

PRESTON COUNTY SHERIFF JAILED AFTER SHOOTING

Drags Insurance Agent Into His Office and Wounds Him In Head, Side and Arm

Arthur G. Ramsey, Philippi, insurance agent, was shot in the office of Sheriff A. R. Williams, of Preston county, at Kingwood, West Va., Tuesday, the sheriff of the county firing three bullets into Ramsey, the first striking him in the head, the second in his arm and the third in his side, none of which, however, are expected to have fatal results, as all three bullets glanced and made only slight flesh wounds. Ramsey is in a hospital at Grafton where his condition is said not be to serious.

Sheriff Williams was disarmed by Circuit Judge A. G. Hughes, of Kingwood, who committed him to jail in custody of Clerk of the County Court Frank P. King. A special grand jury today will consider the case against the offending officer and it is likely that he will be indicted, and if found guilty he will be impeached and his successor chosen by the members of the County Court. In the meantime the sheriff's office is in charge of deputies.

Ramsey said he was passing the sheriff's office the morning of the shooting when the officer emerged, grabbed him and dragged him into the office. Eye witnesses told a similar story.

Wife Leaves Through Window

Almost immediately, those who had gathered about on the street said, after reports of a firearm were heard in the sheriff's office, Mrs. Williams, wife of the sheriff, who had gone to the office a short time before, left the room through a window and was assisted to the sidewalk by a bystander. Williams and his wife had been living apart for some time, Mrs. Williams residing at the sheriff's home at the jail, and Williams staying at a hotel.

Gilbert Williams, a brother of the sheriff, who was in the office, is quoted by county officials as saying the shooting occurred before he could interfere.

Ramsey said he knew no motive for the attack. He added that he did not even know the sheriff.

This morning the special grand jury called by Judge Hughes, indicted Sheriff Williams and he will be arraigned today before the Judge.

The grand jury also indicted Fred Warnick, of Swanton, this county, for grand larceny in connection with the theft of a horse from W. O. Reed, of near Masontown. Within an hour Warnick was arraigned, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to three years in the state prison.

THE HOOVER PLATFORM.

The Republican party has never risen to an abler level of debate than in its consideration of the platform at Kansas City. The atmosphere of the farm discussion was generous, painstaking and open-minded. Every opportunity was given for persuasion and for the development of a fair polity. The issues of the McNary-Haugen bill were threshed out by the ablest minds on either side. In the closing argument of Senator Borah convention eloquence touched a new level of eloquence and logic. The Kansas City gathering took rank among the great sessions of the party. The major issue of the 1928 campaign was formulated in language of unforgettable dignity, persuasiveness and sincerity.

No petty considerations of party unity were permitted to control. The ablest Republican minds had full rein to present their pleas to the national convention of the party. First before the resolutions committee, then before the entire convention, the pleas in behalf of the McNary-Haugen bill had their say. At the end came Senator Borah's speech, one of the historic utterances at a Republican convention. We doubt if a policy was ever more devasatingly overwhelmen before a great public gathering than in this calm, persuasive address by a consistent friend of the American farmer, says the New York Herald-Tribune.

Former Governor Fort of New Jersey had already answered the minority in a careful rebuttal of which the striking words were the assertions that "this convention will not be stampeded into taking a false economic position for political purposes." Senator Borah spoke in complete sympath with the problem of the farmer. As an eastern newspaper we wish to support every item in his plea.

It is altogether accurate to call the issue a great national problem as the preservation of the farmer as the backbone of American life is the first duty of the country. Whatever legislative relief can be passed which will aid in this accomplishment is the logical procedure of the Republican party. No speech, in the Senate or out of it, has made the duty of the Congress clearer.

Senator Borah's moving words in praise of President Coolidge will not soon be forgotten. Here was no lip-service by an interested friend. Here was rather the sincere praise of a critical outsider. The convention inevitably echoed the utterance.

No political convention has ever reached a representative decision after a fairer debate. The decision stood for agriculture, not against. Only the equalization fee, unconstitutional, impractical and unsound, was rejected. The Republican party, for generations the party of the farmer, is bound by every obligation of honor to enact every sound measure in his behalf.

The whole platform is refreshingly terse and candid. It is silent with respect to the Philippines, and we trust that this silence will be correctly understood as a declaration of the majority party of the nation that Philippine issues have been withdrawn from party dispute and that the future of the islands will be developed regardless of the ambitions of politics, Filipino and American.

The navy plank is an unmistakable advocacy of a treaty navy. Thereby the Republican party places itself strongly behind national defense, intelligently administered. Similarly, the declaration in behalf of a merchant marine follows the traditional faith of the party. In resolving the issue against government ownership and operation, the party lays down a policy that has its origin in long-established economic experience and looks to a development in the future based on individual iniative, American to its core.

Platforms have an unenviable reputation for formalism in their consideration and their adoption. The Kansas City convention has made an enviable record for sincerity and free speech.

Mr. E. W. Kelso, Traveling Through The Famous Imperial Valley of California, Gives a Brief Description of that Part of the Domain of Uncle Sam.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Perhaps it might be of interest to some readers of The Republican to review a brief description of the Imperial Valley in California as I saw it.

El Centro is the countyseat of Imperial county, with a population of about seven thousand. The town derives its name from being located near the center of the valley, which Is forty miles wide and eighty miles in length.

El Centro has good streets and splendid churches along with educational facilities so much in evidence in the Southwest. Two years ago a 3-story court house was built, costing $450,000. This includes the jail. The stairway and columns in the court house are of marble and are very handsome.

El Centro has all the modern improvements and conveniences enjoyed by any town of its size at this time.

Four creameries are located in the town. I was shown through one by the manager who explained the different processes employed until the cream is turned into pound prints of excellent butter. The manager said that the concern employed sixty-five persons in connection with the creamery.

I was invited by a carpenter to accompany him ten miles into the country in his car where he was engaged in building a house. I accepted his invitation, as this trip gave me a good opportunity to obtain a view of farms and other interests in connection with agriculture.

A Swiss colony is located in this section and the people are considered industrious and economical.

The man having the house built is a Swiss farmer. He introduced me to his wife, who was outfitted in a full suit of overalls bent over a washtub and engaged in doing the family washing. At noon I was invited to dinner and they certainly had plenty of everything on the table. The hostess made it a point to see that I was kept well supplied with food. She was neatly dressed which gave her a different appearance than when she was in overalls.

After dinner I leisurely strolled to the nearby farms and at times given a view of many miles of level land dotted with growing crops and dairy cows as far as the eye could reach. Many acres are grown to hemp and was about a foot high the last of March. Wheat was in head at this time.

I saw large fields in cantalouper, the vines of which may be seen in rows at a distance. A few years ago cotton was grown very extensively in the valley and was a very profitable industry, but when the price fell below a profit many farmers lost as much as $40,000, I am told, consequently the acreage is very much reduced, and diversified crops are grown instead.

Lettuce is produced on many acres in the valley. I was informed by one farmer that 12,000 carloads of this crop was shipped from the valley the latter part of December to the latter part of March. Mexicans are mostly employed in gathering the lettuce.

Alfalfa harvest begins on March 1 and seven cuttings annually are made. The crop is now selling at $18.00 per ton.

There is a great variety of fruits and vegetables grown in the valley, but space will not permit me to give a detailed account of the crops grown so I will give a few facts taken from Imperial county statistics for 1927: Alfalfa, 168,210 acres; barley, 47,022 acres; cotton, 14,102 acres; cantaloupes, 36,121 acres; Milo maize, 34,105 acres, lettuce, 34,297 acres. Dairy cows, 21,203; butter, 6,100,000 pounds. Turnips, carrots, cabbage and many other vegetables are grown most anytime through the winter, but more tender vegetables are grown later in the year. The last killing frost in the spring was January 24, 1927, while the first killing frost in the fall was December 7.

I will now give a brief review of the dairy interests in the valley, and as far as I was able to discover every farmer had many dairy cows, mostly Holstein and Jerseys.

About four o'clock I could see farmers driving cows in corrals for milking. The farmer having the house built has forty cows and he pointed out to me some of his favorite cows in the milking shed. The man and his wife, who had again donned her overalls, with the assistance of their son, milked the forty cows.

Imperial Valley is said to be the shape of a saucer and Is 52 feet below sea level. The inhabitants of the valley entertain some fear that the dam supplying them with water will some day give way and inundate the country. Should this occur it would be gone forever, as it can not be drained and it would require half a century to evaporate. Not only would the financial loss be heavy, but many lives would be taken. This is the opinion of many people in the valley.

The California people claim that the public generally does not understand their contention with regard to the Boulder Dam. Their contention is to have a flood control dam back of Boulder Dam and say that if this be built it would protect the valley from inundation. They claim their opponents are controlled by a monopoly of selfish interests.

I will digress to some extent and describe more of the products of the valley, as many persons may wish more information concerning crops in this valley. Peas, 4,621 acres; tomatoes, 1,242 acres; grapefruit, 6,911 acres; orange trees, 13,020 acres; honey, 430,000.

Of course there are many cattle, sheep and hogs in the valley and a great many other things too numerous to mention.

I took leave of El Centro April 4 and arrived in San Diego the same morning, a distance of 150 miles over the San Diego and Arizona railroad. On this route the train passed through 21 tunnels inside of 11 miles. The total length of all the tunnels is 3,597 feet. The railroad bed bas blasted out from the side of hard pinnacles of rock across winding gorges and at times it seemed that the train was hanging on the side of a precipice. Trainmen told me that at one point it was a thousand feet to the bottom of the gorge.

The train emerged from this unusual country into a narrow valley with steep hillsides covered with wild lilacs of different colors in flowers, which presented a very beutiful spectacle. As the train sped on the valley became wider and we presently saw cattle grazing in the valley. They were apparently in good condition. The train finally arrived at San Diego on time.

San Diego is a very beautiful city and many interesting sights may be observed.

Balboa Park, on the outskirts of the city, is very interesting. It was the site of the exposition buildings during the Panama-California Exposition. Many of the buildings and exhibits have been retained and have become permanent.

The outdoor organ in the park is still a favorite with the tourists. Easter Sunday was a beautiful day and a special selection was played and many thousands heard the echoes from the instrument.

The zoo is also part of Balboa Park and contains 120 acres and has many animals of different species I had not seen until this visit.

Many Garrett countians can recall many of the things they saw while here attended the exposition.

Las Cruces, New Mexico, and El Paso, Texas, was the extent of my western trip until the present one. I took this upon the advice of a physician.

I have aimed to write facts, but sometimes I have been misinformed.

The cactus statement in a former letter is an error and should have read fifteen inches instead of fifteen feet.

I have visited many small towns, large areas of farm lands and have seen various crops of grain grown in these sections and dairy interests and other interests in connection with agricultural matters. By so doing it gave me insight into the multitudinous business of the country and it also was the means of giving others some idea of the sections described in my communications to The Republican.

I am traveling alone and by engaging in this scribbling it wards off monotony and loneliness.

The descriptions I have given of the small towns I have seen and the agricultural interests I have observed may seem insignificant, but they are spokes in the wheel of progress.

Comparatively few persons realize the important position the farmers occupy in helping to maintain the nations of the world.

E. W. KELSO.

San Diego, Cal., April 16, 1928.

Forest Warden Writes Poem

The following poem, written by Dewey Sharpless, one of the Forest Wardens of Garrett county, was taken from the June number of the News Letter, a publication issued by the Maryland State Department of Forestry:

LIFE IS WHAT WE MAKE IT.

Do you wish the world were better?
Let me tell you what to do:
Set a watch upon your actions.
Keep them always straight and true,
Rid your minds of selfish motives,
Let your thoughts be clean and high—
You can make a little Eden
Of the sphere you occupy.

Do you wish the world were wiser?
Well, suppose you make a start
By accumulating wisdom
In the scrapbook of your heart.
Do not waste one page on folly,
Live to learn and learn to live,
If you want to give men knowledge,
You must get it ere you give.

Do you wish the world were happy?
Then remember day by day
Just to set a little shade tree
As you pass along the way.
For the pleasure of the many
May be ofttimes traced to one,
As the hand that plants an acorn
Shelters armies from the sun.

So, my friends, the little forest
Depends upon both you and I
That the brooks may still go bubbling,
And the giant oaks towering high.
That the song birds still may warble—
It will pay us, by and by.

BITTINGER.

The continued rainy weather is delaying the local farmers in the cultivation of their growing crops and in sowing their buckwheat.

A storm of unusual intensity mingled with lightning, wind and rain, visited this neighborhood on Wednesday afternoon of last week. The storm swooped down without any warning and every loose thing about houses and barns was caught up by the fierce wind and thrown about. The rain beat into houses and other buildings, doing some damage and it is reported that many sugar trees in the nearby groves were uprooted and great numbers of fruit trees in unsheltered orchards were destroyed.

George Cunningham, who has been employed on the Lawrence Fortney farm, near here, for some months, returned to his home near Lumberport, West Va., very recently.

Rev. E. E. Campbell of this village, accompanied by Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Shilke, of Oakland, will leave here next Thursday afternoon for Los Angeles, California, where they will attend the World's Sunday School Convention to be held in that city July 11 to 18. The trip will be made in Mr. Arthur Resh's new Chrysler sedan, which will be driven by Mr. Resh himself.

Herman Englehart, of Oakland, was in this community last week

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buckle and little daughter spent last Sunday afternoon in Grantsville.

Your Buick Dealer stands back of the USED CARS he sells

Your Buick dealer's good reputation in the community is worth far more to him than the profit he makes on any used car transaction.

He is the head of an established business and he knows that in order to get more business, he must please his present customers.

He carries a representative stock of used cars, including both used Buicks and cars of other makes—and he represents them honestly.

You're sure of a square deal when you buy from the Buick dealer. He stands back of the used cars he sells.

More oiliness is proved by this harsh test that gives the facts about an oil, a motor oil that goes beyond the duties of an oil and keeps down wear and tear.

PROOF OF LESS WEAR

A large truck manufacturer ran motors for 50 hours with "Standard" and with other well-known oils. Throttle, spark and carburetor adjustments were constant. Gritty particles were applied to the air as it entered the carburetor to increase abrasion on cylinder walls.

This test proved that cylinders and rings were worn only one ninth as much with "Standard" Motor Oil as with the other oils. You can draw your own conclusions as to what this means in cutting costs of motor upkeep.

Lesson for July 1

THE EARLY LIFE OF SAUL

LESSON TEXT—Deut. 6:4-9; Phil. 3:4-6; Acts 22:3, 27, 28.

GOLDEN TEXT—Remember also thy Creator in the days of thy youth.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of Paul as a Child.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Boyhood of a Great Preacher.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Saul's Training for Service.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Influences Shaping Saul's Early Life.

I. Israel's Responsibility With Reference to God's Laws (Deut. 6:4-9).

1. Central truths to be taught (vv. 4, 5).

(1) Unity of God. "The Lord our God is one Lord." He is God alone, therefore to worship another is sin.

(2) Man's supreme obligation (v. 5). God should be loved with all the heart, soul and might, because He is God alone and supreme. This being the first and the great commandment, we know what is man's supreme duty.

2. How these truths are to be kept alive (vv. 6-9).

The place for God's Word is in the heart. In order that it may be in the heart (1) "teach it diligently to thy children" (v. 7). The most important part of a child's education is that given in the home in the Word of God. How sadly this is neglected today! (2) To talk of them in the home (v. 7). This is the right kind of home life. How blessed is that home where God's Word is the topic of conversation. (3) Talk of them when walking with our children and friends (v. 7). (4) Talk of them when retiring for the night (v. 7). The last thing upon which the mind should rest before going to sleep should be God and His truth. (5) Talk of them when rising in the morning (v. 7). How fitting that God should speak to us the first thing when we awake! (6) Bind them upon thine hand (v. 8). This was literally done by the Jews even to the wearing of them in little boxes between their eyes. (7) Write them upon the posts of the houses and on the gates (v. 9). Such a remembrance of God's words would create a spiritual atmosphere most desirable.

II. Saul's Ground of Confidence (Phil. 3:4-6).

He had everything a true Jew gloried in.

1. Circumcized the eighth day (v. 5).

This was the literal requirement of the law for those born under the Abrahamic covenant.

2. "Of the stock of Israel" (v. 5).

This shows that he was a true Jew, related to the chosen people by blood and birth.

3. Of the tribe of Benjamin.

Benjamin had always remained loyal to the national customs. The first king of Israel, whose name he bore, was of Benjamin.

4. "Hebrew of the Hebrews" (v. 5).

This showed that he was of Hebrew parentage and not a proselyte.

5. Touching the law, a Pharisee (v. 5).

The Pharisees were of the sect most zealous for all the rites and ceremonies of Judaism.

6. "Concerning zeal, persecuting the church" (v. 6).

He proved his zeal by positive effort to stamp out that which was threatening Judaism.

7. "Touching the righteousness which is in the law, blameless" (v. 6).

So exactly had he conformed to the outer requirements of the law that he was consciously blameless.

III. A Sketch of Saul's Life (Acts 22:3, 27, 28).

1. His birth (v. 3).

Though born at Tarsus, a city outside of Palestine he had been brought up in a strict Jewish home. Tarsus was the capital of the province of Cilicia. It was a city of prominence because of its commerce and culture. It was one of the three principal university cities of that period.

2. His education (v 3).

Born out of Palestine, he was sent to Jerusalem for his education. This fact shows that he belonged to a zealous family of Jews. His teacher was the great Gamaliel, a doctor of the law and the leader of the strict sect of the Pharisees.

His citizenship (vv. 27, 28).

He was by birth a Roman citizen because Tarsus was the capital of a Roman province. In the providence of God the great apostle to the Gentiles was given the prestige of a free-born citizens of the empire. He was loyal to his country and proud of his citizenship.

The Joy of the Lord

Oh, believe, the joy of Christ is within you; give it room, let it spring up within you like a well of living water, and you will rejoice in the Lord always, and again rejoice.—G. H. C. Macgregor.

Conversing With the Angels

There is no power on earth can prevent me from holding converse with the angels, even though with my hands I feed pigs.—Lydia Marie Childe.

When Bachelor, 91, Married Widow, 74, At Grantsville

Having remained a bachelor for 91 years Christian Lichty became a benedict on June 16, when he was united in marriage to Mrs. Annie Wegman Murphy, 74, at Grantsville, Md. The above photograph shows the happy bride and groom as they appeared shortly after the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. W. J. Johnson, pastor of the M. C. Church at Grantsville.

Mr. Lichty was born October 24, 1837 at Somerset, Pa., and Mrs. Lichty was born March 23, 1854 in the same house that the two now occupy as home at the east end of Grantsville on the National Pike.

Mr. Lichty came to Oakland in person to secure the marriage license, accompanied by two friends. According to the records of the Garrett County Circuit Court, Mr. Lichty is the oldest person ever to be issued a marriage license in this county and probably in the entire country.

The aged bride and groom were serenaded Monday evening at Grantsville, the entire town and scores of visitors joining in the celebration.

The happy couple and Mr. Lichty's venerable G. A. R. comrades, Dr. H. C. McKinley and Peter Albright, of Meyersdale, were paraded in J. J. Bender's large delivery truck from their home to the west end of town and return. The parade was headed by the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps of Meyersdale, followed by the Boozoo band of Grantsville.

At the conclusion of the parade an address was made by Dr. H. C. McKinley, who spoke very highly of his comrade Lichty, whom he had known intimately since childhood and of the respect he has for the people of the community as shown by the demonstration. Mr. J. J. Bender, who is one of Mr. Lichty's closest friends, also made a short address.

YOUR SUNDAY DINNER

AND

YOUR LIGHT BILL

Your Sunday dinner and your electric service both are sources of satisfaction, but have you ever stopped to consider their relative cost?

Your Sunday dinner in most instances costs more than your electric bill for a whole month.

Your Sunday dinner is an event of one day, while your light bill is a charge for the accumulation of services we have rendered you through an entire month.

Your electric bill embraces illumination, of course, but it also includes the iron, the toaster, the curler, the sweeper, the fans, the radio, the refrigerator, and the many other appliances that are common in the modern home.

Where else can you get such great value over so long a period for so small an amount.

Your Light Bill is More Than a Bill

THE BRYAN ERA HAS GONE

For the first time in a generation the familiar figure in the black alpaca coat, carrying the palm leaf fan, is absent from the Democratic national convention at Houston. In the decade before his death Bryan had lost touch with the modern world. His ideas belonged to an earlier time. with the years much of his old fire had been extinguished, and while his position in the party carried respect, the young element had become impatient. He had come to be looked on as a scold who had to be tolerated because he still maintained his hold over a considerable following.

It was difficult for the younger men and women who heard him at San Francisco in 1920 and at Madison Square Garden, New York, in 1924 to visualize the tired old man as the once dashing and fighting figure of earlier years. Yet from 1896 when he first captured a convention by storm, down to 1912, when he made his last great fight against Wall Street control, he was a tremendous force, a dominating personality.

That was the transition era from little business to big. But the benefits of mass production were not then evident. The captains of industry had not learned by severe experience that arrogance was not the best policy. A large part of the population was suspicious and angry. The vigorous young man from Nebraska, the boy orator of the Platta, vocalized this rising discontent.

Free silver might not be the remedy. "Imperalism" might not be the trouble. Wall Street might be an innocent lamb. The discontented did not much care. All they knew was that life was unduly hard and they found in Bryan a powerful leader, self confident and aggressive, with a wonderful command of language and a voice that was a gift from heaven. He knew their difficulties. He Sympathized with them. He struck telling blows, and they were ready to follow him.

His day really ended at the Baltimore convention in 1912 when he made his last great onslaught against the powers of wealth and forced the nomination of Woodrow Wilson. His speech after that event in the stifling hall at night when he formally announced his surrender of his party's leadership was unforgettable. It was a superb and sincere piece of oratory.

Those who heard it and succumbed to the spell of its great emotional appeal did not appreciate at the time what an accurat forecast it was. The times were changing. The country's Bryan mood had passed. Never again was the "peerless leader" to sway a convention as he had swayed the one then ending.

He lingered on the political stage for three more conventions, a figure clearly outgrown by his party; a petulant and scolding old man. Now he is gone. His passing helps to emphasize the new day that faces the Democrats at Houston. There is an enormous social and industrial gap between the banks of the Platte and the sidewalks of New York.

Conference of State and Provincial Health Authorities

Maryland was represented by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, at the recent conference of State and Provincial Health Authorities, at Minneapolis. The program covered various problems in public health work, special emphasis being laid on the organization of county health units as the most effective means of carrying on statewide health activities; the prevention of typhoid fever, with special reference to the spread of the disease through carriers, methods of supervision of persons known to be carriers, and the possibilities of the contamination of food supplies when handled by typhoid carriers; industrial hygiene and the prevention of occupational diseases; Conservation of vision; organization of public health forces for disease prevention service in great emergencies. such as the health authorities of the country rendered in connection with the great floods along the Mississippi and in New England.

The conference was attended by the directors and other representatives of thirty-eight state departments of health, and by delegates from the provincial governments in Canada. The meeting was followed by a joint conference with Surgeon-General Cummings of the U. S. Public Health Service.

Care of Crippled Children.

Clinics for the examination of crippled children are included in the plans for the summer's work in several of the counties of Maryland, according to reports forwarded to Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health. Clinics have been held recently in Oakland and in Frederick, and one is scheduled for Elkton, in Cecil county, on July 10. Other counties in which work is being done for crippled children include Talbot, in which a monthly clinic is held; Washington county, in which four clinics are held each year, and Allegany, in which regular work is being organized following several special clinics.

Estimates prepared by the Maryland League for Crippled Children, based upon surveys made throughout the country, show that there are about 4400 boys and girls under 21, in the State who are crippled, and of that number 2000 live in the counties.

When a study was made of the crippled children in Baltimore City it was found that half of the children had become disabled through infantile paralysis, and that tuberculosis was responsible in the case of 16 per cent. Only about six per cent—one out of every sixteen—had been crippled from birth and relief or help of some sort was possible for all but two out of every hundred.

One of the aims of the clinics is to discover the children who have some disabling handicap and to give them the benefit of skilled medical and surgical care. When treatment at local hospitals is not available, it is almost always possible to have the children cared for at one of the hospitals in Baltimore City. Much assistance has been given by the Rotary, Kiwanis and other service clubs in providing funds for braces and for other appliances for children in need of such aid.

The Maryland League for Crippled Children reports that surveys are under way in a number of places to find out the number of children of school age, so that provision can be made for their attendance at school.

THE CARPENTER.

Mark 6:3: "Is not this the carpenter?"

When God sent His Son into the world, He might have placed Him in a royal palace. Surely, this would have seemed a more suitable environment for the King of kings and Lord of lords. But no! He was born in a stable, and spent most of His years in a carpenter's shop. He had no retinues of servants to attend His needs, no silken clothes, no delicacies of food. He knew nothing but toil, toil, toil.

But does this seem strange?

Strange only to those who have a perverted idea of God, who imagine Him to be a purple-clad Potentate throne of gold, living in blissful serenity far removed from this tired aching world. Is this what the Master Teacher told us? "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." (John 5:17). The Bible teaches us that God is the infinite and eternal Craftsman "who worketh all things after the counsel of His will." (Ephsians 1:11).

To a world which so despised labor that the only people who worked were those too poor to buy slaves, God came in the form of a Carpenter, a Builder, to reveal the dignity and the divinity of loving, creative labor.

Would we know the mystical fellowship of God? We must look for Him in the workshop as well as in the temple, in the sanctuary of toil as well as in the sanctuary of prayer. In all true labor which is guided by a noble purpose, it is God who worketh in us both to will and to do. (Phil. 2:17.)

Would we know the comradeship of Christ? Then let us not forget the clue He gave us:

Raise the stone and thou shalt find Me,
Cleave the wood and there am I.

THE CHARMING CHANDLERS

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

LUCIA IVES met Mrs. Chandler at a meeting of the Woman's club and fell in love with her. With great enthusiasm she told her husband all about her new acquaintance.

"She's charming, Alvin, simply charming. I wish you could see how she was dressed. Do you know Mr. Chandler? Isn't there some way you can get to know him?" she inquired anxiously.

Alvin shrugged his shoulders.

"Oh, I know him now—in a way. Run up against him two or three times lately at the club. But let me tell you one thing, Lu, we can't go in for all the things the Chandlers do. We haven't the money. I suppose he gets twice the salary I do, and then his father is pretty well fixed, I hear."

Lucia's blue eyes sparkled.

"All the more reason why they should be nice to know. All our acquaintances are in the bungalow class except the Heaths, and the Chandlers live over on Hope Hill—right next door to the Adelbert Baldwins. I'm going to call on her with Mrs. Hillis."

"All right. But as I say—" the approach of his three-year-old son interrupted Alvin. He caught the child up and began to play with him.

Lucia did go to call on Mrs. Chandler in company with Mrs. Hillis, who possessed a small roadster—second hand, but who would have known it since Archie Hillis gave it that coat of varnish? Lucia wore the blue linen that had been of her trousseau and had so agreeably admitted of being made over. Altogether they made a very nice appearance, the two of them, and Mrs. Chandler was delightfully sociable.

Lucia, it was true, was a little appalled by the size and appearance of the Chandler house. The toe of her new black pump sank an inch into the pile of the lovely rug and the green velvet chair nearly swallowed up her small proportions. Mrs. Chandler served them with iced tea and cakes, presented by a maid, and she had her own son, four-year-old Gilbert, brought in for the callers to see. Gilbert did somehow fail to impress Lucia favorably. He walked up close to her and stared at her.

"Have you got a boy?" he demanded. And when she assented, he added: "Bring him over, I want him to play with me."

Lucia told Alvin she thought Gilbert was not as charming as his mother. Still, there was nothing like children to cement intimacy between families. Suppose Norman and Gilbert should become lasting chums! Go to college together! Enter business together! Chandler & Ives! What a delicious sounding combination.

Mrs. Chandler returned Lucia's call, but to Lucia's disappointment she did not bring Gilbert. She made an excuse—he was taking his afternoon nap.

Lucia brought Norman in, just awakened from his siesta, becomingly pink and dreamy-eyed. Mrs. Chandler took him on her lap, quite heedless of wrinkling her marvelous silk, and patted him and cooed to him, while little Lucia preened with exultation.

Then for two or three weeks Lucia saw no more of her new acquaintance.

There came a Sunday afternoon, beautifully still and warm, when Lucia felt an intense longing for a little excitement. Lunch was over. Norman had awakened beautifully refreshed from his nap, Alvin had read the paper through and she wanted a place to show the new frock which she, with the aid of Miss Gray, the dressmaker, had fashioned from her old gray crepe de chine.

"Let's go and see the Chandlers, Alvin," she suggested. "She asked me to come some Sunday afternoon and bring Norman."

"I'm willing," Alvin arose unexpectedly.

As they strolled toward Hope Hill Lucia felt that they looked altogether too nice to be walking; they should be in one of the cars that passed so rapidly. Perhaps—her pulses quickened—perhaps the Chandlers would take them for a spin in their wonderful new Swift

"I wonder if I were in their places and had a Lucia, and Alvin and a Norman come all the way to call," she thought girlishly. "I'd take them up the long lake road and bring them back to supper, cool and choice, served on the veranda."

It was possible that Mrs. Chandler might feel the same way.

The Chandlers were at home and looking a little bored, but their welcome was not effusive.

"So hot, isn't it?" murmured Mrs. Chandler, dabbing at her nose with her handkerchief. "Now, Gilbert, take the little boy and play with him nicely. Show him all your toys."

Lucia settled back in the deep wicker chair luxuriously. Cigars had already passed between Alvin and her husband and they seemed to be finding something to say to each other. She likewise tried to be entertaining.

Half an hour passed when it became evident that Norman and Gilbert were having trouble. Norman was trying to get upon Gilbert's tricycle and Gilbert was in a most inhost-like way trying to pull him off. Norman was not pugnacious, but he held his ground. It was not until Gilbert struck him that he fell off the machine with a volley of shrieks that brought Alvin to his feet.

Down the steps went Alvin and to the aid of his son, while the Chandlers sat immobile, and Lucia, although burning with anxiety, dare not move. Norman had a bruise on his dear little cheek and a stain on his new suit. Lucia bit her lip.

"Guess he'll need a compress," Alvin said. "We'd better be leaving, Lu."

As Lucia arose the Chandlers began to murmur apologies. But it was too late. Alvin was angry, Lucia was fairly in tears as she spoke the necessary farewells and followed after her grandly stalking husband who had Norman against his shoulder.

"That ends the Chandlers as far as I am concerned," Alvin said.

Lucia could not find a word to say. She was disappointed, distressed, troubled about Norman. She could not blame Alvin for saying what he thought.

A soothing compress with a touch of Florida water soon made Norman all right. They were fussing with him when the telephone bell rang. Lucia answered it.

"Mrs. Heath! You have rung before? We weren't here—just came in. Oh, we'd love to, Mrs. Heath." She turned excitedly to Alvin. "The Heaths want us to go for a ride to the lake and stay to supper afterward. Oh, Alvin, isn't that fine?"

Alvin, holding Norman, looked at her gloomily.

"The Heaths amount to something. They're not petty upstarts like those—Chandlers. Hereafter you best stick to the bridge that's carried you safely over, Lu, my dear," he said.

Barclays of London Great Banking House

The history of Barclays bank and of the banking institutions which from time to time have been brought under its control, and which make it one of the "Big Five" of Great Britain, says the London Morning Post, extends over a period of from 200 to 300 years.

Mr. P. W. Matthews, late chief inspector of the London Bankers' Clearing house, who, with the assistance of A. W. Tuke, a local director of Barclays banks, has compiled the history, and succeeded in producing a monumental work.

In the period under review the character of banking has completely changed. The early goldsmith-bankers and trader-bankers of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries, consisting of individuals and small partnerships, have given place to the big institutions of today.

"Toward the end of the Eighteenth century the staff of Barclays consisted of three clerks, and on the appearance of the third as a new clerk coming to the office for the first time he was dressed in the following fashion: He wore a long tapped coat with large pockets, the sleeves had broad cuffs with three large buttons, somewhat like the coats worn by the Greenwich pensioners of the present day, an embroidered waistcoat reaching nearly down to the knees, with an enormous bouquet in the buttonhole; a cocked hat, powdered hair with pigtail, a bag wig, and a golden-headed cane similar to those subsequently carried by the footmen of women of rank."

There is a recorded legend attaching to David Bevan, the father of Robert Cooper Lee Bevan, one of Barclays directors in 1888, who died two years later at Trent park. It was said of the father that he fell asleep during a sale by auction and, nodding at the psychological moment, awoke to find himself the owner of Trent park.

There is a story of another director, Douglas Kinnaird. He was "a conspicuous figure in the political and literary circles of London," and a close friend of Lord Byron, who made him his trustee and dedicated to him his "Hebrew Melodies." It is said that the poet once asked the banker to act as his second in a duel with Southey, but that fortunately peace was restored, mainly by the "serio-humorous expostulations" of the reluctant second.

Franklin's Thrift Chain

It is possibly not well known that Benjamin Franklin originated one of the most practical and beneficial "endless chain" schemes ever developed.
